Following victory in Ohio primary

Carter closes in on Democratic nod

By DAVE GOLDBERG
Associated Press Writer
Jimmy Carter, at best an outsider when the primaries began, has capped his run from nowhere with a delegate harvest that puts him within a few quick moves of the Democratic presidential nomination.

For the Republicans, the end of the primaries means a continuation of Ronald Reagan's challenge to President Ford.

Carter won only in Ohio of the three big states that held primaries on Tuesday. But he picked up more than 200 delegates, and all his rivals but one seemed ready to concede him the nomination.

The one who said he won't quit chasing Carter is Jerry Brown, who won big in his home state of California and was joined with Hubert Humphrey as preferred candidates on an uncommitted delegate slate that won in New Jersey. "I will go forward," Brown said. "I think the nomination is still open."

Ford and Reagan, meanwhile, fought to a standoff that virtually guarantees a fight to the convention in Kansas City two months from now.

Reagan took the California primary and with it the 167 delegates that go to the winner there. But Ford won almost all of Ohio's 97 delegates and an uncommitted slate that swept New Jersey's 67 delegate spots is packed with the President's supporters.

Here is how the delegate count looks with the primaries over:

Carter, who picked up 218 delegates on Tuesday, now has 1,125 of the 1,505 needed for nomination. His closest pursuer is Rep. Morris K. Udall, who has 334.5. Brown, who won 200 in California, has 225 and a number in the uncommitted bloc of over 400 delegates.

Ford has a lead over Reagan of 892-868, with 1,130 needed to be the nominee. But Ford's edge is actually greater since no more than a handful of the nominally uncommitted 67-member New Jersey delegation backs Reagan.

As the votes were counted Tuesday and even before, it was clear it would be a day for jumping on the Carter bandwagon.

Carter himself told supporters in Atlanta: "I think I'm going to be the nominee."

And at a news conference, he said he had spoken by telephone during the day with three active rivals, Udall, Frank Church and George Wallace; one inactive rival, Humphrey, and Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago, who controls a bloc of 86 delegates nominally committed to Sen. Adlai Stevenson, a favorite son.

"All of them, as a general group, agreed that I would be the nominee," Carter said.

And that was what just about all of them said, finally conceding defeat after a spring of seeing silver linings in cloudy results.

Udall, speaking to supporters in Cleveland after his ninth second-place finish, congratulated Carter on a "solid victory, and a brilliant campaign." He said Carter is now a heavy favorite for the nomination and said he wouldn't engage in a stop-Carter move. But he added that he would not release his delegates because they "cannot be delivered."

Church said of Carter: "He's coming very close to being able to claim the number of delegates necessary for a first-ballot victory." And he said of his telephone conversation with the former Georgia governor: "I told him I thought he had established an entitlement it would be difficult for the convention to deny."

Earlier in the day, it was Daley who indicated he was ready to jump on the bandwagon.

Daley said he was not making any endorsement just yet, but predicted that if Carter won Ohio, as he did, "he'll be the nominee." The mayor also said of what he called the religious tone of Carter's campaign: "That's something we need some of."

But Brown, who has won in Maryland, Nevada and California and been backed by parts of winning uncommitted slates in Rhode Island and New Jersey, wanted no part of that.

"Every state I have gone into, Jimmy Carter has lost," he said. "The 1,505 delegates are not accounted for."

Today was a very strong boost for my candidacy."

On the Republican side, things went just about as expected. Reagan won easily in California, Ford with little trouble in Ohio and the delegate slate headed by Sen. Clifford P. Case captured all the New Jersey slots over a slate that Reagan did not sanction and which carried the label "former California governor."

Both the Reagan and Ford camps predicted their candidates would win on the first ballot, as one of them would almost surely have to do if no other candidates enter the field. And both

Newcomer captures 37 of 44 precincts

Conley beats Wagner by 606 votes

By GEORGE MALEK
The old guard gave way to a former apprentice Tuesday when Charles P. Wagner was ousted by Donald E. Conley in the Fayette County engineer's race in Tuesday's primary election.

Conley, who worked in the county

DONALD E. CONLEY

engineer's office under Wagner for five years in the 1960s, captured 60 per cent of the Republican vote to defeat his former boss convincingly.

The 35-year-old Conley captured 37 of 44 Fayette County precincts, including 19 of 24 outside Washington C. H. where Wagner's support was strongest.

Surprisingly, Conley won a slightly greater percentage of the vote in rural precincts than he did within the Washington C. H. city limits.

The unofficial final tally showed Conley with 1,841 votes to Wagner's 1,235.

Co-owner of Gale Helms and Associates, Inc., engineering firm, Conley will become Fayette County's engineer in 1977. There is no Democratic candidate for the post to offer opposition in the November general election.

Conley's victory brings to the engineer's office the first change in leadership in more than a quarter century. Wagner, 77, became the county engineer in 1950 and has held the post since that time.

Many friendships have been made during that time, and Wagner is noted for his cooperative spirit when working with township trustees.

Conley was pleased with his party's response. Although he said he had been confident throughout the preceding months, he was pleasantly surprised by the margin of victory.

He has become known in the community through a number of local projects. Conley performed engineering work on Interstate 71, the Jeffersonville sanitary sewage system, several ditch projects and has served as a technical advisor to the Washington C. H. Planning Commission.

Voting in the engineer's race was somewhat erratic. Early returns, primarily from rural precincts, showed a close vote favoring Wagner.

Clyde Cramer, Conley's campaign manager, felt that if his candidate could hold his own in the townships he could win with a strong city vote.

As the non-city precincts continued to be reported to the board of elections, however, Conley enjoyed occasional sweeping victories. With the vote very close, the Union-East precinct recorded an 80-30 vote in favor of the young candidate.

When Concord Township voted 102-45 and Madison Mills followed a short time later with a 57-17 tally, it became clear Conley would win the rural precincts as well as the Washington C. H. vote.

City returns then confirmed Cramer's projection of strength. Conley took a margin of nearly 100 votes in each of the third and fourth wards.

Even the first ward, which Conley expected to lose, gave him a slim 20-vote victory.

Over 5,000 cast ballots

Vote count trickles in at a snail's pace

A heavier than expected turnout of voters, plus some unexpected complications, caused results to trickle into the Fayette County Board of Elections office Tuesday night and early Wednesday at a sluggish pace.

A hefty total of 5,081 Fayette County residents cast ballots during Tuesday's primary election.

The 5,081 total was more than 500 voters over the prediction made by officials at the Fayette County Board of Elections. Only about 4,500 county voters were expected to cast ballots.

Some 3,278 voters cast ballots on the Republican ticket, while there were 1,737 Democrats who went to the polls. Sixty-six persons went to the polls and requested ballots for state or local issues only.

Two-thirds (66.22 per cent) of the county voters who went to the polls, cast Republican ballots, which represents a two per cent increase in the percentage of GOP voters from the 1972 primary election in Fayette County.

A possible explanation for the heavy number of GOP voters, despite the fact that Fayette County is traditionally a Republican stronghold, could be crossover voting because of a lack of interest in the Democratic presidential ticket and the interest generated by a race between Donald E. Conley and incumbent Charles P. Wagner for the county engineer's seat.

The last votes were received by tabulators at the board of elections office at approximately 2 a.m. Wednesday.

The tardiness in receiving votes was attributed to a hefty number of candidates and issues on both the Republican and Democrat ballots, plus inexperienced poll workers.

Mrs. Mary Jean Jennings, director of the Fayette County Board of Elections, said elections officials were forced to replace nine poll workers on Monday because conflicts in the schedules of regular personnel.

New clerks and presiding judges were common around the 44 polling places in Fayette County. "They (inexperienced workers) were all over the county," Mrs. Jennings said.

The Selden Precinct in Jasper Township had a total of three new workers for Tuesday's balloting.

To further complicate matters, a telephone in the board of elections office, used to receive reports on key races from precincts around the county, malfunctioned midway through the evening.

In continuing a long-standing election tradition, the tiny Octa precinct in northern Fayette County was the first to report its votes (at 9:08 p.m.) to the board of elections office.

Mrs. Jennings said the board of elections will meet at noon Tuesday to officially certify the vote.

Voters keep lid on spending issues

Three state amendments downed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Voters sent a message to the Statehouse Tuesday that they'll accept changes in the language of law, but intend to keep a close eye on the state's coffers.

Among eight issues on the primary ballot, the three that apparently were defeated by voters involved the disbursement and use of government funds. The five that received popular approval were regarded as noncost items or measures to tighten old language in the state Constitution.

Here is the vote with 92 per cent of state polling places reporting:

- 1—Tandem Election, 977,038 in favor; 628,056 opposed
- 2—Rail Aid, 704,744 in favor; 866,754 opposed
- 3—Energy Bonds, 734,642 in favor; 757,190 opposed
- 4—Voting Age, 885,977 in favor; 677,895 opposed
- 5—Lt. Gov. Vacancy, 865,146 in favor; 607,241 opposed
- 6—Indirect Debt Limit, 617,370 in favor; 809,357 opposed
- 7—Estate Tax Return, 865,296 in favor; 632,814 opposed
- 8—Estate Tax Exemption, 839,090 in favor; 648,430 opposed

Approved by a comfortable margin was a measure that will link the election of the governor and lieutenant governor to the same political party. Lt. Gov. Richard F. Celeste, a Democrat, campaigned throughout the state in favor of the proposal, saying he seldom met with Republican Gov. James A. Rhodes.

Also approved were a change in constitutional wording to put voter qualification language in line with federal statutes; a measure to remove the governor's authority to fill vacancies in the lieutenant governor's post; payment of 50 per cent of estate tax revenues to local government; and an end to the estate tax exemption limit of $20,000.

Soundly defeated was a measure to remove the indirect debt limit imposed on local government borrowing. Presently, local governments are limited to a debt ceiling of one per cent of the property value in their jurisdictions.

The measure was one of the six issues proposed by the Ohio Constitutional Revision Commission. The commission recommended the change, noting that local governments use other forms of taxation of debt than property tax.

Voters also turned back a proposal to permit state subsidy of rail transportation.

Fayette County residents scored two "ringers" and one "leaner" Tuesday when they voted on proposed amendments to the Ohio Constitution.

As a whole, the state turned down three of the eight proposals. Fayette Countyans voted against two of the measures and just missed a perfect match. The third amendment which failed statewide was approved by less than a handful of votes in Fayette County.

Issue No. 3 which would have permitted the state to issue low-interest bonds for industrial development of energy was favored here by a vote of only 1,894 to 1,886.

sportation in Ohio. The issue, back on the ballot after defeat last November, was hailed by supporters as a move to enable the state to funnel more federal support to Ohio's rail system. It was designed to permit Ohio's participation financially in the federal rail reorganization, which created the ConRail freight system.

A third issue to permit issuance of state-backed bonds for development of private energy facilities was also rejected by voters. The measure would permit a corporation to protect itself against energy shortages by establishing its own supplies.

With the exception of the measure to create a tandem election ticket for the governor and lieutenant governor, the issues generated little controversy and no substantial campaigns were mounted for or against them.

Countians favor all levies on ballot

Voters approve city tax issues

By MIKE FLYNN
Record-Herald Editor
Four city tax levy issues, totaling 2.3 mills, were approved by Washington C.H. voters at Tuesday's primary election.

A one-mill levy earmarked for the operation of the understaffed Washington C.H. Police Department fared the best in Tuesday's voting. Washington C.H. residents approved the issue by an unofficial 379-vote margin, 1,438 to 1,059. The issue passed in 14 of the city's 20 polling places.

City voters approved a three-tenths mill levy for the maintenance of the Washington Cemetery by an unofficial 1,354 to 1,136 margin, and a one-mill levy earmarked for street lighting was approved by only 78 votes, 1,291 to 1,213.

The taxes on the three issues will be assessed on 1976 duplicates and collected starting in December of next year. The issues will expire in 1980.

City officials estimate the total millage to be raised by the three issues will produce about $90,000.

The millage will help to ease the city's troubled financial picture which started two years ago when

Washington C.H. City Council decided to reduce 2.3 mills in property taxes in exchange for a 1.25 per cent income tax. The income tax issue was defeated at the polls and the city had withdrawn the 2.3 mills on the assumption voters would approve the income tax.

It is now possible that two police officers, who retired in January, may be replaced. City officials decided not to replace the two veteran officers in effort to trim $20,000 from an anemic budget.

The one-mill police protection levy was approved by voters in all four wards and 14 of 20 precincts. The issue gained approval in four of the five precincts in both the third and fourth wards, and three of the four precincts in the city's second ward.

Half of the city's 554 street lights, turned out in early March in an effort to save an estimated $13,000, may go back on next year with the approval of a one-mill street lighting issue.

The reduction of 316 street lights in the downtown and residential areas was completed in an attempt to cut $13,000 from the general fund budget.

Washington C.H. Police Chief Rodman Scott had estimated that as a result of the budget-cutting program which drastically reduced street lighting and depleted the manpower of the police force, crime in Washington C.H. increased at a rate of 45 per cent through the first four months of the year.

The street lighting levy was approved by narrow margins in three of the city's four wards. Only voters in the city's first ward turned down the issue.

In posting a slender 78-vote margin of approval, the street lighting issue passed in 13 of the city's 20 voting precincts.

The margin of approval was garnered as the issue passed in four of the five precincts in the fourth ward and three of the four precincts in the second ward.

Approval of a three-tenths mill levy for the operation and maintenance of the Washington Cemetery will virtually guarantee that the city's share of the operating costs ($11,300 per year) will be reinstated.

The cemetery issue was approved in all four of the city's wards. The issue was defeated in only one precinct in the second, third and fourth wards.

City Council slashed the $11,300

earmarked for the cemetery earlier this year to reduce an anticipated operational deficit.

The matter was further complicated when Union Township trustees threatened to withdraw financial support if the city did not contribute its share of the operating costs.

The township trustees contribute nearly $5,000 annually from their fund to support the cemetery, which has been operated jointly by the city and township officials since 1877.

The three-member cemetery board was fearful that if the more than $16,000 ($11,300 from the city and $5,000 from the township trustees) was not received from the two political subdivisions, Washington C.H. area residents would absorb the increased costs for burials.

The cemetery board in April increased the costs of graves by 15 per cent. The increase became effective May 1.

With the elimination of street lighting, the cut in cemetery operating funds, and the reduction of police department personnel, City Council and administration officials contended before the election that they had cut all possible expenses, and that any further reduction would endanger normal city services.

TWO OTHER tax levies placed before Fayette County voters at Tuesday's primary election were approved overwhelmingly.

A two-tenths mill general health levy proposed by the Fayette County Health Department won by a lopsided margin of 2,053 votes.

The final unofficial tally on the health issue was 3,503 to 2,053.

The levy, which will permit the county health department to continue existing programs, is expected to produce about $23,000. The levy will continue for a five-year period.

The health levy was approved in 43 of the county's 44 precincts. Only voters in Precinct C of the city's third ward rejected the issue.

A .75-mill renewal for fire protection in Union Township was approved by a resounding 476 to 100 margin.

Voters in all four precincts of Union Township approved the levy by lopsided vote counts.

The Union Township fire protection levy will also run for five years.

Deaths, Funerals

Dallas D. Hess

NEW HOLLAND — Dallas D. Hess, 82, of 48 N. East St., New Holland, died at 1:20 p.m. Tuesday in Fayette County Memorial Hospital, Washington C.H., where he had been a patient for 12 days. He had been ill for a month.

Born in Washington C.H. Mr. Hess had resided in Ocoee, Fla., until moving to New Holland in 1966. A World War I U.S. Army veteran, he was also a retired employe of the Hagerty Shoe Company.

He is survived by his wife, the former Ruth Fisher; one daughter, Mrs. Joe (Rosemary) Longberry of New Holland; and two granddaughters, Carla and Jodine Longberry.

Services will be held at 1:30 p.m. Friday in the Kirkpatrick Funeral Home, New Holland, with the Rev. Victor Slutz pastor of the New Holland Church of Christ, officiating. Burial will be in Washington Cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home after 3 p.m. Thursday.

GREENFIELD — Mrs. Gladys Thompson, 40, wife of Ralph Thompson, Rt. 1, Leesburg, died at 12:05 a.m. Wednesday in Fayette County Memorial Hospital, Washington C.H. She was born in Peebles, and was a member of the Freewill Baptist Church in Hillsboro. She had been ill for six months.

Mrs. Thompson is survived by her husband, Ralph; a daughter, Diana and a son, Troy, both at home; her parents, Mr and Mrs. John Cox of Leesburg; one brother, James M. Cox of Lawrenceburg, Ind.; and a sister, Mrs. Ruth Kellis of Washington C.H.

Services will be held at 2 p.m. Friday in the Murray Funeral Home, Greenfield, with the Rev. Dan Widding officiating. Burial will be in Bridges Cemetery, near Leesburg.

Friends may call at the funeral home after 4 p.m. Thursday.

Report Wallace to back Carter

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — The Birmingham News said today Gov. George C. Wallace is preparing to throw his support to Jimmy Carter as the Democratic party's candidate for president.

The newspaper said Wallace will announce at a news conference later today that he is asking the 168 delegates pledged to him to support the former Georgia governor.

The move could give Carter a big push toward a first-ballot victory at the party's convention in New York next month. It also could give Carter a unified South.

Wallace made his decision, the newspaper said, after a midnight session with his advisers and a telephone conversation with Carter at his Plains, Ga., home.

Viewers tuning out television violence

WASHINGTON (AP) — The president of the nation's largest advertising agency says a survey conducted for his agency shows that many television viewers are turning off violent TV programs and may also be rejecting the products advertised on those programs.

Don Johnston, president of the J. Walter Thompson Co. said a poll conducted in March shows that 10 per cent of viewers apparently consider not buying products because they are advertised on programs they consider excessively violent.

Eight per cent reported "consciously not buying a product," he told the annual convention of the American Advertising Federation here Tuesday.

He said that even if subsequent polls show only 4 per cent of viewers reject products because they are advertised in connection with violence, "I cannot imagine any advertiser who would want to risk negative sales of these proportions."

Johnston said the survey, although preliminary, corroborates other indications "that public hostility to violent TV programming is growing ..."

He said the J. Walter Thompson agency is "counseling our clients to evaluate the potential negatives of placing commercials in programming perceived as violent." Opponents of TV violence are organizing, he said, and Johnston predicted their actions will be felt "more and more ... in letters of protest and in product boycotts."

Johnston also said he personally opposes excessive violence on TV, and so does the agency.

"We are questioning that part of TV programming that exploits violence,"

Primary went well, Brown says

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Veteran Secretary of State Ted W. Brown said he thought Tuesday's Ohio primary went smoothly with few problems in view of lengthy ballots that caused confusion in the voting for district presidential delegates.

Brown said today Ohio still "needs to do something about those bedsheet ballots" even though they were not as long this year as they were in the presidential primary four years ago.

Most of the delay in collecting delegate results involved the Democratic district delegate-candidates whose names appeared individually on ballots, making it difficult for voters to determine presidential candidates to whom the delegates were pledged.

Republican district delegate-candidates were not named on ballots, but were elected on the basis of votes garnered by the GOP presidential candidates they selected as their choices.

Brown said that while returns coming in to his office may have seemed slow, actually they were at about the same pace as the 1972 primary.

They could have been slower, however, had many counties not become more mechanized in the past four years, and had the legislature not enacted a new law shortening ballots to some extent, he said.

Names of individual candidates not only were eliminated from GOP district delegate slates, but also from each party's roster of at-large, statewide slates, as a result of a constitutional amendment subsequently implemented by the legislature. Democrats could have done the same had they chosen to adopt other rules.

Legislative backers of the amendment said it permitted Ohio to go from a bedsheet ballot to "a pillow case ballot."

The secretary of state said "all things considered, I think everything went about normal."

Justices take free press stand

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A decision handed down by the Ohio Supreme Court Tuesday "assures that there need not be a restraint or abridgment of freedom of the press in this state in a criminal case," Chief Justice C. William O'Neill said.

O'Neill's assessment was contained in a footnote to an order upholding the Akron Beacon Journal newspaper, which had asked permanent reversal of a trial judge's order banning publication of information about a criminal trial.

Judge Robert Kainrad of Portage County Common Pleas Court issued the order Jan. 26 and the Supreme Court temporarily suspended it two days later.

The majority Supreme Court decision written by O'Neill was concurred in by Justices Thomas M. Herbert, William B. Brown and by Alvin I. Krenzler, sitting from the Eighth Appellate District for Justice Leonard J. Stern.

Dissenting votes came from Justices J. J. P. Corrigan, Frank D. Celebrezze and Paul W. Brown.

Both the Beacon Journal and Kainrad asked the court for a decision although the specific question became moot when the criminal trial was completed. It arose in the separate trials of Kenny James McDaniels and Ralph F. Garduno, indicted for aggravated murder. Both were convicted.

Kainrad testified he felt the order was appropriate and that under the same circumstances he would issue the same order again.

O'Neill wrote that "where the constitutional right of a criminal defendant to a fair trial can be protected by the traditional methods...the press and public cannot be excluded from a criminal trial or hearing and no order can be made which prohibits the publishing of news reports about statements made or testimony given during such proceedings."

He said a court is obligated before issuing such an order to hold a hearing and make a finding that all other measures to insure a fair trial are deficient.

3 to vie in lottery

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Buckeye 1,000 that will remain the basic game when the auxiliary Spirit of '76 contest ends next week drew only three finalists for Thursday's $1,000-per-month drawing.

A lottery spokesman said Florence Davey of Girard, Josephine Buntin of Delaware and Ina Hamrick of Medina will have a chance at the top prize that promises at least $400,000.

After June 17th drawing, the Spirit of '76 will be replaced by the Instant Game beginning June 15. The Instant Game tickets will permit holders to determine with a few rubs on the spot whether they have won or lost.

he said. "We believe it is socially and psychologically damaging to large sections of the population."

Johnston said the agency's poll was conducted among 200 adult TV viewers. He said the agency has decided to expand the survey "to verify the preliminary results."

Among these results, he said, is that two of every five persons said they avoid watching programs they consider too violent.

Also, one of every five men and one of every three women said they prevent their children from watching programs they thought were excessively violent, he added.

Johnston said the agency's analysis of existing scientific and social research on TV violence reveals the following areas where it believes "damage is caused."

—"If they (children) are constantly given models of violent behavior, their behavior will probably turn violent." —Incidents have been reported in which unstable adults have modeled crimes on television dramas.

—"Excessive doses of violence tend to desensitize even stable adults. They become indifferent to the suffering of others."

—"Heavy watching of TV violence contributes to the tide of paranoia that afflicts a major part of the population ... Caution is a useful emotion. Terror is not."

sides said, as they have been saying, that their man would have a better chance of beating the Democratic nominee.

Reagan did not discuss the Ohio results. But his backers there said they were happy because he got over 40 per cent of the vote. And John Sears, who heads Citizens for Reagan, said "we're very pleased with the results from Ohio."

Ford had no direct comment on the primaries although he called supporters in New Jersey and Ohio to thank them. He told Keith McNamara, his Ohio chairman: "We've got a long, hard way to go, but we've got the right programs, the right people and we'll stick together."

Presidential press secretary Ron Nessen described Ford as pleased with the results, "especially his victories in Ohio and New Jersey." Like Reagan on Ohio, Nessen had no direct comment from Ford to relay on the California results.

These were the figures on the final primaries:

With 19 per cent of the precincts counted:

Reagan 282,817 or 61 per cent.

Ford 180,364 or 39 per cent.

Reagan got all 167 delegates under the winner-take-all system.

Brown 378,442 or 58 per cent and 200 delegates.

Carter 130,296 or 20 per cent and 70 delegates.

Church 60,201 or 9 per cent and six delegates.

Udall 35,292 or 5 per cent and four delegates.

The rest of the vote was scattered among five other entries.

In delegates, Brown was ahead for 200, Carter for 70, Church for 6, Udall for 4.

Democratic Sen. John V. Tunney won renomination over one-time student activist Tom Hayden. Conservative educator S. I. Hayakawa won the Republican nomination.

Ohio

With 69 per cent of the precincts counted:

Ford 365,184 or 55 per cent and 88 delegates.

Reagan 296,443 or 45 per cent and nine delegates.

Among Democrats:

Carter 391,511 or 52 per cent and 119 delegates.

Udall 154,786 or 21 per cent and 20 delegates.

Church 104,533 or 14 per cent.

The rest of the vote was scattered in the statewide competition for 38 Democratic delegates. Rep. Louis Stokes won six delegates as a favorite son in his home district.

In other Ohio races, Democratic Rep. Wayne Hays, under fire in the Washington sex scandal, won renomination, but by less than usual against a perennial challenger. And former Sen. Howard Metzenbaum defeated Rep. James V. Stanton for the Democratic nomination to run against Sen. Robert Taft Jr.

New Jersey

With 83 per cent of the vote counted in Republican delegate competition, a nominally uncommitted slate of party leaders who actually favor Ford won 63 convention seats, with returns yet to be tallied for the other four.

In the Democratic presidential preference vote, which was only for show since it committed no delegates, 91 per cent of the precincts had been counted.

Carter had 188,261 or 57 per cent. Church was second with 64,771 or 19 per cent.

The rest was split three ways.

Card of Thanks

I would like to express my sincere thanks and appreciation for the many cards, flowers and help received while in the hospital. Also, a special thanks to Dr. Anderson, all the staff at the Fayette Memorial Hospital and the Kirkpatrick Funeral Home.

Stock trend neutral

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market settled into a neutral trend today while investors waited for signs of the future course of interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks eased a fraction in the early going. Gainers and losers ran about even among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Brokers noted some disappointment that a technical rally early in Tuesday's session had faded by the close.

They said the market seemed now to be looking to the money markets for its next cue. The question was whether interest rates might begin leveling off or continue their recent rise.

Today's early prices included Ponderosa System, down 1/4 at 9 1/4; NCR, off 1/4 at 30; U.S. Steel, down 1/2 at 51 1/2, and Sterling Drug, unchanged at 16 1/4.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average settled for a 1.88 gain at 959.97, retreating from an earlier gain of about 7 points.

Conley wins

Only in the Selden Precinct in Jasper Township did Wagner enjoy a strong showing. Selden voters favored the incumbent engineer by a margin of 45 to 18.

A veteran of World War I, Wagner was noted for his steadfast manner. Occasionally gruff with critics, the engineer firmly discharged the duties of the office in the manner he felt the most beneficial to the county.

He is a charter member of the Washington C.H. Kiwanis Club and has been a member of Masonic organizations for the past 48 years.

Conley, after leaving his position as deputy Fayette County engineer in 1969, joined M.M. Shitzing and Associates of Chillicothe. He served as projects manager with the Chillicothe firm until 1972, and has been in partnership with Helms and Associates since that time.

He plans to continue his private engineering practice on a limited basis while serving in his elective office.

Return indictment

VAN WERT, Ohio (AP) — Earl J. Puckett has been indicted by a Van Wert County grand jury for allegedly aiding in a February 1974 tavern robbery in which two patrons were shot to death.

The jury handed down four indictments in secret.

Flames not only heat source at scene of local 'cookout'

A Monday night fire in a lot on Maple Street was not the only source of heat, as tempers flared when Washington C.H. firemen attempted to extinguish the blaze.

William F. Stolzenburg, 804 Maple St., notified Washington C.H. firemen that he and some friends would be having a cookout Monday night on a lot near his residence. He was advised by firemen to take the necessary safety measures.

Later in the night, according to Washington C.H. Fire Department Lt. Richard Reed, a neighbor complained about the fire to the department, and fireman Pat Denen was dispatched to the scene to investigate the blaze.

Denen reportedly found that the fire was under control, and he advised Stolzenburg to keep water nearby for safety measures. Stolzenburg said he would be continuing his cookout into the night.

At approximately 11 p.m., the Washington C.H. Police Department reported the fire to the fire department. This time, Lt. Reed went to Maple Street to investigate.

According to Lt. Reed, the flames of Stolzenburg's fire, kindled by pile brush around a tree stump, had reached a height of five feet. At that time, because of the nature and degree of the fire, it was considered to be illegal, and Lt. Reed ordered Stolzenburg to extinguish the fire.

Stolzenburg reportedly refused to extinguish the fire, and Lt. Reed doused the blaze with water from a fire truck. Soon after the fire was extinguished, Lt. Reed said, Stolzenburg came after him with a bucket, and attempting to protect himself, Lt. Reed turned the spray from the fire hose onto Stolzenburg.

Stolzenburg then reportedly advanced on Lt. Reed with a wooden plank, and the hose spray was again directed toward Stolzenburg until he could be restrained by a Washington C.H. police officer who had arrived on the scene.

No charges have been filed.

State lawmakers in cleanup meet

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Property taxes and state money problems faced Ohio's lawmakers today as they returned from a campaign recess for what they hope will be a brief 1976 cleanup session.

Action was expected on a conference committee's version of a bill to protect homeowners from future property tax hikes brought on by inflation.

The same bill also includes reductions in certain taxes for industry—specifically those they pay on their inventories and equipment.

Despite the conference committee agreement, worked out during the legislature's five-week recess, the bill still could hit a snag due to concerns over its impact on tax revenues.

Even more controversial, based on statements from minority Republicans in recent days, is a pending supplemental appropriations bill they claim is $10 million in excess of available revenues.

GOP Gov. James A. Rhodes will deliver a special message to a joint legislative session Thursday, outlining his alternatives for what he has described as a state financial crisis. Democrats claim the fiscal controversy is being raised by Republicans hopeful of creating campaign issues for the November election.

The legislature has several other issues pending, any of which could lengthen this week's session, originally scheduled for three days. One such issue is a bill to require full financial disclosure by lobbyists.

A House committee will after it was approved by the Senate, and sponsors in the upper chamber said it appears headed for a conference committee. The bill currently is in the House Rules Committee awaiting assignment to a floor vote.

Other measures near passage but stalled by Senate-House differences include those that would establish new tenure provisions for public school teachers and revise laws under which homeowners can face double jeopardy financial situations when they enter into contractors' agreements for home construction or repairs.

Rhodes has vetoed some measures since the legislature began its recess April 29, and some of those may be brought up for a possible attempt to override. One such bill would require individual pricing of items for retail sale even if a store has converted to a computer system that calls for electronic scanners to read coded markings at check out counters.

was "demagogic and simplistic." The U.S. secretary of state told the annual general assembly of the Organization of American States Tuesday that the situation "has impaired our relationship with Chile and will continue to do so."

Kissinger cited the report on human rights in the hemisphere made to the meeting by the OAS Human Rights Commission. He said it showed there has been a drop in the number of cases of abuse of human rights in Chile.

Indiana's first gas well was drilled in 1886 at Portland.

Ohio high court nominations made

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Two lower court judges and two attorneys won their parties' nominations for two Ohio Supreme Court vacancies Tuesday.

Democrat Ralph S. Locher, a probate court judge and former mayor of Cleveland, defeated two opponents, while Hamilton County Common Pleas Court Judge William J. Morrissey beat two fellow Republicans.

Locher, 60, and Morrissey, 55, will compete in November for the seat held by Justice Leonard Stern, who retires at the end of his term on Jan. 1.

In the other contest, Democrat A. William Sweeney, a Cincinnati lawyer, won over two opponents, while Don P. Brown, a member of the Cuyahoga County GOP executive committee, defeated led Judge John W. Potter of the 6th District Court of Appeals.

They seek the seat held by Justice J.P. Corrigan, who retires on Dec. 31. Stern and Corrigan must step down from the seven-member bench because they are or will be 70 by election time. Both terms are for six years.

The Democrats are hoping to take both seats in the general election, which would give them a 4-3 edge. The Republicans now have a 5-2 majority.

Although candidates can campaign and receive party nominations, they are not permitted to appear with their party designation in the general election.

Locher is considered the best known candidate. He was mayor of Cleveland from 1962-1967 and presently is judge of the Cuyahoga County Probate Court. Before serving the three terms as mayor of Ohio's largest city, he was Cleveland's law director from 1953-1962.

His closest challenger was Barberton Municipal Court Judge John D. Judge, 39, the youngest of the Democrats seeking the Supreme Court post. Russell H. Volkema, a Columbus trial lawyer, trailed substantially in the vote total.

Morrissey has been common pleas judge in Cincinnati since 1968. He previously served as a juvenile court judge and a county judge. He says he is a law and order judge and campaigned across the state every weekend in an effort to "give the people a chance to look at me."

He was well ahead of opponents Sara J. Harper, a Cleveland municipal court judge, and Paulding County Common Pleas Judge Gareth Hitchcock.

Sweeney, 55, is a veteran attorney who was unsuccessful in a bid for secretary of state in 1958 and for his party's nomination for governor in 1974.

His opponents were Cuyahoga County Juvenile Court Judge John F. Corrigan and Robert E. Cook, a judge of the 11th District Court of Appeals. Here are the totals with 63 per cent of the polling places reporting:

Republican — For term commencing Jan. 1, Brown 228,283; Potter 217,360; for term commencing Jan. 2, Harper 134,154; Hitchcock 96,504; Morrissey 201,725.

Democrat — For term commencing Jan. 1, Cook 142,058; Corrigan 144,555; Sweeney 192,854; for term commencing Jan. 2, Judge 159,961; Locher 198,829; Volkema 71,038.

Melvin tops field in annual 4-H tractor rodeo contest

Fred Melvin topped 11 contestants to win the 1976 4-H tractor rodeo held Sunday at the Fayette County Fairgrounds.

Melvin, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Melvin, 6982 West Road, near Bloomingburg, scored 605 penalty points.

Runner-up honors went to Randy Beekman, 1877 Lampe Road, Washington C.H., with a score of 885 points. Third and fourth places went to Mark Holloway, 4485 Lewis Road, Bloomingburg, and Jon Long, Rt. 1, Jeffersonville, with scores of 960 and 1,060. The best 1975 score was 820 points.

The rodeo tested the skills of 4-H Tractor Club members in tractor operation, safety and maintenance, according to Jack Sommers, Fayette County 4-H extension agent.

The rodeo was scored in four parts on a penalty point basis. First, each contestant took a written exam testing his knowledge of tractor safety and mechanics. Second, the contestants tested their skills in moving a two-wheel trailer through an obstacle course, and third, the boys tackled the four-wheel trailer backing event. Fourth, each contestant performed a trouble shooting exercises for maintenance problems.

The two-wheel and four-wheel events were scored on time to complete the test, skill in safe operation, and ability to stay within the bounds of the course. A maximum time of six minutes was allowed for each event.

Other 4-Hers participating in the tractor rodeo were Ed Geesling, Mark Grove, John Melvin, Duane Matthews, John Shepherd, David Barton and Doug Bonham. 4-H Tractor Club advisors Joe Geesling, Frank Dill, Lowell Woods, John Hiser, Jim Garland were on hand to score the event and set up the course.

Tractors and equipment were provided by Greenline, Case Power and Equipment.

Awards for the winners were provided by Case Power and Equipment Co., Krieger Equipment and Lowell Woods.

Push Chile to release prisoners

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Chile's military government was under new pressure from the United States and some other American countries today to free the 4,000 political prisoners it is estimated to be holding or at least to respect their human rights.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger warned the ruling junta that U.S.-Chilean relations will remain cool unless it improves its performance on human rights. Venezuela and Jamaica called for a largescale release of prisoners.

A Chilean representative said the demands for release of the prisoners

Mr. and Mrs. James D. Polk of 2848 S. R. 753, Washington C.H. announce the engagement of their daughter, Diane Elizabeth, to James Foster Cain, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl H. Cain of Eufaula, Alabama.

The bride-elect is employed at Montgomery Ward in Washington C.H. and her fiancé is an employee of American Buildings in Eufaula, Alabama. Both are graduates of Washington Senior High School.

A July wedding is being planned.

Choral Society soloists named for concert

The Fayette County Choral Society will meet for sectional rehearsals on Sunday, June 13 at 2 p.m. in First Presbyterian Church.

Rehearsals during the week are scheduled for Monday and Thursday at 8 p.m. Warren Parker, musical director, has named soloists for the Bicentennial Concert of American Music to be given at 3 p.m. June 20 in First Presbyterian Church.

In the Showboat Medley, they are Mrs. Michael Campbell, soprano, Richard Glass, tenor, and Charles J. Wehner, bass. In "Everytime I Feel the Spirit," Fulton Terry is the bass vocalist, and for the Fantastics medley, Jeff Sheridan, tenor, and Gary Browning, bass, are the soloists.

Beta Omega presents check to Hospital

Mrs. Ralph Leeds was hostess Monday evening when the Beta Omega chapter met in her home. She opened the meeting with the opening ritual and Mrs. William Autrey gave the roll call and minutes of the Board meeting. Mrs. Chuck Winkle read correspondence, and announced that the chapter had made a donation of $260.41 to Fayette Memorial Hospital, for oral surgery. This was the chapter's proceeds from the benefit dance.

Old Fashioned Bargain Days was discussed during the business session, and projects for the philanthropy and ways and means committees.

A "Rush Party" was set for Aug. 14. Following the closing ritual, refreshments were served to Mrs. Wayne Clark, Mrs. Harry Haines, Mrs. Dennis Holloway, Mrs. Lynn Preston, Mrs. Gilbert Whiteside, Mrs. Winkle, Mrs. Gurney Haines, Mrs. Autrey, Mrs. James McCracken by Mrs. Leeds.

BPW committee organizes and plans for year

The Personal Development Committee of the Washington C.H. Business and Professional Women's Club met at the home of Mrs. Jean King to organize and plan for the coming year.

Loreah O'Brian was appointed secretary of the committee, and tentative plans for the monthly dinner-meeting in July were made.

Members present were Mrs. King and Mrs. Mary Merritt, co-chairwomen; Mrs. Mary Crone, Mrs. Mary Ellen Dellinger, Mrs. Lena Smith, Mrs. O'Brian, Mrs. Ann Cluff, bulletin committee, Mrs. Sara Echard, first vice president, and Mrs. Mary Lou Christman, president.

Fashion on a grand scale

A large serving of fashion nets compliments for Sizes 38 to 52

By JEAN O'SULLIVAN

REMEMBER when the woman who wore a size 38 or larger didn't have a fashion friend in the world? Those days are gone. One of the firms responsible for the change is Stout Sportswear, which has two lines for large sizes, Patrician and Young Stuff.

"We don't try to hide the large-size woman," said John Miller, who with his brother, Ken, heads the firm. "Rather," he told me, "we've liberated her by giving her exciting clothes to wear. We've made her fashionable, and she loves it."

The brothers have also revolutionized the industry with ads that tell it like it is.

For-Real Models

"No size 8 models for us," Ken said. "The models we use are women who wear our clothes."

When their for-real ad campaign began a few years ago, the fashion world held its breath. But the brothers knew what they were about. Proof of this is in the enthusiastic mail they receive:

"At least someone has had the consummate good sense to use a model who is not a ridiculous sizes 5 or 7, in an ad for clothing for heavier women"

"Somehow the fashions made for stout women never look the same on a size 8" . . . "I will frame your ad and show all my stout sisters that we are finally being recognized."

Smart styling pleases large women even more than models they can identify with.

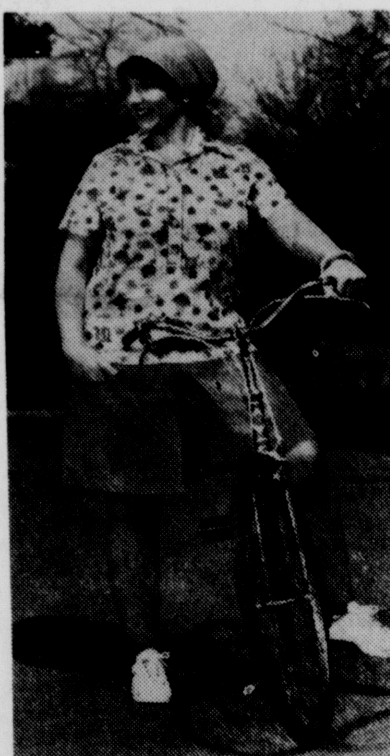

"When our grandfather started the firm 65 years ago," John said, "large sizes automatically meant dull styling in brown, black and navy. Sure, we still do some dark colors but the bulk of our fashions are colorful and trendy."

A look at the line proves the point. One of the hottest fashions of the moment, the T-shirt, is done in solids, stripes, and bright colors for sizes 38 to 52. Jeans with such touches as patches, decorative zippers, and braided belts, come in large sizes too: "We were the first to make jeans with a 46-inch waist," Ken pointed out.

The firm's success secret is simple. They've taken a young look and expanded it to fit large-size women. It's not just fashion but good fit that makes the concept work.

The lines include slacks, shorts, culottes, skirts, and evening outfits in every conceivable fabric, including denim, corduroy, velvet, and simulated leather. As for colors, the large woman can choose her favorite from shades that range from pastels through brights to a few darks. On a practical note, 95 per cent of the Patrician and Young Stuff fashions are machine-washable.

"I think you could call what we've done 'Stout Liberation,'" Ken said. "Our message is simple: Big is beautiful. No matter what she weighs, a woman should be able to get excited about clothes. That's what fashion is all about."

The African Methodist Episcopal Church was founded in 1816. It is the largest of the African Methodist denomination with a membership of 1.2 million.

Mrs. Dellinger entertains class

Mrs. Dorothy Dellinger was hostess in her home for the Marguerite Class meeting. Mrs. Dellinger opened meeting with a reading, "Strangers Are Friends We Haven't Met."

Mrs. Fred Rost read the foreword and excerpts from the book "Faith, Hope and Hilarity," a children's book by Dick VanDyke who at one time was a Sunday School teacher and from the interesting and unrehearsed quips from children produced his book. She also read a poem or prayer which was a favorite of Thomas E. Dewey. Devotions were closed by prayer.

Mrs. Frank Dellinger read the minutes of the April meeting and also correspondence to the class. Mrs. Corrine Taylor gave the treasurer's report and also reported on the May banquet.

Wedding set for October

MISS REBECCA J. MOSSBARGER

Mr. and Mrs. Lee A. Mossbarger of New Holland, are pleased to announce the engagement of their daughter, Rebecca Jane Mossbarger to Anthony D. Greco, son of Dr. and Mrs. Daniel J. Greco of Amsterdam, N.Y.

Miss Mossbarger is a graduate of Miami Trace High School, Washington C.H. and a 1974 graduate of the Ohio State University, Columbus. Currently she is employed as a commercial artist in the Jack Eckerd Corporation, Clearwater, Fla.

Mr. Greco is a graduate of the Wilbur H. Lynch Sr. High School and a 1973 graduate of the University of Notre Dame in South Bend, Ind. He is currently employed as a corporate auditor for General Telephone and Electronics located in Stamford, Conn.

An October wedding is being planned.

Miss Knedler feted at noon luncheon

Miss Karmel Knedler, bride-elect of Charles Thomas Payton, was complimented at a noon luncheon and bridal shower recently in the home of Miss Gretchen Krieger. Following the opening of many lovely gifts, a dessert course was served.

Invited guests were Mrs. Ircel Knedler and daughters, Kindra and Kim, mother and sisters of the honor guest, Mrs. Harley Payton, mother of the prospective bridegroom, and the Misses Elaine Puckett, Diane Burke, Diana Patton, Diane Blessing, Danita Adams, Julie Grubbs, Brenda Garringer, Rajean Kiser, Linda Varney, Sharon Smith, Mary Beth Deer, all of this area, and Jill Silvers and Cheryl Wilson, both of London. Mrs. Karl Krieger assisted her daughter in the hospitalities.

Miss Knedler and Mr. Payton will be married Saturday in First Presbyterian Church.

Phi Beta Psi plans picnic for Aug. 2

The home of Mrs. Max Schlichter was the setting for the June meeting of Phi Beta Psi Sorority. Newly installed president, Mrs. Birch Rice conducted the business meeting. Mrs. Rice announced standing committees for the coming year and Mrs. Warren Craig was welcomed back as an active member.

Additional Bicentennial cookbooks are now available and may be purchased at $3.00 each from any active member.

The six member who attended the Ohio State Convention, Columbus, May 16 reported a very informative and enjoyable day.

Plans are being made for the annual sorority picnic to be held Monday, August 2, at the home of Mrs. Marvin Roszmam, 1235 Dayton Ave. for all active, inactive and associate members.

Following the meeting refreshments were served by Mrs. Mark Schaeper and Mrs. Don Kirk.

COUNTRY COOKS 4-H

The fifth meeting of the Country Cooks 4-H Club took place at the home of Gill Ferro. The club discussed the plans for a bake sale July 3, to be held in Mount Sterling. The tour to Pennington Bakery was also discussed, and two more volunteers are needed to take the group.

The group will go to a nursing home to visit with the patients June 13. Girls talked about camp and the fun one has at camp.

Carol Bihl gave a health report on "Nutrition." The safety report on "Lawn Mower Safety" was given by Rhonda Dean. Lori Hollar gave a demonstration on "How to Measure." Gill Ferro' demonstration was how to prepare a cake pan.

On May 6, the Country Cooks attended the demonstration clinic at the Extension Office. They showed the group the proper way to do demonstrations and some subjects.

For refreshments, the girls stopped at the Dairy Queen.

COUNTRY COOKS 4-H

The meeting of the Country Cooks 4-H Club was held at the home of Jodi and Kathy Hanawalt June 3. Caren Mowery led the club in the pledges.

On July 3, we will hold a bake sale at the Sterling State Bank. The club is planning a tour of Pennington Bakery July 7.

For the community project, we are going to the Margaret Clark Oakfield Convalescent Center, 726 Rawlings St., on June 13. We will take a fruit basket for the patients.

Rhonda Dean's safety report was entitled "Hiking and Camping." Carol Bihl's report was "Health Careers" and she conducted a game.

Activities

The following demonstrations were made: Kathy Hanawalt, "Setting a Table," Rhonda Dean, "Cutting Cookies," Cristi Cummings, "Cutting, Chopping and Slicing Vegetables."

Caren Mowery and Christi Cummings had refreshments. The next meeting will be June 17 at Carol Bihl's.

LADS AND LASSIES 4-H
"Camping 4-H Style" was explained by Alan Thompson when he showed slides and gave an informative talk about 4-H Camps held at Camp Clifton each year at the regular meeting of the Lads and Lassies 4-H Club held at Eber School.

He told of the many different activities available and urged all to attend camp this year.

The camps are Intermediate Camp, June 6-June 10; Senior Camp, June 11-June 14; Advance Camp June 28-July 2, and Tenderfoot Camp, August 22-August 25.

During the business session conducted by Brenda Steinhauer, president, plans were started for a tour of the Ohio State Veterinary School. Final plans will be completed at a later date.

The secretary and treasurer gave their reports. Robin Highfield, safety leader, gave a very informative safety report entitled "Falls in the Home." Brenda Steinhauer reported on the Junior Fair Board Meeting.

The next meeting will be a tour of all projects with the tour starting at Beth Shaw's home on Jupiter St. at 3:00 p.m. on June 15. Following the tour, the group will return for a swimming party.

Refreshments were served by Chip Wilt and Chris Haigler.

Pending trial in Common Pleas Court

Murder suspect completes exams

A Fayette County woman, charged in March with the murder of her husband in a Washington C.H. home, recently completed a number of psychiatric examinations.

Alice Maye Reed, 36, of 7048 Stafford Rd., has been incarcerated in the Franklin County Jail for security reasons, pending a trial in Fayette County Common Pleas Court. At different times in May and June, she had been examined by three psychiatrists in Columbus and Cincinnati.

Mrs. Reed was arrested March 15 by Washington C.H. police officers, the day after her husband, Raymond C. Reed, 42, was found dead in his brother Francis' home at 642 High St. Reed had suffered two gunshot wounds in the stomach and abdomen, and had sustained a fractured skull from a blunt object, police officers reported.

During her arraignment before Fayette County Common Pleas Court Judge Evelyn W. Coffman, Mrs. Reed entered pleas of "not guilty" and "not guilty by reason of insanity." She is being represented by John D. Bryan, a Washington C.H. attorney.

On May 13, on a motion by assistant Fayette County prosecuting attorney John H. Roszmann, Mrs. Reed was taken from the Fayette County jail to the Southwest Mental Health Clinic in Columbus. She underwent psychiatric examination at that time.

She was taken to Cincinnati on May 25 and June 2 for further psychiatric observation ordered after a motion by the prosecution. In both instances she was examined by a single psychiatrist.

Reed had been living with his brother when the homicide occurred during the evening hours of March 14. He was a life-long resident of Fayette County, and had been a veteran of 20 years service in the U.S. Navy. Until his death, he had been employed as a credit manager with the Barnhart Firestone Store, 304 E. Market St.

Liquor permit received

Buckeye Hills, Inc., Limes Road, near New Martinsburg, has been issued a private club liquor permit by the Ohio Department of Liquor Control.

Situated in historically "dry" Perry Township, the country club had not been able to sell alcoholic beverage.

Although club members could purchase tokens to obtain drinks, the open sale of intoxicating beverage was prohibited.

With the awarding of the permit, the club will be able to sell liquor without tokens by-the-glass until 1 a.m. daily.

Tuesday is the first day the club will be permitted free sale, and liquor may be purchased after the election polls close at 7:30 p.m.

Initiative petitions had sought to allow liquor sales in Perry Township for the past several years, but each time, the issue was defeated by local voters.

The issue finally passed last November by Perry Township voters, and Buckeye Hills sought a permit a short time later.

This 'n that

The Three C Corvette Club will hold its monthly meeting Thursday at the Three C Camper Sales near Sabina.

On the club's agenda is the acceptance of membership application by the National Corvette Club.

Plans for Sunday's trip to Cedar Point to join in Corvette Day activities will be finalized at the meeting. Any corvette owner wishing to make the trip should contact Carl Anders (513-584-2871) after 9 p.m.

Woman hurt in two-car accident

A Washington C.H. woman was injured following a two-car collision Wednesday, and three other accidents occurring in the county were investigated by law enforcement officers.

A car driven by Marcia A. Clark, 20, of 914 John St., was westbound on Willard Street when she collided with another car after having entered the Elm Street intersection. She told police officers she saw a car driven by David Munyon, 26, of Greenfield, proceeding north on Elm Street, but she was unable to stop.

Ms. Clark was taken to Fayette County Memorial Hospital, treated for contusions of the chest, and later released. The 12:36 a.m. Wednesday accident resulted in moderate damage to both cars.

Beth A. Kimmet, 17, of 526 Rawlings St., had been northbound on Forest Street, when she reportedly failed to notice a car approaching from Temple Street, and a collision resulted at the intersection. The second car was driven by Carol J. Meyers, 29, of 5134 Washington-Waterloo Road, and it was moderately damaged. The Kimmet car was slightly damaged in the 9:57 a.m. Tuesday accident.

In the process of backing from a parking space in front of the courthouse on Central Place, a car driven by Rebecca J. Thompson, 43, Washington-Waterloo Road, struck a car parked alongside of her. The parked car belonged to Richard Keiser, 2023 Snow Hill Road, and it was slightly damaged in the 10:33 p.m. Tuesday accident.

The Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported that a hitskip vehicle struck a gasoline pump belonging to Richard Beechler, 1659 U.S. 22-E. The accident occurred at the Central Sales Service Island, Union Township, just east of Washington C.H. A gasoline line was broken, and the hitskip damage is believed to have occurred sometime between 10 p.m. Monday and 7 a.m. Tuesday, sheriff's deputies reported.

Theft report checked

An alleged petty theft, a malicious destruction of property report, and an ill person incident were investigated by Washington C.H. police officers.

A $120 citizens band radio belonging to James Wright, 505 N. North St., was reportedly stolen from his pickup truck as it was parked in front of his residence, sometime between June 3 and Tuesday. Forced entry was made through the driver's door of the vehicle, he said.

Michael Trenner, 503 Second St., told police officers that upon returning home at 11 p.m. Tuesday, he discovered that one half of a show enclosure door had been broken from its former position. Trenner said the incident was one of malicious destruction, and that $50 in damage was sustained.

Wilbur Ryan, 1006 John St., was taken by his wife to Fayette County Memorial Hospital following an undetermined seizure at 1:50 a.m. Tuesday. He was later transferred to the Veterans' Administration Hospital in Dayton.

After topping three Republican foes

Miss Palmer gets treasurer's nod

The first step in the political arena was a rewarding one for Jean L. Palmer.

After resigning her position with the city to campaign for the Fayette County treasurer's post, Miss Palmer outdistanced three other opponents to win the Republican nomination in Tuesday's primary election.

She will face Democrat Letha Cruea in the November general election. Mrs. Cruea was unopposed for her party's nomination.

Fayette County treasurer Harold A. Hise announced his retirement in March, and four Republicans scrambled for the party nod.

Miss Palmer won the preliminary contest convincingly by building a 150-vote margin in the four-way race. Robert E. McFadden finished second. He had 734 votes to the winner's 878.

Robert N. Highfield finished just 12 votes behind McFadden, and Ella M. Belt was fourth.

Employed at Mac Tools, Inc., for 20 years, Miss Palmer had served as administrator of the city's Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) program for the past two years.

Since she could not retain her position with CETA (which is funded by the federal government) while seeking public office, Miss Palmer resigned at the end of April.

She said she had enjoyed working with the public in the CETA program and had become experienced in billing while with Mac Tools. The treasurer's office offered an opportunity to combine the two, Miss Palmer said.

Possible reduction or elimination of CETA funding put her job as administrator in a precarious position, and Miss Palmer sought the "safety" of a more permanent position.

While many would contest the thought of safety in the political arena, her success Tuesday in a solid step toward four years in the Courthouse.

The final test will come in November. SEVERAL candidates face their only challenge in the general election.

JEAN L. PALMER

Democrats, including Cruea, advanced to the November ballot uncontested. Incumbent county commissioners J.

Herbert Perrill and Ray D. Warner were unopposed on the Republican slate. They will face Democrats Laurence A. (Bucky) Dumford and Morrison Gilbert, who were also unopposed, in the fall.

Fayette County Sheriff Donald L. Thompson, who had no opposition, will meet the only Democratic candidate Jerry Miko when he seeks to retain his post.

Republican Anna L. Marvin will square off against Democrat Elizabeth Fletcher in the general election. Both became the unopposed candidates of their respective parties for the position of clerk of Common Pleas Court. Catherine Hyer, who served two terms as clerk, has announced her retirement.

Republicans will assume three posts without opposition, even in November. James A. Kiger will continue to serve as prosecuting attorney, Lorie Armbrust will remain county recorder and Dr. Ralph Gebhart will continue as coroner.

All three were unopposed in the primary, and there are no Democrats vying for the offices.

McGough in trouble with votes

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — Kent McGough, incumbent Republican committeeman in the 4th Congressional District, was trailing challenger Robert Huffman Tuesday in a race that could cost McGough his post as state Republican chairman.

With 3 of 9 counties in the district completing the vote count in the GOP primary, Huffman was leading by 2,250 votes.

A Republican state committee rule forbids the state chairman from holding the chairmanship unless he is a member of the state committee. But that rule could be changed under pressure from Gov. James A. Rhodes who is a strong McGough supporter. Huffman is a member of the Reagan camp, while the governor and McGough endorsed Ford nearly a year ago.

McGough also is chairman of the Republican National Convention rules committee, but the outcome of the 4th District election will not affect that post.

Observers of the race say it was an unusual one because McGough campaigned, a rare practice for the Republican committee position.

Stationary high pressure in the mid Mississippi Valley continued to influence Ohio's weather today and is expected to do so for a few more days.

Daytime will be sunny and warm and nights partly cloudy and mild.

Temperatures this afternoon were to be in the 80s, with readings Thursday expected to be in the upper 80s and the low 90s, readings more normal for mid summer.

Fair Friday with a chance of showers Saturday or Sunday.

Hays heads back for Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — Armed with a vote of confidence from Democrats in his Ohio district, Wayne Hays returns to Washington to face demands that he step aside as chairman of the House Administration Committee pending investigation of the payroll sex scandal.

Hays said last weekend that he is considering such a move, but sources close to the committee said Tuesday that he had sent back no word of his final decision.

Hays won nomination for reelection Tuesday, but his traditional opponent, Nick Karnick doubled his previous best against Hays with about 40 per cent of the total vote.

On the basis of early returns, Hays said: "According to the circumstances and the pressure I have been under, it is gratifying."

Hays announced last week he will step out as chairman of a House Democratic campaign committee pending investigation of the charges by Elizabeth Ray that she was paid $14,000 a year as a committee secretary primarily to be his mistress.

Hays told reporters Sunday that some members of the administration committee think a temporary surrender of that chairmanship "is a gesture I ought to make and (that) I'll come back."

His spokeswoman, Carol Clawson, has said the committee will meet this week, but members were told that a meeting scheduled for today was likely to be postponed.

The full House Democratic Caucus is scheduled to meet next Wednesday on a resolution to force Hays to step aside as Administration chairman.

Service Notes

Staff Sergeant Donald Medley, stationed at Fort Devens, Mass., since February, was number one in his class of 27, a Distinguished Graduate, recently, SSG of the son of Mrs. Robert Burke, 3944 CCC Highway-E, and Cecil Medley of Good Hope. SSGT Medley, his wife, Maureen, and children, Dawn and Dustin, were present for the ceremony. He is at the United States Army Security Agency Training Center and School, Fort Devens.

Army Private James L. Cox, son of Mrs. Carol A. Cox, Rt. 1, Jeffersonville, was assigned on April 26 to the 101st Airborne Division at Ft. Campbell, Ky.

The private, a rifleman with Battery C, 1st Battalion of the division's 321st Field Artillery, entered the Army in November 1975, completed basic training at Ft. Dix, N.J., and was last stationed at Ft. Sill, Okla.

Staff Sergeant Galen D. Haines, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter D. Haines of 913 Yeoman St., has graduated from the Tactical Air Command Non-commissioned Officer Leadership School at Bergstrom AFB, Tex.

The sergeant, who was trained in military management and supervision, is a radio relay equipment technician at Bergstrom.

Sergeant Haines is a 1965 graduate of Washington High School.

Navy Data Systems Technician Third Class Phillip K. Ravenscraft, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Ravenscraft of 1033 McClain Ave., Greenfield, is participating in Operation "Solid Shield '76" aboard the guided missile destroyer USS Farragut, homeported in Norfolk, Va.

The two-week joint exercise off the North Carolina and Georgia coasts involves 36 ships and more than 50,000 men and women from all branches of the Armed Forces.

The exercise will include air, surface and submarine operations and an amphibious assault. It is designed to test command and control plans and to provide training in the procedures for emergency evacuation of non-combatants from a simulated battle zone.

A former student of McClain High School, he joined the Navy in December 1973.

Navy Airman Apprentice Kenneth E. Underwood, 22, son of Mr. Roy C. Underwood and Mrs. Mary L. Underwood of 429 Fifth St., has reported for duty aboard the aircraft carrier USS Independence, homeported in Norfolk, Va.

A 1973 graduate of Washington Senior High School, he joined the Navy in November 1975.

U.S. fears Syria caught in Lebanon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is increasingly apprehensive over the disintegrating military outlook in Lebanon and is worried that Syria will not be able to control the situation resulting from its invasion of the war-torn nation.

Syria has sent 3,000 new troops into Lebanon since the weekend, increasing its total force there to just under 10,000. U.S. officials attribute the jump to the failure of the original contingent to restore order between warring Lebanese Christian and Moslem factions.

However, a ranking State Department official says Syrian troops have had their noses bloodied by the Moslem leftists in the fighting over the past day or two in spite of the reinforcements and the use of tanks and air power.

This means that Syria now faces a serious loss of face unless it overcomes the opposition. The U.S. sources say Syrian President Hafiz Assad is therefore more likely to get drawn deeper into the situation.

The officials add that Syria did not inform the United States in advance of its troop increase and has not told Washington of its final intentions in Lebanon.

They say they have no clear idea of what Syria is doing with its large-scale intervention, although one policy maker said he tends to believe that Assad means it when he asserts his troops will withdraw once a cease-fire is operational and political stability is achieved.

Other sources believe Assad has intervened in order to install a government in Beirut that will be friendly to him and offset radical Arab forces that he cannot control.

The very fact that there are so many opinions by American experts exemplifies the uncertainty in Washington and underlines the lack of solid information available to policy makers.

It is this confusion that has created apprehension in U.S. circles and has caused officials to back away from their cautious optimism of a week ago.

They deny that the United States ever approved Syria's intervention, either directly or tacitly.

Dog show slated Sunday

The Paint Valley Kennel Club Inc., has announced that a pure bred dog show will take place at noon Sunday at the Fayette County Fairgrounds. There will be no admission charge to spectators.

Ribbons for first through fourth place winners will be awarded to the top finishers in six different dog categories: sporting, hounds, working, terrier, toy, and non sporting. Ribbons and trophies will be presented to the puppy and senior winners of the bim classification.

The conformation classes will feature judging of puppies aged two to four months, four to six months, six to nine months, and nine to twelve months. Senior dogs will be judged separately.

A fee of $1.50 for each dog entrant received before Thursday is required. Entries taken the day of the show will cost $2. Entries may be mailed to Robert Schneider, Rt. 5, Washington C.H.

It is requested that the breed, sex, class, name, and registration number (if present) be submitted.

Atom jobs not enough

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio (AP) — President Ford's campaign endorsement of a bill promising a multibillion dollar nuclear industry for this Ohio River community wasn't enough to win him the county's vote in Tuesday's primary.

While Ford easily carried Ohio, he lost Scioto County to Ronald Reagan. The complete unofficial vote was 4,510 for Reagan to 3,182 for Ford.

During a major campaign trip to Ohio on May 26 the president announced support of the Nuclear Fuel Assurance Act which passed the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy.

If approved by Congress and signed by Ford, the government would guarantee up to $8 billion of private investment in private plants providing uranium enrichment. The federal government currently owns the nation's only three such plants.

Ford said as soon as Congress passed the bill he would ask for a $177 million appropriation for construction planning and design to enlarge a uranium enrichment facility 18 miles north of here in neighboring Pike County. That county supported Ford, 923 to 733 for Reagan.

Three incumbents lose in Assembly races

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Three "ins" were tossed out in Tuesday's primary elections for the General Assembly.

The heaviest casualty was Sen. Donald L. Woodland, D-16 Columbus, chairman of the Senate Commerce and Labor Committee.

Defeated in House primaries were Rep. William A. Kopp, D-29 Columbus, seeking a third term, and freshman Rep. John P. Brandenburg, R-20 Cincinnati.

Twenty-two other incumbents survived primary battles.

A turnover of at least 9 of the 99 House seats and 3 of 16 Senate spots to be filled is assured for the 1977-78 legislative session. Seven House members and two senators did not run for re-election.

Democrats, now holding a 59-40 House edge, have a head start toward another majority with no Republican opposition in 10 districts.

Four incumbent Democrats topping primary foes have no general election contests and four others had no primary contest or general election competition—Cleveland Democrats Thomas H. Bell, Ike Thompson and John D. Thompson Jr. and Casey C. Jones of Toledo.

Reps. Patrick Sweeney, D-6 Cleveland, and C.J. McLin, D-36 Dayton, face only independent candidates in the fall.

Democrats currently have the Senate strength, 21-12, to override vetoes by GOP Gov. James A. Rhodes and need only to add a vote to their 59-40 House advantage to make the lower chamber veto-proof.

Democratic House Speaker Vernal G. Riffe Jr. of New Boston said his forces will concentrate this fall on beating three incumbent Republicans—Paul Wingard of Stow, Richard F. Maier of Massillon and Scribner L. Fauver of Elyria—and picking up seats vacated by GOP Reps. Joseph Tulley of Mentor and John Scott of Fairborn.

Republicans won those seats with 110 to 1,697 votes in 1974.

Riffe said major Democratic efforts also will go into helping two House freshmen retain the seats they gained by slim margins two years ago—Rep. William J. Healy, D-50 Canton, and Rep. Ronald James, D-92 Proctorville. Woodland, looking for his second, four-year Senate term, lost unofficially by 935 votes to Columbus lawyer Michael Schwarzwald.

Schwarzwald, 32, accused Woodland of a conflict of interest between his lawmaking and his job as area development representative for Columbia Gas Co.

Schwarzwald will face Republican Milford S. Ferguson of Columbus.

Kopp was beaten by 2,540 votes by Les Brown, 31, a recruiter for the Communications Workers of America and former radio personality in Central Ohio.

Brandenburg, a freshman whose attendance record had slipped below 50 per cent in the 1976 legislative session, was trounced by former Rep. Thomas Pottenger, a Cincinnati lawyer.

The Hamilton County Republican party had endorsed Pottenger over Brandenburg.

Senate Health Chairman Anthony O. Calabrese, D-22 Cleveland, a legislator 24 years and former Senate Democratic leader, survived an early scare against three challengers.

In a Senate primary battle between two former U.S. representatives, incumbent Sen. Donald E. (Buz) Lukens, R-4 Middletown, defeated Walter E. Powell.

The two men had switched jobs six years ago, with Powell leaving the Ohio

Senate for a seat in Congress vacated by Lukens when Lukens ran unsuccessfully for governor. Lukens then was appointed to the Senate vacancy left by Powell and won a four-year term in 1972. Powell, meanwhile, did not try for re-election to the U.S. House in 1974.

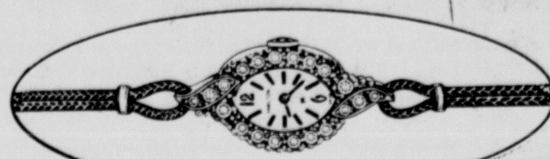

Two state senators midway through their terms won Democratic nominations for the U.S. House—Donald J. Pease of Oberlin and William F. Bowen of Cincinnati. Another midterm senator, Anthony J. Celebrezze Jr. of Cleveland, lost a bid for the U.S. House seat vacated by James V. Stanton to make the U.S. Senate race.

Two veteran Democrats from the House—Marcus Roberto of Ravenna and Kenneth Cox of Barberton—won nominations for the state Senate.

FIRST DELIVERY — Gerald J. Patronite (kneeling), executive director of the Ohio Lottery, inspects the first load of tickets, worth $1 million for the lottery's new "Instant Game" which was delivered to lottery headquarters last week. Guarding the cargo are Patrolman Robert Rogers (right) and Sgt. Louis Adoryan (left) of the University Circle Police Department.

Prizes range from $2 to $10,000

Instant lottery game set June 15

Gerald J. Patronite, executive director of the Ohio Lottery, today announced that sales for Ohio's first instant lottery game will begin on Tuesday, June 15.

For the first time Ohioans will have the opportunity to win instantly prizes ranging from $2 to $10,000 with the chance to win a million dollar grand prize in the jackpot drawing.

Players of the instant lottery must rub the gold foil from the circle, squares and prize box on the ticket. If any of the numbers in the three squares matches the number in the circle they are winners of the amount shown in the prize box: $2, $5, $500, $1000, or $10,000. If all three numbers in the squares match the number in the circle players win at least $15,000 and qualify as a finalist in the jackpot drawing for prizes of $250,000, $500,000 and the grand prize of $1,000,000. To participate in the jackpot drawing finalists must file a valid claim by a deadline to be announced. Finalists claiming after the deadline receive the minimum prize of $15,000.

Two dollar and five dollar instant winners may collect immediately from any licensed Ohio Lottery sales agent. $200, $500, $1000 and $10,000 winners and jackpot finalist must file a claim at any of the regional lottery offices located throughout the state.

Most labor pacts not inflationary

WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor contracts in the construction industry are being negotiated without the strikes and inflationary wage settlements that former Labor Secretary John Dunlop warned of six months ago.

Federal officials say the moderation is mainly due to high unemployment and competition from non-union labor.

With two-thirds of the 2,800 construction union contracts up for negotiation this year already settled, industry strike activity is at its lowest level in five years. Officials say the wage trend in contracts has been toward moderation.

Federal labor officials say the moderation is due to the high unemployment rate in the industry, which has yet to recover from the recession, and a realization among union leaders that non-union contractors are taking a larger share of the business.

"It has resulted in a bit more realistic and rational approach to bargaining," chief federal mediator

James F. Searce said Tuesday.

"There seems to be an air of accommodation at the bargaining table," he commented in an interview. "The number of strikes is way down, about half what they were last year up to this point, and indications are that the settlements are more moderate."

First-year wage settlements are averaging about 7 per cent, less than the 8.1 per cent average for 1975.

It was feared that construction unions, angered over President Ford's veto of a bill expanding picketing rights, would push for inflationary settlements that would influence bargaining in other industries.

Major contracts covering 4.5 million workers, including 500,000 in construction, expire this year. Administration economists feared that a wage explosion would endanger the economic recovery.

Dunlop, who supported the "common situs" picketing bill, predicted "unmitigated hell" in construction bargaining because of the President's veto of the picketing bill.

But with 14.1 per cent of the industry's workforce off the job, the pressure on the industry by union bargainiers is lessened. Union leaders have urged that workers vent their frustration with Ford at the polls, not the bargaining table.

Skies clear in Midwest

By The Associated Press

Skies were clear over much of the East and Midwest today.

But scattered showers and thunderstorms were reported over the Rockies, the high Plains, in eastern Washington, northern Minnesota, the upper Great Lakes, New England, and Florida.

There has been considerable cloudiness in those areas and in the Pacific coastal states and some showers in the mountains of northern California.

Near the center of the high pressure area, winds have been light and there has been little mixing of the air. As a result, haze and smoke has reduced visibility somewhat from Arkansas into southern Illinois, western Kentucky and western Tennessee. In spite of the high, a few thundershowers have persisted in the southern Appalachians.

Most of the thundershowers have been rather mild. In central Montana, Coffee Creek, 34 miles northwest of Livingston, reported three mobile homes destroyed by an evening tornado. Some locally heavy rain was reported.

Early morning temperatures ranged from 46 at Redmond, Ore., to 83 at Phoenix, Ariz.

For summer Little League program

LL fish fry nets $2,602.10

The 20th annual Little League fish fry, sponsored by the Washington C.H. Rotary Club, netted a total of $2,602.10 this year.

Don Kirk, president of the Washington C.H. Little League Association, said the $2,600 figure was a $300 increase over a year ago.

Kirk's report on the fish fry, held May 7 in the Mahan Building on the Fayette County Fairgrounds, was issued at the regular weekly luncheon meeting of the Washington C.H. Rotary Club Tuesday in the Country Club.

All proceeds from the fish fry will be used exclusively for the operation of the summer Little League baseball program in Washington C.H. and Union Township.

The fish fry has averaged between $1,900 and $2,000 annually.

Expenses include game equipment such as balls, bats, helmets and catchers gear, plus the employment of a program coordinator, umpires and scorekeepers.

There are more than 300 boys participating in the Little League program this season. There are eight major and 13 minor league teams in the local baseball program. The teams launched their summer seasons in early May.

Dale Willis was general chairman of this year's fund-raising event and Dr. James McCracken was assistant chairman. Some 90 members of the Rotary Club were engaged in the preparation and serving of food.

DURING the Rotary Club's program Tuesday, Philip H. Moseley presented a color slide travelog of trips he and his family have taken through Canada and the Eastern United States.

The travelog presented by Moseley, a Rotary Club member, included expert photography and some clever commentary.

The first portion of the program was devoted to Canada and most of the photographs were taken by Moseley as he travelled west along the Trans Canada highway.

The presentation included slides of glacier-fed Lake Louise, in Canada, which is one of the most photographed spots in the world.

Also depicted were Moseley's ride on a snowmobile on a glacier, and the many buffalo, moose, mountain goats, elk and deer which inhabit the area.

The travelog continued through Montana to Yellowstone National Park, the oldest and largest national park in the U.S.

There are 10,000 geysers in the park and each has its own individual "plumbing" system, Moseley said. The most famous is "Old Faithful" which erupts every 65 minutes.

Also included in Moseley's presentation were slides of the Grand Canyon, the Grand Teton mountains in Wyoming and the Black Hills of South Dakota. The program was concluded with pictures of the Mount Rushmore monument.

The meeting was conducted by club president William E. Williams, who also introduced the guest speaker.

Doug Wheeler, of Elmira, Canada, was a guest with Sam Marting and visiting Rotarians were Charles Pitts and Jerry Ardrey, of London, L.E. Bingham and Darrell French, of Wilmington, and Clark Miller, of Mount Sterling.

Business booming at bell foundry

LONDON (AP) — The American Bicentennial is booming business at the 550-year-old Whitechapel Bell Foundry which cast the Liberty Bell in 1752.

"You couldn't say we're swamped," says Douglas Hughes, one of the partners in the foundry, "but orders have suddenly peaked up because of the Bicentennial. It will keep us going for part of this year anyway."

Besides the six-ton Bicentennial Bell delivered in Philadelphia last week as a gift from Britain, the foundry is turning out two dozen replicas of the Liberty

Bell and thousands of scale models in various sizes.

It has completed 14 full-size, one-ton replicas and has 10 more on order for states, cities and organizations. Each takes two weeks to cast, finish and tune to the E above middle C, Hughes said.

Made of copper and tin with the original mould-making gauge, they are exact duplicates of the Liberty Bell "as it left here in 1752," Hughes said.

He stresses "as it left here" because, he says, the 18th century Yanks rather fouled up the original bell.

"People do not realize how brittle bell metal is," he said. "You can break a piece of it with a hammer in your hand because your hand prevents it from vibrating."

"There is no record of precisely what happened, but probably it was hung wrong because it cracked when it was struck."

It was recast, but "they didn't do a very good job. The two people who recast it were not bell founders; they were brass founders. They put too much brass into the new bell and it was too soft. It wouldn't ring."

TV Viewing

NEW YORK (AP) — The British Broadcasting Corp. from time to time sells its prestige shows to American public TV. So what happens when it gets the chance to buy "The Adams Chronicles," and return the fiscal favor?

It has said no dice — at least, not now — according to Robert Kotlowitz, a program executive at New York's WNET, which produced the 13-part bicentennial drama series with a whopping $6.7 million budget.

Variety magazine, the showbiz bible, last week said the BBC had a "long-running option" to buy the series about the historic Adams family of Massachusetts, "but dropped out after viewing the product."

"The BBC rebuff was a blow to WNET production prestige," he added. "I ain't so, insists Kotlowitz. He says the BBC had no option to buy the series and 'they haven't bought it for a number of reasons, none of them having to deal with the program itself."

"They have a very complicated set of problems over there," he explained, citing a severe budget crisis currently afflicting the BBC as one of three reasons the Adams series rang up a no-sale there.

"Number two is that there are severe problems in terms of English performing unions in terms of importing American-made production," he said.

He meant that the unions gripe to the BBC and the government that American-made, American-acted shows on British TV take away English jobs, a gripe American unions make about English shows on public TV here.

The third reason the BBC cited for a no-sale, he said, "is a quota system that allows the BBC to import only a very limited amount of American production" for showing on its airwaves.

The BBC here had no immediate estimate of what percentage of American programming is allowed on TV in Britain.

"The Adams Chronicles" originally was budgeted at $5.2 million. The money came from the Andrew Mellon Foundation, the Atlantic Richfield Co. and the National Endowment for the Humanities. But it went $1.5 million over budget, WNET says, because of a seven-week delay caused by a writers' strike and by script revisions made to insure historical accuracy.

Kotlowitz said he didn't know exactly how much the BBC was asked to pay for the series, but insisted "there was not an enormous amount of money involved."

"We pay in America — not only WNET but the entire public television system — about $20,000 to $30,000 an episode for BBC product we show here."

"And they (the BBC) generally pay a bit less because the size of their audience is less. And we certainly were operating within those parameters."

WNET says the series has been bought for showing in Mexico, Ireland, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Finland, Greece, Belgium and Germany so far, and that it currently is being offered to commercial TV in Britain.

Witch hunts not unknown in Ohio

By The Associated Press

Witch hunts were not unknown among the superstitious settlers on Ohio's early frontier, but one case recorded by the Ohio Historical Society ended happily, at least for the accused, Nancy Evans of Bethel in Clermont County.

The town had been founded in 1797 by Obed Denham, a native of Virginia, and when he moved to Clermont County from Kentucky he offered liberal inducements to other Kentucky families to settle there. Historians said most of the new residents were "fine, intelligent people," but also in the village were a few families who unfortunately believed in the presence of evil spirits and witches.

"The Hildebrand family was among this number; apparently it imagined itself especially under the influence of witches as the older daughters gave unmistakable evidence that they were possessed by some evil spirits," the historians said. When night approached they would scream and at times become frantic with fright. They tried numerous methods to drive away the evil spirits but all failed, and finally they accused a neighbor, Nancy Evans, of being the cause of their troubles.

At last a Justice of the Peace called on Nancy to stop troubling the afflicted family. Statutes of the Northwest Territory had made no provision for such a case and it had to be disposed of in another way. Tradition prevailed that if a witch were weighed against the Holy Bible, so great would be the overpowering influence of the Bible that a witch could never tip the beam. Accordingly, a pair of scales was constructed and all interested watched as Nancy was placed on one end of the scales and the Bible on the other.

"Nancy Evans, thou art weighed against the Bible to try thee against all

NEW YORK (AP) — At a private luncheon in the small executive dining room of a very large corporation last week the president was bemoaning the "lack of discipline" in a basic industry. The competition, he said, was cutting prices.

"But isn't that the way it should be?" he was asked.

"You can't cut your prices," he replied calmly and with certainty. "Your competition will just cut theirs. And if you cut, you won't make sufficient income to recover your investment."

Therefore, in his view, you must seek to maintain pricing discipline. You must keep order in the industry, for the common good of all those in the industry.

Most of us were brought up on the notion that prices tend to fall when demand weakens, even though we've become suspicious in recent months that the theory isn't the practice.

But, as was demonstrated in that conversation, not everyone believes the market should or can work that way, and some of them are in very powerful positions, such as the chairmanship and presidency of large companies.

"Isn't such pricing unfair to the public?" the president was asked.

They benefit too, he said. "If we cut our prices and cannot obtain a fair return on our investment, then when demand rises again we won't be in a position to meet demand and our prices will rise sharply."

Minnows helping control mosquitoes

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — If you have a pool around the yard, put some minnows in it. They probably will eat any mosquito larvae, and you will be playing a part on controlling the dangerous disease encephalitis.

Mosquito time is here, and with it comes the threat of sleeping sickness. A rather severe outbreak was recorded in Indiana last summer.

Purdue University extension entomologist Dave Matthew says, "At this time, the only effective method of controlling encephalitis is through mosquito control."

witchcraft, and diabolical practices," was the charge. Nancy won. She was heavier than the Book and from then on was relieved of all suspicions of being more than the kindly old woman who had submitted to the test to bring peace of mind to her neighbors, whom she

Price stability: asset or debit?

It is much better, he said, to maintain stability in the industry, to keep people and plants working, to avoid pricing dips and surges that throw the market into even greater chaos and threatens producers with bankruptcy.

Not enough emphasis these days is put on industry's return on equity, the chairman and chief executive officer — the top man — volunteered. "There's too much emphasis on the return on sales, but it's the return on investment that counts."

Look at those equity returns, he suggested. "A company that makes a basic product needed by mankind, like steel, gets the lowest return on equity. The producer of a frivolous item makes the biggest return, and nobody kicks."

The president corrected the chairman. "Discretionary items, not frivolous," he said. "People have every right to buy cosmetics and pay what they will for them. It's a discretionary matter, a choice defended by the Constitution."

The points were conceded, but the corporate officers were asked if some of this behavior might not be termed oligarchic and of the kind that gets a company into conflicts with the Justice Department.

One of the officers might have nodded. None said no. All were outstanding members of various communities, charitable people, busy executives who give their time to causes — concerned, dedicated, capable, accomplished, convinced.

What is wrong, they seemed to say, is the simplistic belief that the law of supply and demand is always at work or can always be made to work or is always best for the market.

Elderly man organized baseball program

Diamond in the rough

By CINDI PEARCE
Record-Herald Staff Writer

Tom C. Clark, a person concerned with juvenile delinquency, once said that he was convinced that every boy, in his heart, would rather steal second base than an automobile.

A 68-year-old man, who was born and raised in Chillicothe, and is now residing in the Margaret Clark Oakfield Convalescent Center in Washington C.H., has these same exact sentiments.

Clayton Raney spent 17 years of his life devoting his time to children, particularly boys, who wanted to play ball. Raney, who said that he's never played an organized game of sports in his life, was dissatisfied with the baseball program in Chillicothe when he returned to his hometown after a stint in Columbus. "The kids were playing ball in the streets and on small vacant lots. There was a lot of fussing and fighting because there was no organization. They needed a system of sorts," Raney said.

So he decided to do something about it. It was 1954, and he had just been declared disabled. "I became involved in the ball program because if the kids wanted to play ball then they should have a place to do so. Also, I needed something with which to occupy my time." On that day 22 years ago, Raney took a scrap of paper and a pencil, which he still has, and went out to the street where the boys were attempting to play baseball and told them to pick sides. This was just the beginning.

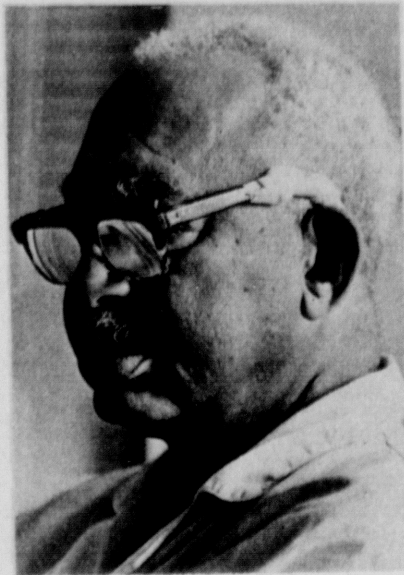

Raney, along with several interested persons, some of them whom didn't even have children of their own, organized a league which they called the Little League, unaware that the selection of this particular name was going to create problems later. "At first we played in a three cornered, pie shaped lot. The problem here was that there were surrounding yards, and when the boys would knock a ball into one of the yards, they didn't care about anything, not the hedges, not anything. They just wanted to get that ball."

Finally a woman donated four acres of ground upon Raney's request. The only conditions set were that the weeds were to be cut regularly. "In 17 years, she only came to the ballpark once," Raney said in reference to the donor.

The weeds were trimmed regularly and the children of Chillicothe attended the park with regularity. It was unofficially named the Pine Street Ball Park.

Raney's park was not your every day ball park. Not that it differed in appearance, it was what occurred there that made it unique. Raney's park wasn't used for organized ball games. "The boys would come to the Pine Street Ball Park and practice. They didn't clown or horse around and they didn't quit. We didn't have a formal team at our park, but when someone wanted to start an organized team, they would come to the park and look my boys over and then pick the one they wanted. Some would look for speed, others would look for a good arm," Raney stated.

Raney said that there were a lot of boys who were considered too young or too small to participate in the games, but he put an end to that notion. "There was one boy named Stevie and the other boys wouldn't let him play because he was too small. Well, I asked him if he wanted to play. He'd just gotten a new bike and wouldn't get off of it. That particular day, we had nine players and we needed one more so that we could have even sides. I finally convinced Stevie that he wasn't too small to play if he wanted to play. Finally, he got off of his bike and joined," Raney recalled.

The boys were often considered too young to play if they were physically small or inexperienced. "If there were four younger boys at the park, then when we picked teams, I would put two of the small boys on one team and two on the other team and then I would give orders that the ball was to be hit to them so that they could make the play," Raney said.

The fact that Raney allowed boys of varying ages to play, or practice, on the same team, and the fact that they played seven innings instead of the standard six, as is done in Little League, created a hassle. "I got this letter from a law firm in New York that said I couldn't call my league the Little League because of our rules, so we simply changed the name to the Youth League rather than compromise our rules."

When Raney first started his program, there weren't too many boys active in the sport because of the poor facilities provided by the city. "At that time, Washington C.H. had a much more advanced baseball program than did Chillicothe, but after a few years, I was able to get every imaginable piece of equipment for my field," Raney stated proudly.

The Pine Street Ball Park was operated strictly by Raney. He wouldn't tolerate disruptions. "If a boy came to the park and said 'Raney, I have to go home in 15 minutes', then I would make him declare himself before the game started. This way, everyone knew ahead of time that this boy would be leaving. If I hadn't had this rule of declaring one's self, then boys would have been coming and going all of the time and this would have been very disruptive."

Raney, who said that his continuing participation in the Pine Street Ball Park until the time of his stroke in 1971, was because he just kept wanting to make ballplayers, feels that any organized activity is good for a child. "It teaches them how to get along with others and the importance of being on time. My boys learned to listen when given instructions" Raney said. He added, "I always kept in contact with the parents and cooperated with them."

Many of the boys who played at Raney's park are now "professionals" in their respective fields. Raney has several scrapbooks filled with pictures of those he supervised and he has a passel of letters from these boys and their parents who still write to him.

When asked what he thought about girls playing ball, Raney answered emphatically, "If I'd had my way, the girls would have been involved in sports a long time ago. Some girls did play at my park and they were pretty good. The boys didn't want them to participate and they would come to me and say that they were going to quit if I allowed the girls to play. Well, I told them that they'd just have to quit then. The boys would get embarrassed when the girls would catch the ball, make the play, and get them out. You see, they were taught that girls just weren't supposed to do things like that." He added that the bigger the boys got, the sooner they noticed girls and automobiles and they would be gone from the park forever.

Raney is a Cincinnati Reds fan, but said what he'd really like to see is the Reds win the National League and the Cleveland Indians win the American League. "I just like to see a man make a good play. I don't care which team he's on."

Saying that he taught his boys not to get mad and throw fits, Raney said that he never once refused to let anyone play ball at his park. "If someone didn't have a glove, then I'd get one for him."

Raney's advice to young ballplayers is, "Get an education first, baseball second because any play in sports could be your last. At least get a high school education and then you'll always have something to fall back on."

When it became essential that the ball park have a telephone, Raney was the person sent out to round one up. He knew of a man, who could get that phone for him, and he also knew that this man was especially fond of antiques. "I went to see this man and I talked antiques. Ten minutes later we had our phone."

Noticing that kids now, more than ever, are becoming involved in diverse activities, Raney said that he thinks it's important for a child to do something constructive rather than just run wild.

Raney is presently learning how to play checkers and he reads some. He likes to play cards, but he has curtailed one of his other favorite past times: letter writing. "When the stamps went

Committee races decided

There were only two races for seats for county central committee posts (both on the Democratic ticket) at Tuesday's primary election.

All other central committee candidates, both Democratic and Republican, were elected without opposition in 42 precincts.

In the tightest race, Mrs. Emmett (Aileen) Campbell, 783 McLean St., defeated veteran committeeman Donald P. Foster, 954 Old Chillicothe Road, by a 28-24 margin in precinct C of the city's fourth ward.

Foster had served on the county central committee for the past 14 years.

In the only other race, Mrs. Hubert (Jane) Ferneau, 3558 Bush Road, topped Elmer Hager, 2680 U.S. 22-E, by a margin of 10 votes (25-15) in the West Precinct of Union Township.

Mrs. Ferneau is presently serving as the committeewoman

JANE FERNEAU

in the precinct, while Hager, a Union Township farmer, had served previously as a committeeman in Wayne Township.

Water seepage dam failure cause

WASHINGTON (AP) — Water seeping past concrete barriers that lined Idaho's Teton dam may have caused the dam's disastrous collapse last Saturday, a government spokesman says.

The collapse, as the earthen dam's reservoir was being filled for the first time, sent a flood racing down the Teton River, killing at least nine persons and destroying homes and farms.

With the disaster under investigation in Congress and by government scientists, a spokesman for the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation said attention was centering on signs that water seepage first began eating a hole into the base of the downstream, "dry" side of the 307-foot-high dam, rather than the upstream side where its new 17-mile reservoir was half full and still rising.

But the spokesman said investigators did not know how the water might have reached that area on the face of the dam. The $55-million structure was completed last December after being authorized in 1964 for flood control and irrigation.

The spokesman said bureau experts speculated that once the seepage washed a channel through to the reservoir side, the high-pressure reservoir water began pouring through, rapidly enlarging the break until the dam burst.

The pressure of water at the base of a dam can be enormous; a water depth of 100 feet exerts a pressure of some 6,240 pounds — more than three tons — per square foot.

Explaining the current theory of the dam's collapse, the bureau spokesman said engineers knew they could not build a successful earthen dam without protecting it against direct water seepage through its foundation and its anchor points in the canyon walls.

To prevent such seepage, he said, they dug trenches into the riverbed and into the canyon walls and lined them with concrete.

Water which might have flowed through natural channels across those areas then was blocked and forced to detour underground around the ends of those barricades, called "grouts." These grouts extended beyond each end of the dam to divert underground water away from the dam.

Metzenbaum challenges Taft

CLEVELAND (AP) — Democrat Howard Metzenbaum claimed his party's nomination for the U.S. Senate here early today and immediately hurled the gauntlet at incumbent Sen. Robert Taft, R-Ohio.

"In 1970 I ran against Bob Taft, who was trading on his father's record, which was a good one," Metzenbaum said. "In 1976, Bob Taft has got to run on his own record, which is not a good one."

Metzenbaum told his cheering campaign workers that the Democrats have two objectives in 1976: "send Gerald Ford back to Grand Rapids and to send Bob Taft back to Cincinnati."

He claimed victory in Tuesday's Democratic primary at the stroke of midnight. Rep. James Stanton of Cleveland, his nearest challenger, called moments later and offered his congratulations to Metzenbaum, a wealthy Cleveland attorney who was appointed to the Senate in 1973 to fill the seat vacated by William Saxbe. He was defeated by Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, in the May 1974 Democratic primary in his bid for a full six-year term.

Metzenbaum appeared with his wife and family at his headquarters in a downtown hotel. He told his supporters they had helped him win "a tremendous victory from all appearances." He then called for the Democrats to unite statewide and help him defeat Taft in November.

"I think we're going to make it," he said as the band struck up "Happy Days are here again."

Past winners exemplify Christman Award tradition

In the spring of 1969, The Record-Herald instituted an award with the help of the Washington C.H. Kiwanis Club which was to single out Fayette County's most outstanding senior in terms of athletic ability, scholastic aptitude and leadership qualities.

The award, which was for two years known as the Record-Herald Award before being changed to the Clarence A. Christman Jr. Award in honor of the late city manager, went to Donald Bennett.

Seven "athlete-scholar-leader" awards have been handed out since Bennett was honored with the first. He was not only the first recipient, but he was a classic representative of what the award stands for. In fact, he still is.

Donald Bennett will graduate from Ohio State University Friday with a Juris Doctorate—law degree for the unenglightened.

It concludes nearly 20 years of schooling by the former Bloomingburg resident, who earned respect as an athlete, scholar and leader at Miami Trace High School.

While at Miami Trace, Bennett participated in basketball, winning honorable mention all-OHio honors his senior year while playing for the late Delbert Mowery.

Mowery had nothing but praise for his candidate at the first awards' ceremony. He also forshadowed the heights Bennett's ability and desire would be able to reach.

"Donald is truly an athlete, scholar, leader and sportsman in every sense. He brings great credit to himself, his family, school and community. Don's future is bright for his ability is endless and his desire and determination are untiring," Mowery said.

After graduating from Miami Trace, Bennett attended Defiance College. He played basketball for two years, but most of his time was devoted to his studies.

In 1973, he graduated from Defiance with a Bachelor of Science degree in political science cum laude (with honors). He was also presented the college's highest award, the Pilgrim Medal. The award commemorates "the Pilgrim qualities of reliance in self, pride in work, courage in conscience, strength in education and faith in god." Such notables as Pearl Buck, President Dwight Eisenhower and Jackie Robinson have also been presented with the award.

Members of the committee which selected Bennett for the Pilgrim Medal explained that he showed the ability to apply his education to all aspects of his life and that he has the potential to continue this in the future.

After Bennett receives his law degree and gets his bar exam results back, he will become a member of the United States Navy Judge Adjunct General Legal Corps. It's a three-year hitch, and to Bennett, the son of Mrs. Lester Sanders of Bloomingburg, it's another challenge.

Bennett is not the only Christman Award winner furthering his career in the spirit of the annual honor.

Tom Gifford and his brother Glenn have both won the award. Tom is now teaching at Edgewood Middle School in Sevinmough, Ohio. He teaches health and physical education while coaching football, basketball and track.

Glenn is a senior at Ohio Northern University majoring in engineering. Jeff Blake, the 1971 Christman winner, is now living in Dayton and he works for the Connecticut Mutual Insurance Co. He has been married for one and a half years and graduated from Wittenberg University where he started at tight end his senior and junior years.

Bill Junk, graduated from Ohio Wesleyan College with honors this spring. He furthered his golf career at the college and plans to enter graduate school in the fall.

Chuck Wilson is working at Fayette Memorial Hospital and plans to resume his college studies at Southern State College in Wilmington after a stint at the U.S. Naval Academy.

Jeff Smithson, who attends Morehead State University, was on hand to present this year's award winner, David Thompson, with the ebony plaque at the eighth Clarence A. Christman Awards banquet.

Bucs understand 'MVP' title

Morgan shows his wares

By KEN RAPPOPORT

AP Sports Writer

The "MVP" in Joe Morgan's credits not only stands for "Most Valuable Player" — but "Most Versatile Player" as well.

The Cincinnati second baseman likes to brag that he can beat you any number of ways — and Tuesday night, he did it the easy way with two home run swings and a sacrifice fly.

"I don't think there are many things out there I can't do," said Morgan after his three RBI led the Reds to a 10-5 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates, "and there are a heck of a lot of things you can do."

Morgan, who won the MVP Award last year while leading the Reds to a World Series victory, is hitting the ball with more authority this season. His two shots Tuesday night gave him four in two nights and 11 for the season, tying him with George Foster for the lead on the Reds.

Tri-county league

Good Hope blasted Jackson, 26-3, in Tri-County little league action Tuesday.

Bill Dennis took the win pitching three innings and giving up one hit while striking out eight.

Bobby Redman and Mike Souther each doubled for Good Hope.

In other National League action, the Atlanta Braves beat the Chicago Cubs 7-3; the Houston Astros blanked the St. Louis Cardinals 2-0; the San Diego Padres defeated the New York Mets 3-0; the Philadelphia Phillies routed the Los Angeles Dodgers 14-2 and the Montreal Expos ripped the San Francisco Giants 9-4.

Cincinnati rookie Santo Alcala, 6-1, had a shutout until giving up three runs in the seventh inning and bowing to relief help from Fred Norman.

The Reds jumped on Pittsburgh starter Jim Rooker for four runs in the first inning with the aid of leadoff doubles by Pete Rose and Griffey, three walks and a two-run single by Dave Concepcion.

Braves 7, Cubs 3

Jerry Royster hammered a two-run

homer and Rod Gilbreath had four hits including a triple and a double to lead Atlanta over Chicago. The triumph was the fifth straight for the rejuvenated Braves while the Cubs lost their fifth in a row.

Phil Niekro, 4-4, scattered eight hits, including a solo homer by Bill Madlock, before being replaced by Adrian Devine with two outs in the ninth.

Astros 2, Cardinals 0

Veteran Larry Dierker fired a five-hitter for his 100th career complete game and scored two runs in leading Houston over St. Louis. Dierker, 6-5, outduelled St. Louis right-hander Bob Forsch in going the distance for only the first time this season. Forsch, 1-2, allowed merely four hits over six innings.

Padres 3, Mets 0

hurled his third shutout in four starts since being called up from the minor leagues last month to spark San Diego over New York.

Phillies 14, Dodgers 2

Bob Boone knocked in two runs in a six-run fifth inning to help Philadelphia rout Los Angeles. The victory, the Phillies' 17th in 21 games on the road, lifted them 7½ games over Pittsburgh in the National League East.

Expos 9, Giants 4

Larry Parrish scored three runs and knocked in a pair with a double and two singles as Montreal capitalized on five San Francisco errors to beat the Giants. Veteran left-hander Woody Fryman, 7-3, scattered 12 hits before getting ninth-inning relief help and the Expos chased rookie Rob Dressler, 1-3, with four runs in the fourth for a 6-1 lead.

Peterson loses in Ohio, but wins in new jersey

By HOWARD SMITH

AP Sports Writer

Fritz Peterson couldn't win in Ohio but new jersey was just the ticket. Actually it wasn't a new jersey. It belonged to Nelson Briles.

Peterson wasn't in any primaries running for president. If anything, he was running for his life after going winless in the first two months of the baseball season in Cleveland.

The Indians dealt him to Texas and Tuesday night he made his first start for the Rangers. He made it in disguise, wearing Briles' jersey because his own had been lost en route from Texas to Baltimore.

Peterson got relief help from Steve Foucault in the eighth inning and beat the slumping Orioles 6-3 for his first victory in four decisions. And afterwards, the Rangers ignored him and congratulated Briles on the victory.

"I felt strong. I could have gone all night," said Briles. "I didn't feel like I pitched."

Elsewhere in the American League, Detroit downed Kansas City 3-1, the New York Yankees beat California 4-2, Oakland edged Boston 6-5, Milwaukee blanked Chicago 2-0 and Minnesota clipped Cleveland 3-1.

Gene Clines drove in two runs for Texas and Jim Sundberg and Jeff Burroughs doubled home one each as the Rangers closed to within 1½ games of front-running Kansas City in the AL East.

Doyle Alexander, 3-3, took the loss, the eighth defeat in the last 10 games for the Bad News Birds.

And there was more bad news for Baltimore. Slugger Reggie Jackson has a possible cracked bone in his right wrist and could be lost to the club for an extended period.

Tigers 3, Royals 1

Lefty Dave Roberts tossed a seven-hitter to up his record to 5-4 for Detroit. Jason Thompson clubbed a two-run homer and Rusty Staub had an RBI single for the Tigers. Hal McRae, who singled in the lone Kansas City run, had three hits to raise his league-leading average to .356.

Yankees 4, Angels 2

Dock Ellis, 5-4, broke a personal four-game winning streak with a five-hitter for New York. Chris Chambliss drove in two runs with a first-inning triple off Gary Ross, 3-7, and then scored on Craig Nettles' single. Nettles added a solo homer in the seventh.

A's 6, Red Sox 5

Gene Tenace smacked a pair of home runs and drove in three runs for Oakland. Pinch-hitter Ken McMullen singled and pinch-runner Larry Lintz stole second, took third on an error and scored on Bill North's single to put the A's on top for good in the eighth.

Softball league

F.O.E. defeated Duff's Chevrolet 6-3. Smith was the losing pitcher and Hatfield was the winning pitcher.

In the second game, the Cobras defeated Halliday's Elites 13-3. Haley was the winning pitcher for the Cobras while Tate took the loss.

In the B division, Thompson transfer set back Clark Cardinals 23-15. For Thompson, two home runs apiece were scored by Brenda Cupp and Michelle Logan. Crystal Bell, Connie Summers, Regina Chobert, and Dinah Dean also homered.

Danny Reece signs

CINCINNATI (AP) — Third-round draft choice Danny Reece, a safety and kick return specialist from Southern California, has signed a contract with the Cincinnati Bengals of the National Football League.

The 22-year-old Reece started three years for Southern California and ranked second in punt returns in the National Collegiate Athletic Association last season with 26 for 409 yards.

Also eyes pro tennis career

Lucas top choice in draft

NEW YORK (AP) — Can John Lucas find happiness on both the basketball and tennis courts?

He's going to try. Lucas, a college All-American in both tennis and basketball, was the No. 1 pick in Tuesday's National Basketball Association draft, by the Houston Rockets.

After quickly signing a five-year, no-cut contract for a reported $850,000 with the Rockets, the 6-foot-4 Lucas said he also was negotiating with a franchise in World Team Tennis and probably would sign with a WTT member — which he did not identify — next week.

"Eye-hand coordination is the most important factor in both sports," said Lucas, who reached the third round of the recent NCAA tennis tournament at Corpus Christi, Tex. "The footwork in tennis also helps me as a guard in basketball."

"But right now, my primary concern is playing basketball," added Lucas, who averaged 18.3 points a game in four years as a starter at Maryland.

The Rockets, operating under new Coach Tom Nissalke, acquired the No. 1 draft on Monday by trading center Joe Meriweather, guard Gus Bailey and their first-round pick to Atlanta for center Dwight Jones and the Hawks' top choice.

The Rockets and the other teams, meanwhile, chose 175 other players in the 10-round draft which lasted 2 hours, 5 minutes.

Four of them were from Indiana's national champions. All-American forward Scott May, the College Player of the Year, was the No. 2 pick, by the Chicago Bulls. Two others, guards Quinn Buckner and Bobby Wilkerson, also were drafted on the first round. Buckner, like May a member of the U.S. Olympic team, was selected by the Milwaukee Bucks, and Wilkerson went to the Seattle SuperSonics.

Indiana forward Tom Abernethy was chosen on the third round, by the Los Angeles Lakers.

The only starting member of Indiana's NCAA winners to avoid the draft was All-American center Kent Benson, a junior.

The other 1976 Associated Press All-Americans, forwards Adrian Dantley of Notre Dame and Phil Sellers of Rutgers, were high picks in the draft.

Girton tops Willis in BRL

Girton's pounded out 16 hits to push 12 runs across the plate and to give Wendell Caulley his second win of the season in Tuesday's Babe Ruth League action.

The Medics were on the losing end of the 16-hit barrage which was capped off by three home runs.

The two teams exchanged three runs in the first frame with the Medics scoring on four consecutive singles and a Girton's error in the top of the frame. Girton's came back with three runs on Devik Hargo's double and singles by Bill Hanners and Shawn Riley.

After the three run first, Caulley settled down and scattered five hits the rest of the way. One however, was a solo homer by Joe Smith in the top of the third.

Shawn Riley opened the Girton third with a solo shot over the leftfield wall. His homer was followed by four singles as Girtons took a 7-4 lead.

In the fourth, Larry Brickles came off the bench and blasted a two-run, pinch-hit homer to increase the Girton lead.

Shane Riley's solo homer over the centerfield wall capped a three-run Girton sixth.

Steve Pritchett took the loss for the Medics who were led offensively by Dave Creamer with three hits and Joe Smith with two safeties.

Shane Riley went four for five from the plate while Shawn Riley drove in four runs for Girtons.

In Babe Ruth minor league action on Saturday, Good Hope topped Craigs 18-1 behind booming bats and the one-hit pitching of Mike Jinks.

Five go in first round

Ohioans among baseball draftees

By The Associated Press

Five Ohio high school stars were selected Tuesday in the first round of major league baseball's free agent draft.

Ken Smith, a left fielder who has hit a .375 clip during his career at Youngstown East, was the third player taken by the pros, grabbed by the Atlanta Braves.

Smith, an honor student, president of his class and speedster on the playing field, said he was pleased he was drafted by the Braves because he believes it is a team with which he has a chance of advancing rapidly.

Tim Glass, a catcher at Springfield South, was the 14th player to be picked in the draft. Described by his coach, John Blackwood, as a player "who can do more things than any boy I've ever had," Glass was chosen by the Cleveland Indians.

Glass, who hit .459 this season and also lettered in football, basketball and track, was elated over having been selected by the Indians.

"Imagine playing this close to home," he exclaimed. "I never thought Cleveland, of all the teams, would be drafting me — never dreamed it."

Other Ohio schoolboys drafted in the first round Tuesday were Leon Durham, an infielder-pitcher at Cincinnati Woodward, by the St. Louis Cardinals; Pat Tabler, an outfielder at Cincinnati McNicholas, by the New York Yankees, and Jeffrey Kraus, an infielder for Cincinnati Colerain, by the Philadelphia Phillies.

Other Ohioans selected in the draft included: Thomas Hawk, pitcher from Kettering, by San Francisco in the second round.

Leonard Matuszek, outfielder at University of Toledo, by Philadelphia in the fifth round.

Jerome Ahlert of Cincinnati, an infielder, by San Francisco in the 12th round.

Don Davison, an outfielder at Kitts Hill in Lawrence County, by Pittsburgh in the 12th round.

Michael Sullivan of Cincinnati, a pitcher, by Montreal in the 14th round.

Reds concentrate on hurlers

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds have looked to the future development of their pitching staff during this year's baseball free agent draft.

The world champions Tuesday picked seven pitchers in the first 15 rounds, including their first choice, Mark King, from Owensboro, Ky.

"This has to be the greatest day of my life," said King after learning he had been selected by the Reds.

The 18-year-old star from Owensboro High School had a record of 183 strikeouts in 91 innings and an earned run average of 0.86 going into the state high school championship last week. "I hope I calm down enough to make it and do a good job," said the young right-hander.

The teenager said he'd been told the Reds would contact him shortly about signing with them and "I'm ready to accept any reasonable offer."

Ballwin, Mo., as their third choice; Mark Breitenbach, a right-hander from Glenshaw, Pa., as their fifth selection; William Dawley, a righty from Lisbon, Conn., seventh; Ronald Stryker, a right-hander, from Cantonment, Fla., tenth; Derek Tatsuno, a left-hander from Alea, Hawaii, 11th; and Robert Mayer, from Somerset, Pa., 13th.

The Reds announced they had signed their No. 2 selection, outfielder Paul Householder, from North Haven Conn. Reds officials described him as an "aggressive outfielder with fine speed and a great arm. At North Haven High School this spring, Householder hit .385 with 29 stolen bases in 19 games.

Householder rejected 32 college football scholarship offers and 22 college baseball scholarships to sign with the Reds.

Cincinnati signed three other outfielders: Steven Renfro, from Lilburn, Ga., their sixth choice; Alfred Welch, from Seminole, Fla., 11th; and Paul Herring, from Hallettsville, Tenn., 15th.

Other Reds selections included Mark Bingham, a first and third baseman from Hastings, N.Y.; Michael Kopsky, a third baseman from St. Louis; and two catchers, Peter Rowe, from Corvallis, Ore., and Thomas Norko, from Shelton, Conn.

Jeff youth league

The Jeff Royal Blues got nine runs in the fifth inning and breezed to a 12-3, win over Al's Shell Tuesday in Jeffersonville little league action.

Tracy Tyree was the winning pitcher and Tom Roberts took the loss.

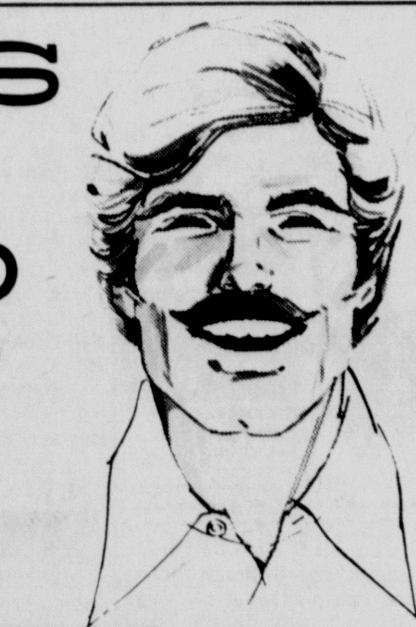

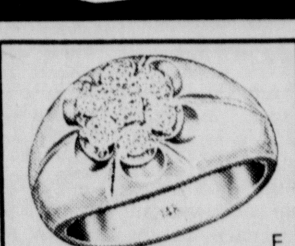

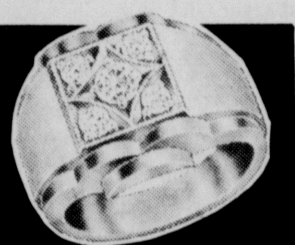

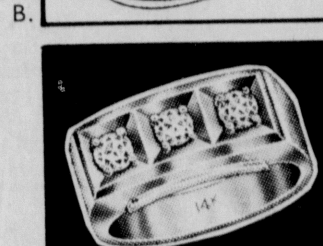

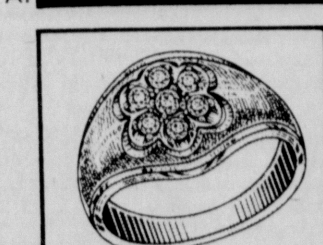

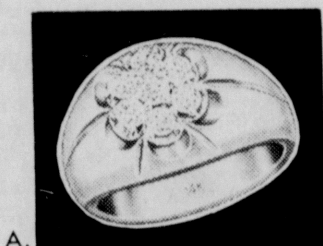

In the other league contest Tuesday, Jeff Fire Department topped Fayette County Bank, 12-3. Dwight Gordon took the win and David Perrill was tagged with the loss.

Lowell Miller led the winners in hitting two doubles and a single while Perrill paced the losers with a double and a single.

A Former Chef For DeGaulle Displays Skill

By TOM HOGE

AP Newsfeatures Writer
The late Paul Poirat was widely known as the French King of Fashion in his heyday before World War II. But it took a former chef for Charles de Gaulle to show me that Poirat was also a cook of formidable talent.

I made the discovery at a luncheon given as a curtain raiser for a Homage to Poirat fashion show. Featuring some 80 gowns designed by Poirat, the show was scheduled at New York's Fashion Institute of Technology (FIT). Climax of the affair was to be a banquet for 800 persons featuring Poirat's culinary creations adapted by French-born Jacques Pepin.

The preview luncheon was cooked by Pepin, who did ample justice to the dishes taken from Poirat's cookbook entitled "107 Recettes ou Curiosites Culinaires." This should not have surprised me, considering the fact that Pepin had presided over the kitchens of two French government chiefs and finally a chief of state; the late De Gaulle. As president of France, "Le Grand Charles" may have intimidated his cabinet ministers and aides, but Pepin found him a man of simple tastes, punctual habits and easy to please.

"For dinner, the president was content with a dish of soup, some poached fish and a piece of fruit," said Pepin. "But he did insist that others be as prompt as he was. If he scheduled a formal luncheon at 12:30 p.m. and the guest of honor failed to show up on time, De Gaulle would go on and eat without him."

Pepin's preview luncheon led off with a chilled cream of eggplant soup spiced with curry powder and herbs and garnished with strips of eggplant and carrots. It could best be described as a vichyssoise with a kicker.

This was followed by chicken in a cream sauce whose unique taste I learned was due in part to the addition of a dollop of Scotch whisky.

The meal was accompanied by a Cotes-du-Rhone wine that was velvet-soft and had a most pleasant taste.

Finally we were served a frozen brandy-orange soufflé that left everyone in a euphoric state. Here is the recipe, which involves little cooking.
5 ounces granulated sugar
1½ ounces water
Grated rind of 1 medium orange
1 pint heavy cream, whipped
10 ladyfingers splashed with cognac
1 ounce cognac
Beat egg yolks and set aside. Boil sugar, water and orange rind for 3 minutes and set aside. Whip cream till it peaks slightly. Start beating egg yolks, adding syrup and cognac slowly. When eggs are frothy and take on a lemony color, fold in cream. Pour 1-3rd of mix into glass soufflé dish. Place ½ ladyfingers on top and add another third of mixture. Add remaining ladyfingers and refrigerate till slightly set. Place wax paper collar on soufflé dish and secure with string. Add remaining mixture and place in freezer compartment till firm. To serve remove collar and, if desired, add crumbled macaroons dusted with cocoa. Serves 10.

A Horrible Nightmare

Contract: Seven Diamonds. North-South vulnerable.

Dear Mr. Becker: I suffer from nightmares — bridge nightmares, that is. I have this recurring dream where I hold the West hand and find myself on lead against seven diamonds.

I always lead a trump and South draws four rounds of trumps. I discard a club on the third trump lead, and so does dummy, but on the next lead I run into a serious problem.

Sometimes I discard the eight of hearts. When I do, South plays a heart to the ace and ruffs a heart, establishing the J-10 as tricks. He then plays the K-A of spades and cashes dummy's two high hearts, whereupon I get squeezed and declarer makes the rest of the tricks — to the tune of 2,440 points.

Sometimes I discard a spade at trick four. When I do, South cashes the K-A of spades and ruffs a spade, establishing two spade tricks in dummy. He then plays a heart to dummy's ace and cashes the 6-5 of spades. I discard a heart on the fourth round of spades, but on the fifth spade I'm again hopelessly squeezed. Whether I discard my king of hearts or a club from the K-Q, South makes the rest of the tricks.

Sometimes I discard the queen of clubs at trick four, hoping declarer won't realize I've unguarded the king. But South is a real smart cookie and invariably sees through my scheme. He nails the king and I wind up shelling out the same 2,440 points.

Now the fact is I can't afford to lose that many points on one deal — even though the stakes are nominal and the whole thing's only a dream — but I was wondering whether you can suggest any way for me to escape from this awful dilemma. I would appreciate it very much. Cordially yours, Constant Reader.

Dear C.R.: Happy to oblige. The next time this terrible situation arises, I suggest that you ask for a new deal. You have only 12 cards! Cordially yours, BJB.

Workers running magnesium plant

ADDY, Wash. (AP) — "I don't think I'll ever get to the point of hating to come to work in the morning," says Chuck Taylor, who works in a magnesium plant — one where there are no bosses breathing down workers' necks.

Taylor, who taught junior high school for 12 years, is one of 280 employees involved in an Aluminum Company of America experiment in worker self-government. The new Northwest Alloys, Inc., plant here has no foremen, no unions, and is run by worker "teams" who decide what has to be done and do it.

"My father-in-law worked at Kaiser. It was the same thing every day. Here, if you have any ability at all you can use it," Taylor said.

Social conscience was not necessarily what prompted the experiment, which is also being tried in a Pennsylvania coal mine, a Tennessee auto-parts plant and by West German companies.

"It's for the primary purpose of improving production," Carl Hudson, the Addy plant's personnel manager, said.

In its first five months of operation, the plant's turnover rate has been low and absenteeism is running a low 1 percent. But it's too soon to tell if the experiment is working.

"I'd say three to five years is the shakedown period," Hudson said.

The plant's managers caution that the method might not work everywhere. Workers were hand-picked from about 5,000 applicants — only those willing to rotate assignments, doing both skilled and menial work, were hired.

"We were looking for people who would feel comfortable in an unstructured situation, in small groups," said Hudson. "We turned down highly skilled electricians, with 30 years' experience, who weren't interested in learning to be mechanics."

The 7-to-12-member teams hash out work assignments and deal with personality problems, right down to hiring and firing, all on company time.

Darla Ferry, whose seven male teammates elected her team coordinator, has been trained in group problem-solving.

"If there is a problem, you get it straightened out before it gets serious. So it's really relaxing," she said. Perhaps the system is hardest on the bosses.

Bill Kelly, supervisor of mining and crushing operations, said it has taken him months to realize that worker teams make some decisions better than he would, some worse, but "on the balance the result is about the same."

Metzenbaum gets nod

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Howard M. Metzenbaum, capitalizing on consumer-oriented issues and his opponent's relative obscurity, scored a lopsided victory over Rep. James V. Stanton on Tuesday to gain the Democratic Senate nomination.

With the Ohio primary vote count 66 per cent complete, Metzenbaum had 52 per cent of the vote. He led by 342,379 to Stanton's 248,898. James D. Nolan had 39,404 votes and Richard B. Kay polled 22,612.

"We talked about jobs, the rising cost of labor, the need for health care and the vacuum of leadership," Metzenbaum, 59, said in an early victory statement in Cleveland. "The people listened to what we said."

For the 44-year-old Stanton, the stakes were high. Preliminary figures indicate he outspent Metzenbaum, a millionaire, in an unsuccessful media effort to make himself known to voters outside his Cleveland congressional district. He also gave up a career in Congress where had served three terms representing the 20th District.

"It's important for the Democratic Party to defeat Robert Taft and I'll campaign for you in November," he told Metzenbaum in conceding.

During the last two weeks, Stanton went off the offensive, attacking Metzenbaum for past tax difficulties, his labor record, and alleged failure to comply with a financial disclosure rule in the Senate. Metzenbaum, who served 11 months in the Senate by appointment in 1974, ignored the onslaught for the most part, and clung to a low key campaign style. The confident Metzenbaum was a marked contrast to the feisty activist who fought for recognition himself in 1970 against Sen. Robert Taft Jr. and again in 1974 against former astronaut John Glenn. He lost both times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Rep. Wayne Hays came through bloodied but unbowed as did other incumbents who were challenged Tuesday in Ohio's congressional primary.

Republican Woodrow W. Mathna, former Lorain mayor, and Democratic State Sen. Donald J. Pease will compete in the 13th District for the seat being vacated by Republican Charles Mosher, who is retiring.

Mary Rose Oaker, former Cleveland school teacher, beat 11 other Democrats in the 20th District, where Jim Stanton dropped out to run unsuccessfully for the U. S. Senate. No Republicans ran in the metropolitan Cleveland district, but she faces two independents in the fall.

There were 26 contests for party nominations among Ohio's 23 Districts. No primary contests were necessary in the 4th, 5th and 7th districts.

Former Cincinnati Mayor Thomas A. Luken, an interim congressman two years ago in the 1st District, defeated two other Democrats in the 2nd District and will oppose veteran Rep. Donald D. Clancy in November.

Rep. Willis D. Gradison, who defeated Luken in the 1st District two years ago, won Democratic renomination but also has general election opposition.

Rep. Charles W. Whalen Jr., won Republican renomination in the 3rd District but faces opposition in the fall.

In the largely rural 6th District, early inconclusive returns showed Democrats Paul McCarthy and Ted Strickland in a tight race to run against up to 13 cents. I thought that was outrageous! Now I don't write like I used to."

Confessing that there were alot of sports that he didn't quite understand, Raney said, "A friend of mine particularly likes tennis so I've learned about that sport and over the years, I've come to appreciate golf." Back during the Pine Street Ball Park days, Raney built a golf course of sorts and provided the kids with clubs so they could learn the game.

Pine Street Ball Park still exists, but according to Raney no one is managing it. When Raney supervised the park, he and some other people had a sign put up on one of the buildings. Although, the erection of that sign took place a good 20 years ago, it still should be there. If it isn't, that's a shame, since it epitomizes Raney and what he stands for. The sign reads: No man is so tall as when he stoops to help a boy.

'Ins' all winners in Congressional voting

Rep. William Harsha, Republican.

Republican Rep. Thomas N. Kindness won renomination in the 8th District and will have Democrat and independent opposition in the fall.

Rep. Thomas Ashley, Democrat, won renomination in the 9th District but faces Republican and independent general election opponents.

James A. Plummer of Jackson led in the 10th District Democratic race for the right to face Rep. Clarence E. Miller, Republican, in November.

In the 11th District, Democrat Robert Woodman led in the Democratic race to choose an opponent for Republican incumbent J. William Stanton.

Columbus City Councilwoman Fran Ryan has, for the second time, won Democratic nomination in the 12th District and will face Republican Rep. Sam Devine in the fall.

Rep. John Seiberling took a comfortable early lead over two other Democrats in the 14th District but also has a November race to deal with.

Veteran Rep. John M. Ashbrook won renomination in the 17th District and faces Democratic opposition in the fall.

Following victory in Ohio primary

Carter closes in on Democratic nod

Associated Press Writer
Jimmy Carter, at best an outsider when the primaries began, has capped his run from nowhere with a delegate harvest that puts him within a few quick moves of the Democratic presidential nomination.

For the Republicans, the end of the primaries means a continuation of Ronald Reagan's challenge to President Ford.

Carter won only in Ohio of the three big states that held primaries on Tuesday. But he picked up more than 200 delegates, and all his rivals but one seemed ready to concede him the nomination.

The one who said he won't quit chasing Carter is Jerry Brown, who won big in his home state of California and was joined with Hubert Humphrey as preferred candidates on an uncommitted delegate slate that won in New Jersey. "I will go forward," Brown said. "I think the nomination is still open."

Ford and Reagan, meanwhile, fought to a standoff that virtually guarantees a fight to the convention in Kansas City two months from now.

Reagan took the California primary and with it the 167 delegates that go to the winner there. But Ford won almost all of Ohio's 97 delegates and an uncommitted slate that swept New Jersey's 67 delegate spots is packed with the President's supporters.

Here is how the delegate count looks with the primaries over:

Carter, who picked up 218 delegates on Tuesday, now has 1,125 of the 1,505 needed for nomination. His closest pursuer is Rep. Morris K. Udall, who has 334.5. Brown, who won 200 in California, has 225 and a number in the uncommitted bloc of over 400 delegates.

Ford has a lead over Reagan of 892-868, with 1,130 needed to be the nominee. But Ford's edge is actually greater since no more than a handful of the nominally uncommitted 67-member New Jersey delegation backs Reagan.

As the votes were counted Tuesday and even before, it was clear it would be a day for jumping on the Carter bandwagon.

Carter himself told supporters in Atlanta: "I think I'm going to be the nominee."

And at a news conference, he said he had spoken by telephone during the day with three active rivals, Udall, Frank Church and George Wallace; one inactive rival, Humphrey, and Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago, who controls a bloc of 86 delegates nominally committed to Sen. Adlai Stevenson, a favorite son.

"All of them, as a general group, agreed that I would be the nominee," Carter said.

And that was what just about all of them said, finally conceding defeat after a spring of seeing silver linings in cloudy results.

Udall, speaking to supporters in Cleveland after his ninth second-place finish, congratulated Carter on a "solid victory, and a brilliant campaign." He said Carter is now a heavy favorite for the nomination and said he wouldn't engage in a stop-Carter move. But he added that he would not release his delegates because they "cannot be delivered."

Church said of Carter: "He's coming very close to being able to claim the number of delegates necessary for a first-ballot victory." And he said of his telephone conversation with the former Georgia governor: "I told him I thought he had established an entitlement it would be difficult for the convention to deny."

Earlier in the day, it was Daley who

indicated he was ready to jump on the bandwagon.

Daley said he was not making any endorsement just yet, but predicted that if Carter won Ohio, as he did, "he'll be the nominee." The mayor also said of what he called the religious tone of Carter's campaign: "that's something we need some of."

But Brown, who has won in Maryland, Nevada and California and been backed by parts of winning uncommitted slates in Rhode Island and New Jersey, wanted no part of that.

"Every state I have gone into, Jimmy Carter has lost," he said. "The 1,505 delegates are not accounted for."

Today was a very strong boost for my candidacy."

On the Republican side, things went just about as expected. Reagan won easily in California, Ford with little trouble in Ohio and the delegate slate headed by Sen. Clifford P. Case captured all the New Jersey slots over a slate that Reagan did not sanction and which carried the label "former California governor."

Both the Reagan and Ford camps predicted their candidates would win on the first ballot, as one of them would almost surely have to do if no other candidates enter the field. And both

Newcomer captures 37 of 44 precincts

Conley beats Wagner by 606 votes

By GEORGE MALEK
The old guard gave way to a former apprentice Tuesday when Charles P. Wagner was ousted by Donald E. Conley in the Fayette County engineer's race in Tuesday's primary election.

Conley, who worked in the county

DONALD E. CONLEY

engineer's office under Wagner for five years in the 1960s, captured 60 per cent of the Republican vote to defeat his former boss convincingly.

The 35-year-old Conley captured 37 of 44 Fayette County precincts, including 19 of 24 outside Washington C. H. where Wagner's support was strongest.

Surprisingly, Conley won a slightly greater percentage of the vote in rural precincts than he did within the Washington C. H. city limits.

The unofficial final tally showed Conley with 1,841 votes to Wagner's 1,235.

Co-owner of Gale Helms and Associates, Inc., engineering firm, Conley will become Fayette County's engineer in 1977. There is no Democratic candidate for the post to offer opposition in the November general election.

Conley's victory brings to the engineer's office the first change in leadership in more than a quarter century. Wagner, 77, became the county engineer in 1950 and has held the post since that time.

Many friendships have been made during that time, and Wagner is noted for his cooperative spirit when working with township trustees.

Conley was pleased with his party's response. Although he said he had been confident throughout the preceding months, he was pleasantly surprised by the margin of victory.

He has become known in the community through a number of local projects. Conley performed engineering work on Interstate 71, the Jeffersonville sanitary sewage system, several ditch projects and has served as a technical advisor to the Washington C. H. Planning Commission.

Voting in the engineer's race was somewhat erratic. Early returns, primarily from rural precincts, showed a close vote favoring Wagner.

Clyde Cramer, Conley's campaign manager, felt that if his candidate could hold his own in the townships he could win with a strong city vote.

As the non-city precincts continued to be reported to the board of elections, however, Conley enjoyed occasional sweeping victories. With the vote very close, the Union-East precinct recorded an 80-30 vote in favor of the young candidate.

When Concord Township voted 102-45 and Madison Mills followed a short time later with a 57-17 tally, it became clear Conley would win the rural precincts as well as the Washington C. H. vote.

City returns then confirmed Cramer's projection of strength. Conley took a margin of nearly 100 votes in each of the third and fourth wards.

Even the first ward, which Conley expected to lose, gave him a slim 20-vote victory.

Over 5,000 cast ballots

Vote count trickles in at a snail's pace

A heavier than expected turnout of voters, plus some unexpected complications, caused results to trickle into the Fayette County Board of Elections office Tuesday night and early Wednesday at a sluggish pace.

A hefty total of 5,081 Fayette County residents cast ballots during Tuesday's primary election.

The 5,081 total was more than 500 voters over the prediction made by officials at the Fayette County Board of Elections. Only about 4,500 county voters were expected to cast ballots.

Some 3,278 voters cast ballots on the Republican ticket, while there were 1,737 Democrats who went to the polls. Sixty-six persons went to the polls and requested ballots for state or local issues only.

Two-thirds (66.22 per cent) of the county voters who went to the polls, cast Republican ballots, which represents a two per cent increase in the percentage of GOP voters from the 1972 primary election in Fayette County.

A possible explanation for the heavy number of GOP voters, despite the fact that Fayette County is traditionally a Republican stronghold, could be crossover voting because of a lack of interest in the Democratic presidential ticket and the interest generated by a race between Donald E. Conley and incumbent Charles P. Wagner for the county engineer's seat.

The last votes were received by tabulators at the board of elections office at approximately 2 a.m. Wednesday.

The tardiness in receiving votes was attributed to a hefty number of candidates and issues on both the Republican and Democrat ballots, plus inexperienced poll workers.

Mrs. Mary Jean Jennings, director of the Fayette County Board of Elections, said elections officials were forced to replace nine poll workers on Monday because conflicts in the schedules of regular personnel.

New clerks and presiding judges were common around the 44 polling places in Fayette County. "They (inexperienced workers) were all over the county," Mrs. Jennings said.

The Selden Precinct in Jasper Township had a total of three new workers for Tuesday's balloting.

To further complicate matters, a telephone in the board of elections office, used to receive reports on key races from precincts around the county, malfunctioned midway through the evening.

In continuing a long-standing election tradition, the tiny Octa precinct in northern Fayette County was the first to report its votes (at 9:08 p.m.) to the board of elections office.

Mrs. Jennings said the board of elections will meet at noon Tuesday to officially certify the vote.

Voters keep lid on spending issues

Three state amendments downed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Voters sent a message to the Statehouse Tuesday that they'll accept changes in the language of law, but intend to keep a close eye on the state's coffers.

Among eight issues on the primary ballot, the three that apparently were defeated by voters involved the disbursement and use of government funds. The five that received popular approval were regarded as noncost items or measures to tighten old language in the state Constitution.

Here is the vote with 92 per cent of state polling places reporting:

- 1—Tandem Election, 977,038 in favor; 628,056 opposed
- 2—Rail Aid, 704,744 in favor; 866,754 opposed
- 3—Energy Bonds, 734,642 in favor; 757,190 opposed
- 4—Voting Age, 885,977 in favor; 677,895 opposed
- 5—Lt. Gov. Vacancy, 865,146 in favor; 607,241 opposed
- 6—Indirect Debt Limit, 617,370 in favor; 809,357 opposed
- 7—Estate Tax Return, 865,296 in favor; 632,814 opposed
- 8—Estate Tax Exemption, 839,090 in favor; 648,430 opposed

Approved by a comfortable margin was a measure that will link the election of the governor and lieutenant governor to the same political party. Lt. Gov. Richard F. Celeste, a Democrat, campaigned throughout the state in favor of the proposal, saying he seldom met with Republican Gov. James A. Rhodes.

Also approved were a change in constitutional wording to put voter qualification language in line with federal statutes; a measure to remove the governor's authority to fill vacancies in the lieutenant governor's post; payment of 50 per cent of estate tax revenues to local government; and an end to the estate tax exemption limit of $20,000.

Soundly defeated was a measure to remove the indirect debt limit imposed on local government borrowing. Presently, local governments are limited to a debt ceiling of one per cent of the property value in their jurisdictions.

The measure was one of the six issues proposed by the Ohio Constitutional Revision Commission. The commission recommended the change, noting that local governments use other forms of taxation of debt than property tax.

Voters also turned back a proposal to permit state subsidy of rail transportation.

Fayette County residents scored two "ringers" and one "leaner" Tuesday when they voted on proposed amendments to the Ohio Constitution.

As a whole, the state turned down three of the eight proposals. Fayette Countyans voted against two of the measures and just missed a perfect match. The third amendment which failed statewide was approved by less than a handful of votes in Fayette County.

Issue No. 3 which would have permitted the state to issue low-interest bonds for industrial development of energy was favored here by a vote of only 1,894 to 1,886.

sportation in Ohio. The issue, back on the ballot after defeat last November, was hailed by supporters as a move to enable the state to funnel more federal support to Ohio's rail system. It was designed to permit Ohio's participation financially in the federal rail reorganization, which created the ConRail freight system.

A third issue to permit issuance of state-backed bonds for development of private energy facilities was also rejected by voters. The measure would permit a corporation to protect itself against energy shortages by establishing its own supplies.

With the exception of the measure to create a tandem election ticket for the governor and lieutenant governor, the issues generated little controversy and no substantial campaigns were mounted for or against them.

Countians favor all levies on ballot

By MIKE FLYNN
Record-Herald Editor
Four city tax levy issues, totaling 2.3 mills, were approved by Washington C.H. voters at Tuesday's primary election.

A one-mill levy earmarked for the operation of the understaffed Washington C.H. Police Department fared the best in Tuesday's voting. Washington C.H. residents approved the issue by an unofficial 379-vote margin, 1,438 to 1,059. The issue passed in 14 of the city's 20 polling places.

City voters approved a three-tenths mill levy for the maintenance of the Washington Cemetery by an unofficial 1,354 to 1,136 margin, and a one-mill levy earmarked for street lighting was approved by only 78 votes, 1,291 to 1,213.

The taxes on the three issues will be assessed on 1976 duplicates and collected starting in December of next year. The issues will expire in 1980.

City officials estimate the total millage to be raised by the three issues will produce about $90,000.

The millage will help to ease the city's troubled financial picture which started two years ago when

Washington C.H. City Council decided to reduce 2.3 mills in property taxes in exchange for a 1.25 per cent income tax. The income tax issue was defeated at the polls and the city had withdrawn the 2.3 mills on the assumption voters would approve the income tax.

It is now possible that two police officers, who retired in January, may be replaced. City officials decided not to replace the two veteran officers in effort to trim $20,000 from an anemic budget.

The one-mill police protection levy was approved by voters in all four wards and 14 of 20 precincts. The issue gained approval in four of the five precincts in both the third and fourth wards, and three of the four precincts in the city's second ward.

Half of the city's 554 street lights, turned out in early March in an effort to save an estimated $13,000, may go back on next year with the approval of a one-mill street lighting issue.

The reduction of 316 street lights in the downtown and residential areas was completed in an attempt to cut $13,000 from the general fund budget.

Washington C.H. Police Chief Rodman Scott had estimated that as a result of the budget-cutting program which drastically reduced street lighting and depleted the manpower of the police force, crime in Washington C.H. increased at a rate of 45 per cent through the first four months of the year.

The street lighting levy was approved by narrow margins in three of the city's four wards. Only voters in the city's first ward turned down the issue.

In posting a slender 78-vote margin of approval, the street lighting issue passed in 13 of the city's 20 voting precincts.

The margin of approval was garnered as the issue passed in four of the five precincts in the fourth ward and three of the four precincts in the second ward.

Approval of a three-tenths mill levy for the operation and maintenance of the Washington Cemetery will virtually guarantee that the city's share of the operating costs ($11,300 per year) will be reinstated.

The cemetery issue was approved in all four of the city's wards. The issue was defeated in only one precinct in the second, third and fourth wards.

City Council slashed the $11,300

earmarked for the cemetery earlier this year to reduce an anticipated operational deficit.

The matter was further complicated when Union Township trustees threatened to withdraw financial support if the city did not contribute its share of the operating costs.

The township trustees contribute nearly $5,000 annually from their fund to support the cemetery, which has been operated jointly by the city and township officials since 1877.

The three-member cemetery board was fearful that if the more than $16,000 ($11,300 from the city and $5,000 from the township trustees) was not received from the two political subdivisions, Washington C.H. area residents would absorb the increased costs for burials.

The cemetery board in April increased the costs of graves by 15 per cent. The increase became effective May 1.

With the elimination of street lighting, the cut in cemetery operating funds, and the reduction of police department personnel, City Council and administration officials contended before the election that they had cut all possible expenses, and that any further reduction would endanger normal city services.

TWO OTHER tax levies placed before Fayette County voters at Tuesday's primary election were approved overwhelmingly.

A two-tenths mill general health levy proposed by the Fayette County Health Department won by a lopsided margin of 2,053 votes.

The final unofficial tally on the health issue was 3,503 to 2,053.

The levy, which will permit the county health department to continue existing programs, is expected to produce about $23,000. The levy will continue for a five-year period.

The health levy was approved in 43 of the county's 44 precincts. Only voters in Precinct C of the city's third ward rejected the issue.

A .75-mill renewal for fire protection in Union Township was approved by a resounding 476 to 100 margin.

Voters in all four precincts of Union Township approved the levy by lopsided vote counts.

The Union Township fire protection levy will also run for five years.

Deaths, Funerals

Dallas D. Hess

NEW HOLLAND — Dallas D. Hess, 82, of 48 N. East St., New Holland, died at 1:20 p.m. Tuesday in Fayette County Memorial Hospital, Washington C.H., where he had been a patient for 12 days. He had been ill for a month.

Born in Washington C.H. Mr. Hess had resided in Ocoee, Fla., until moving to New Holland in 1966. A World War I U.S. Army veteran, he was also a retired employe of the Hagerty Shoe Company.

He is survived by his wife, the former Ruth Fisher; one daughter, Mrs. Joe (Rosemary) Longberry of New Holland; and two granddaughters, Carla and Jodine Longberry.

Services will be held at 1:30 p.m. Friday in the Kirkpatrick Funeral Home, New Holland, with the Rev. Victor Slutz pastor of the New Holland Church of Christ, officiating. Burial will be in Washington Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home after 3 p.m. Thursday.

Mrs. Ralph Thompson

GREENFIELD — Mrs. Gladys Thompson, 40, wife of Ralph Thompson, Rt. 1, Leesburg, died at 12:05 a.m. Wednesday in Fayette County Memorial Hospital, Washington C.H.

She was born in Peebles, and was a member of the Freewill Baptist Church in Hillsboro. She had been ill for six months.

Mrs. Thompson is survived by her husband, Ralph; a daughter, Diana and a son, Troy, both at home; her parents, Mr and Mrs. John Cox of Leesburg; one brother, James M. Cox of Lawrenceburg, Ind.; and a sister, Mrs. Ruth Kellis of Washington C.H.

Services will be held at 2 p.m. Friday in the Murray Funeral Home, Greenfield, with the Rev. Dan Widding officiating. Burial will be in Bridges Cemetery, near Leesburg.

Friends may call at the funeral home after 4 p.m. Thursday.

Report Wallace to back Carter

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — The Birmingham News said today Gov. George C. Wallace is preparing to throw his support to Jimmy Carter as the Democratic party's candidate for president.

The newspaper said Wallace will announce at a news conference later today that he is asking the 168 delegates pledged to him to support the former Georgia governor.

The move could give Carter a big push toward a first-ballot victory at the party's convention in New York next month. It also could give Carter a unified South.

Wallace made his decision, the newspaper said, after a midnight session with his advisers and a telephone conversation with Carter at his Plains, Ga., home.

Viewers tuning out television violence

WASHINGTON (AP) — The president of the nation's largest advertising agency says a survey conducted for his agency shows that many television viewers are turning off violent TV programs and may also be rejecting the products advertised on those programs.

Don Johnston, president of the J. Walter Thompson Co. said a poll conducted in March shows that 10 per cent of viewers apparently consider not buying products because they are advertised on programs they consider excessively violent.

Eight per cent reported "consciously not buying a product," he told the annual convention of the American Advertising Federation here Tuesday.

He said that even if subsequent polls show only 4 per cent of viewers reject products because they are advertised in connection with violence, "I cannot imagine any advertiser who would want to risk negative sales of these proportions."

Johnston said the survey, although preliminary, corroborates other indications "that public hostility to violent TV programming is growing ..."

He said the J. Walter Thompson agency is "counseling our clients to evaluate the potential negatives of placing commercials in programming perceived as violent." Opponents of TV violence are organizing, he said, and Johnston predicted their actions will be felt "more and more ... in letters of protest and in product boycotts."

Johnston also said he personally opposes excessive violence on TV, and so does the agency.

"We are questioning that part of TV programming that exploits violence."

Primary went well, Brown says

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Veteran Secretary of State Ted W. Brown said he thought Tuesday's Ohio primary went smoothly with few problems in view of lengthy ballots that caused confusion in the voting for district presidential delegates.

Brown said today Ohio still "needs to do something about those bedsheet ballots" even though they were not as long this year as they were in the presidential primary four years ago.

Most of the delay in collecting delegate results involved the Democratic district delegate-candidates whose names appeared individually on ballots, making it difficult for voters to determine presidential candidates to whom the delegates were pledged.

Republican district delegate-candidates were not named on ballots, but were elected on the basis of votes garnered by the GOP presidential candidates they selected as their choices.

Brown said that while returns coming in to his office may have seemed slow, actually they were at about the same pace as the 1972 primary.

They could have been slower, however, had many counties not become more mechanized in the past four years, and had the legislature not enacted a new law shortening ballots to some extent, he said.

Names of individual candidates not only were eliminated from GOP district delegate slates, but also from each party's roster of at-large, state-wide slates, as a result of a constitutional amendment subsequently implemented by the legislature. Democrats could have done the same had they chosen to adopt other rules.

Legislative backers of the amendment said it permitted Ohio to go from a bedsheet ballot to "a pillow case ballot."

The secretary of state said "all things considered, I think everything went about normal."

Justices take free press stand

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A decision handed down by the Ohio Supreme Court Tuesday "assures that there need not be a restraint or abridgment of freedom of the press in this state in a criminal case," Chief Justice C. William O'Neill said.

O'Neill's assessment was contained in a footnote to an order upholding the Akron Beacon Journal newspaper, which had asked permanent reversal of a trial judge's order banning publication of information about a criminal trial.

Judge Robert Kainrad of Portage County Common Pleas Court issued the order Jan. 26 and the Supreme Court temporarily suspended it two days later.

The majority Supreme Court decision written by O'Neill was concurred in by Justices Thomas M. Herbert, William B. Brown and by Alvin I. Krenzler, sitting from the Eighth Appellate District for Justice Leonard J. Stern.

Dissenting votes came from Justices J. J. P. Corrigan, Frank D. Celebrezze and Paul W. Brown.

Both the Beacon Journal and Kainrad asked the court for a decision although the specific question became moot when the criminal trial was completed. It arose in the separate trials of Kenny James McDaniels and Ralph F. Garduno, indicted for aggravated murder. Both were convicted.

Kainrad testified he felt the order was appropriate and that under the same circumstances he would issue the same order again.

O'Neill wrote that "where the constitutional right of a criminal defendant to a fair trial can be protected by the traditional methods...the press and public cannot be excluded from a criminal trial or hearing and no order can be made which prohibits the publishing of news reports about statements made or testimony given during such proceedings."

He said a court is obligated before issuing such an order to hold a hearing and make a finding that all other measures to insure a fair trial are deficient.

3 to vie in lottery

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Buckeye 1,000 that will remain the basic game when the auxiliary Spirit of '76 contest ends next week drew only three finalists for Thursday's $1,000-per-month drawing.

A lottery spokesman said Florence Davey of Girard, Josephine Bunten of Delaware and Ina Hamrick of Medina will have a chance at the top prize that promises at least $400,000.

After June 17th drawing, the Spirit of '76 will be replaced by the Instant Game beginning June 15. The Instant Game tickets will permit holders to determine with a few rubs on the spot whether they have won or lost.

he said. "We believe it is socially and psychologically damaging to large sections of the population."

Johnston said the agency's poll was conducted among 200 adult TV viewers. He said the agency has decided to expand the survey "to verify the preliminary results."

Among these results, he said, is that two of every five persons said they avoid watching programs they consider too violent.

Also, one of every five men and one of every three women said they prevent their children from watching programs they thought were excessively violent, he added.

Johnston said the agency's analysis of existing scientific and social research on TV violence reveals the following areas where it believes "damage is caused."

"If they (children) are constantly given models of violent behavior, their behavior will probably turn violent." —Incidents have been reported in which unstable adults have modeled crimes on television dramas.

"Excessive doses of violence tend to desensitize even stable adults. They become indifferent to the suffering of others."

"Heavy watching of TV violence contributes to the tide of paranoia that afflicts a major part of the population ... Caution is a useful emotion. Terror is not."

Carter closes

sides said, as they have been saying, that their man would have a better chance of beating the Democratic nominee.

Reagan did not discuss the Ohio results. But his backers there said they were happy because he got over 40 per cent of the vote. And John Sears, who heads Citizens for Reagan, said "we're very pleased with the results from Ohio."

Ford had no direct comment on the primaries although he called supporters in New Jersey and Ohio to thank them. He told Keith McNamara, his Ohio chairman: "We've got a long, hard way to go, but we've got the right programs, the right people and we'll stick together."

Presidential press secretary Ron Nessen described Ford as pleased with the results, "especially his victories in Ohio and New Jersey." Like Reagan on Ohio, Nessen had no direct comment from Ford to relay on the California results.

These were the figures on the final primaries:

California
With 19 per cent of the precincts counted:

Reagan 282,817 or 61 per cent.
Ford 180,364 or 39 per cent.

Reagan got all 167 delegates under the winner-take-all system.

Brown 378,442 or 58 per cent and 200 delegates.

Carter 130,296 or 20 per cent and 70 delegates.

Church 60,201 or 9 per cent and six delegates.

Udall 35,292 or 5 per cent and four delegates.

The rest of the vote was scattered among five other entries.

In delegates, Brown was ahead for 200, Carter for 70, Church for 6, Udall for 4.

Democratic Sen. John V. Tunney won renomination over one-time student activist Tom Hayden. Conservative educator S. I. Hayakawa won the Republican nomination.

Ohio

With 69 per cent of the precincts counted:

Ford 365,184 or 55 per cent and 88 delegates.

Reagan 296,443 or 45 per cent and nine delegates.

Among Democrats:

Carter 391,511 or 52 per cent and 119 delegates.

Udall 154,786 or 21 per cent and 20 delegates.

Church 104,533 or 14 per cent.

The rest of the vote was scattered in the statewide competition for 38 Democratic delegates. Rep. Louis Stokes won six delegates as a favorite son in his home district.

In other Ohio races, Democratic Rep. Wayne Hays, under fire in the Washington sex scandal, won renomination, but by less than usual against a perennial challenger. And former Sen. Howard Metzenbaum defeated Rep. James V. Stanton for the Democratic nomination to run against Sen. Robert Taft Jr.

New Jersey

With 83 per cent of the vote counted in Republican delegate competition, a nominally uncommitted slate of party leaders who actually favor Ford won 63 convention seats, with returns yet to be tallied for the other four.

In the Democratic presidential preference vote, which was only for show since it committed no delegates, 91 per cent of the precincts had been counted.

Carter had 188,261 or 57 per cent.

Church was second with 64,771 or 19 per cent.

The rest was split three ways.

Card of Thanks

I would like to express my sincere thanks and appreciation for the many cards, flowers and help received while in the hospital. Also, a special thanks to Dr. Anderson, all the staff at the Fayette Memorial Hospital and the Kirkpatrick Funeral Home.

Stock trend neutral

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market settled into a neutral trend today while investors waited for signs of the future course of interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks eased a fraction in the early going. Gainers and losers ran about even among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Brokers noted some disappointment that a technical rally early in Tuesday's session had faded by the close.

They said the market seemed now to be looking to the money markets for its next cue. The question was whether interest rates might begin leveling off or continue their recent rise.

Today's early prices included Ponderosa System, down 1/4 at 9 1/2; NCR, off 1/4 at 30; U.S. Steel, down 1/2 at 51 1/2; and Sterling Drug, unchanged at 16 1/4.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average settled for a 1.88 gain at 959.97, retreating from an earlier gain of about 7 points.

Conley wins

Only in the Selden Precinct in Jasper Township did Wagner enjoy a strong showing. Selden voters favored the incumbent engineer by a margin of 45 to 18.

A veteran of World War I, Wagner was noted for his steadfast manner. Occasionally gruff with critics, the engineer firmly discharged the duties of the office in the manner he felt the most beneficial to the county.

He is a charter member of the Washington C.H. Kiwanis Club and has been a member of Masonic organizations for the past 48 years.

Conley, after leaving his position as deputy Fayette County engineer in 1969, joined M.M. Shitzing and Associates of Chillicothe. He served as projects manager with the Chillicothe firm until 1972, and has been in partnership with Helms and Associates since that time.

He plans to continue his private engineering practice on a limited basis while serving in his elective office.

Return indictment

VAN WERT, Ohio (AP) — Earl J. Puckett has been indicted by a Van Wert County grand jury for allegedly aiding in a February 1974 tavern robbery in which two patrons were shot to death. The jury handed down four indictments in secret.

Robot in the office

The dividing line between science fiction and science is often crossed these days. The Mailmobile provides and intriguing example of this phenomenon.

The Mailmobile is a sort of office robot - not a humanoid programmed to obey commands, but of interest all the same. It is a wheeled cart which trundles through the premises bearing mail, supplies and whatnot. It follows a chemical guidpath at one mile an hour, stopping as necessary to yield up its burdens.

One in a New York bank, for example, completes a 1,200-foot circuit every 20 minutes. It makes 17 stops along the way. Should it bump into anything (or, presumably, anyone) it beeps and flashes blue lights until set in motion again. A bit eerie on first experience, no doubt, but office personnel soon get used to the sight and entrust the robot to carry around baseball scores and such. The science fiction writers have gone on to stranger things, but this is one dream they've left behind in the real world.

A WORD EDGEWISE...By John P. Roche

The busing mess (II)

We explored the legal dimensions of de jure and de facto segregation in our preceding column, concluding that the Federal courts today will tolerate accidental de facto segregation based on voluntary individual action, but will move against de facto segregation if it can be demonstrated that a ghetto was created by indirect state action or even deliberate state inaction. Legally speaking, this is a sticky wicket. It would be hard to argue that the 17th century boundary between Brookline and Boston was drawn in such fashion to discriminate against contemporary blacks. Most boundaries are accidental.

Yet there can be - as any politician knows - some fine backroom map work. In Brooklyn, when I was a kid, our Congressional District had a three-block chimney on it: the district's shape had been altered so the ward leader could live there! Similarly, the gnomes with maps can play games with school districts. It is hard to explain without drawing a picture, but suppose you have a black - or Jewish or Chinese - section of town that is 15 blocks long and four blocks wide. If you cut it laterally, you can move a number of ethnic blocks into broader, heterogeneous school districts. On the other hand, if you simply divide the 60 square blocks into five districts, you will have racial imbalance, cultural segregation.

But suppose this 60-square-block area has been divided into five districts since the memory of man runneth not to the contrary? Originally, however, it was populated by white immigrant groups, all taking for granted the central cultural role of the "neighborhood school." Recall in this connection that in 1900 only 6.4 per cent of the relevant age group graduated from high school! (It jumped all the way to 29 per cent in 1930.) It's possible that someone in advance of his time looked around the classroom and said, "How can I get a decent education? There isn't a Jew or a Protestant in this school." Possible...but doubtful. (Only in retrospect did I realize that I went through 12 years of good public education without a black or a Jewish student in my class.)

Outsiders chuckle patronizingly at the loyalty of South Boston people to their high school, to its athletic prowess and to the community leaders who went there. Of course, this attachment has been overestimated (I doubt if many of the families who have moved to the suburbs make pilgrimages back for, say, high school reunions), but this miscalculation arises, in part, from historical ignorance. The high school is the focus of sentiment because until recently virtually nobody except the rich went on to college. (Interestingly enough, City College of New York, where poor, talented kids were able to get a free education, generates precisely the same loyalty among its graduates. When the conglomerate City University of New York took over CCNY and decreed open admissions, the alumni all over the country went wild - as they also did at the prospect of tuition. Indeed, I heard a couple of intellectuals of national fame sounding like Louise Day Hicks on the subject of admitting outsiders - though in their case, outsiders were defined as the stupid.)

To return to our original example, the 60 square blocks divided into five school districts, let us assume the white immigrant groups begin moving out, usually in the first stage to more prosperous areas of the city. (The borough of Queens in New York seemingly was populated by refugees from Brooklyn; recently, since a bridge was put in, Staten Island has taken up the slack.) Behind the departing whites come blacks and Hispanic-Americans who - within 10-15 years - inhabit the whole area. There are still five school districts, but the school population is overwhelmingly non-white. Activist groups then organize a campaign to get the schools "desegregated," but unless they can demonstrate purposeful segregation in the first place they have a problem. As we have seen, in our hypothetical model the role of the state was practically non-existent: "Segregation" developed its own momentum essentially built around class standing rather than race. What characterizes a poor district is the poor who live there. It was at such a point, roughly in the mid-1960s, that the civil rights movement shifted the argument from geography to education. Racially imbalanced schools, it was argued, no matter how they developed, provide inadequate education and thus deny pupils equal protection of the laws. This position will be examined in the next and concluding column on this subject.

Citizens band radio operators aid police

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Radio operators on the Citizens Band commonly call police "Smokeys" and have a reputation for trying to stay out of their way.

But the Highway Patrol says CBers assisted them in aiding 37,000 motorists in the first three months of 1976. And, Col. Frank Blackstone, patrol superintendent, encourages further work with CB enthusiasts.

Capt. T.G. Gentry, who supervises the patrol response to CB calls, says the radio operators reported 2,288 drunk driving suspects, 5,102 accidents, 12,153 disabled vehicles, 905 pedestrian violations, 1,992 other traffic violations and 202 felony violations in January through March.

CB operators sometimes provide a crucial advantage in responding to an emergency. "The response time is cut drastically, to the point where we know of several cases where it's been a matter of saving someone's life," Gentry said.

In one case, a motorist transporting a man severely cut by a chain saw was delayed in traffic on the way to a hospital. The motorist radioed for help and a patrol car was able to transfer the injured man to the hospital safely.

Contrary to reports about CBers flouting the law, Gentry said there are clear signs that they are helping law enforcement.

"People in general want to have traffic safety," said Gentry. "They will report (unsafe conditions) if given the means to do so. They don't want to become involved in an accident, and they don't want someone else to get hurt."

Sometimes CBers help catch a speeder by "subtly providing enough information to tip patrolmen," Gentry said. Even when they report the location of patrol cars, Gentry said the patrol is satisfied.

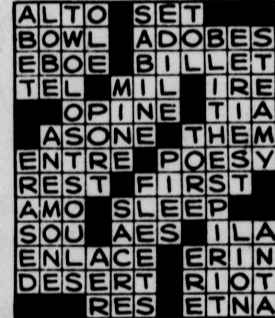

"We think it's great," he said. "It's a very positive thing...What we are seeking is compliance with traffic laws. It's a benefit to us as a law enforcement tool and to the general public."

Dear Abby:

Afraid friends try to fix up steady

DEAR ABBY: I am a middle-aged divorcee. For the last two years I've been dating a very attractive single man.

We are not officially engaged, but since we've been seeing each other I haven't dated anyone else, and the only time he has when one of his friends or relatives fix him up with a "lovely lady" they think he should meet, or when he's asked as a favor to escort a lady somewhere.

I very much resent others casting my gentleman friend in the role of a single available man. When I tell him that I don't appreciate his accommodating others by escorting another lady, or agreeing to accept an arranged date, he tells me I'm being foolish.

How can I handle this annoying situation without appearing possessive and jealous?

NUMBER ONE LADY
DEAR LADY: You can't. Don't blame others for casting your gentleman friend "in the role" of an available man. He doesn't have to accept that role unless he wants to.

DEAR ABBY: Do they sell donkey blinders anymore? If so, I would like to buy a pair for my husband. He never looks at the road when he drives. Instead, he is busy gawking at the young women who are walking along the streets.

He slows down to about five miles an hour to be sure he doesn't miss anything. We've come within inches of having accidents more times than I can count.

How can I get this old coot to keep his eyes on the road? He's 62 and I'm 60. GAWKER'S WIFE
DEAR WIFE: Even donkey blinders would be useless for this breed of donkey. If you can't get him to keep his eyes on the road, take the wheel. And if he doesn't like it, let him trot!

DEAR ABBY: A friend of ours who is a married woman with children recently lost her mother.

My mother and I disagree on how the condolence card should be addressed. I say condolence should be addressed to: "Mr. and Mrs. John Jones and family."

My mother insists that the condolence card be addressed only to my friend whose mother died.

Is it proper to console only the party bereaved? Or shouldn't my friend's husband and children also receive condolences? After all, her husband lost his mother-in-law, and the children lost their grandmother.

FRIEND OF THE FAMILY
DEAR FRIEND: I vote with you.

DEAR ABBY: About LONG SUFFERING HUSBAND, whose wife would not permit smoking in the house: There is no point in my repeating the damage that smokers do to themselves, but they should realize the suffering they cause others and not expect nonsmokers to remain silent.

I would like to ask that clown this question: If his wife had hay fever, would he expect her to tolerate ragweed in the house?

Today In History

Today is Wednesday, June 9, the 161st day of 1976. There are 205 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1940, the Norwegian Army surrendered to the Germans in World War Two.

On this date: In the year 68, the Roman emperor, Nero, committed suicide.

In 1800, the Austrians were defeated by the French in the Battle of Montebello in Italy.

In 1815, the Congress of Vienna ended after dealing with the territorial and governmental problems resulting from the Napoleonic wars.

In 1870, the English writer, Charles Dickens, died.

In 1967, Gamal Abdel Nasser resigned as President of Egypt after his country was defeated in a war with Israel.

In 1971, the United States and Japan announced final agreement on terms for the return of Okinawa to Japan.

Ten years ago: A tornado cut across Topeka, Kansas, leaving at least 14 dead and damage that ran into the (m) millions of dollars.

Five years ago: A Soviet ship was seized in San Francisco as security for a $77-thousand-dollar lawsuit filed by a Massachusetts firm which claimed that Soviet trawlers in the Atlantic had damaged lobster fishing equipment.

One year ago: The Philippines established diplomatic relations with Communist China, breaking its ties with the Nationalist government on Taiwan.

Today's birthdays: World Bank President Robert McNamara is 60 years old. Actor Robert Cummings is 66.

Thought for today: It is easy to be wise after the event—an English proverb.

Bicentennial footnote: Two-hundred years ago today, small tenant farmers in Loudon County, Virginia petitioned the Continental Congress in Philadelphia for relief, pointing out that they were destitute because their most important money crop, wheat, had lost its foreign markets.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

THURSDAY, JUNE 10

ARIES (March 21 to April 20)

New offering may attract you, but do not give up old projects of value. In those fields in which you are trained, and for which you have a liking, you may well speed ahead now.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21)

This is not the time for dwelling on old errors, except to recognize that they must not be repeated. On with your present program - especially if it's been built on a solid basis.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21)

You may have an unusual opportunity to advance your interests immediately - one which could have an important bearing on your future as well. Be ready to accept.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23)

Start the day with verve and at a steady pace. Investigate the validity of new offerings. Caution in financial matters advised.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23)

Do not lower your dignity by using strong-arm or other forceful measures to achieve your desires. You will accomplish more through tact and graciousness.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

New techniques, novel ventures, unusual methods could bring real advancement. Day especially favors experimentation, pioneering.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

The Libran, connoisseur of the truly good things in life, should have a field day. Especially favored: artists, writers, entertainers, dealers in fine arts.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

Better than average influences. Do not rest on your laurels - the past is past. This day is for building for the future.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

The results of your efforts will be determined by what use you make of talents and opportunities. Stretch out; delve into areas that give promise of delivering more.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Saturn auspicious. Activities should be handled evenly so as not to lap over too much in any direction. Start with a tempo you can keep - and do!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Weigh fitness and the validity of proposed action carefully. Keep your eye on the horizon as you steer ahead.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20)

Better-than-average opportunities for you to leap ahead and, if one matter seems sluggish, don't think they all are! Your outlook very important.

YOU BORN TODAY are enthusiastic, optimistic, alert and a charming, if sometimes puzzling, companion. You change your mind and your opinions - like a bird flitting from branch to branch - from moment to moment. This does not denote instability but, rather, it often happens that as soon as you express an opinion, a new angle or factor comes to mind and you suddenly reverse yourself. It's a matter of quick perceptions. But others have difficulty in keeping up with you. You also incline to scatter energies. When a new idea hits you, you act on it immediately, pursue it while your interest remains, but drop it before giving it a chance - to get on to something else. This is the Geminian's besetting sin - a lack of stick-to-itiveness. Once disciplined and master of yourself, however, there are no heights which you cannot attain. Imaginative and versatile, you could excel as a writer, painter, musician or theatrical entertainer.

Flames not only heat source at scene of local 'cookout'

A Monday night fire in a lot on Maple Street was not the only source of heat, as tempers flared when Washington C.H. firemen attempted to extinguish the blaze.

William F. Stolzenburg, 804 Maple St., notified Washington C.H. firemen that he and some friends would be having a cookout Monday night on a lot near his residence. He was advised by firemen to take the necessary safety measures.

Later in the night, according to Washington C.H. Fire Department Lt. Richard Reed, a neighbor complained about the fire to the department, and fireman Pat Denen was dispatched to the scene to investigate the blaze.

Denen reportedly found that the fire was under control, and he advised Stolzenburg to keep water nearby for safety measures. Stolzenburg said he would be continuing his cookout into the night.

At approximately 11 p.m., the Washington C.H. Police Department reported the fire to the fire department. This time, Lt. Reed went to Maple Street to investigate.

According to Lt. Reed, the flames of Stolzenburg's fire, kindled by pile brush around a tree stump, had reached a height of five feet. At that time, because of the nature and degree of the fire, it was considered to be illegal, and Lt. Reed ordered Stolzenburg to extinguish the fire.

Stolzenburg reportedly refused to extinguish his fire, and Lt. Reed doused the blaze with water from a fire truck. Soon after the fire was extinguished, Lt. Reed said, Stolzenburg came after him with a bucket. Not knowing what was in the bucket, and attempting to protect himself, Lt. Reed turned the spray from the fire hose onto Stolzenburg.

Stolzenburg then reportedly advanced on Lt. Reed with a wooden plank, and the hose spray was again directed toward Stolzenburg until he could be restrained by a Washington C.H. police officer who had arrived on the scene.

No charges have been filed.

Ohio high court nominations made

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Two lower court judges and two attorneys won their parties' nominations for two Ohio Supreme Court vacancies Tuesday.

Democrat Ralph S. Locher, a probate court judge and former mayor of Cleveland, defeated two opponents, while Hamilton County Common Pleas Court Judge William J. Morrissey beat two fellow Republicans.

Locher, 60, and Morrissey, 55, will compete in November for the seat held by Justice Leonard Stern, who retires at the end of his term on Jan. 1.

In the other contest, Democrat A. William Sweeney, a Cincinnati lawyer, won over two opponents, while Don P. Brown, a member of the Cuyahoga County GOP executive committee, defeated led Judge John W. Potter of the 6th District Court of Appeals.

They seek the seat held by Justice J.P. Corrigan, who retires on Dec. 31. Stern and Corrigan must step down from the seven-member bench because they are or will be 70 by election time. Both terms are for six years.

The Democrats are hoping to take both seats in the general election, which would give them a 4-3 edge. The Republicans now have a 5-2 majority.

Although candidates can campaign and receive party nominations, they are not permitted to appear with their party designation in the general election.

Locher is considered the best known candidate. He was mayor of Cleveland from 1962-1967 and presently is judge of the Cuyahoga County Probate Court. Before serving the three terms as mayor of Ohio's largest city, he was Cleveland's law director from 1953-1962.

His closest challenger was Barberton Municipal Court Judge John D. Judge, 39, the youngest of the Democrats seeking the Supreme Court post. Russell H. Volkema, a Columbus trial lawyer, trailed substantially in the vote total.

Morrissey has been common pleas

judge in Cincinnati since 1968. He previously served as a juvenile court judge and a county judge. He says he is a law and order judge and campaigned across the state every weekend in an effort to "give the people a chance to look at me."

He was well ahead of opponents Sara J. Harper, a Cleveland municipal court judge, and Paulding County Common Pleas Judge Gareth Hitchcock.

Sweeney, 55, is a veteran attorney who was unsuccessful in a bid for secretary of state in 1958 and for his party's nomination for governor in 1974.

His opponents were Cuyahoga County Juvenile Court Judge John F. Corrigan and Robert E. Cook, a judge of the 11th District Court of Appeals.

Here are the totals with 63 per cent of the polling places reporting:

Republican — For term commencing Jan. 1, Brown 228,283; Potter 217,360; for term commencing Jan. 2, Harper 134,154; Hitchcock 96,504; Morrissey 201,725;

Democrat — For term commencing Jan. 1, Cook 142,058; Corrigan 144,555; Sweeney 192,854; for term commencing Jan. 2, Judge 159,961; Locher 198,829; Volkema 71,038.

State lawmakers in cleanup meet

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Property taxes and state money problems faced Ohio's lawmakers today as they returned from a campaign recess for what they hope will be a brief 1976 cleanup session.

Action was expected on a conference committee's version of a bill to protect homeowners from future property tax hikes brought on by inflation.

The same bill also includes reductions in certain taxes for industry—specifically those they pay on their inventories and equipment.

Despite the conference committee agreement, worked out during the legislature's five-week recess, the bill still could hit a snag due to concerns over its impact on tax revenues.

Even more controversial, based on statements from minority Republicans in recent days, is a pending supplemental appropriations bill they claim is $10 million in excess of available revenues.

GOP Gov. James A. Rhodes will deliver a special message to a joint legislative session Thursday, outlining his alternatives for what he has described as a state financial crisis. Democrats claim the fiscal controversy is being raised by Republicans hopeful of creating campaign issues for the November election.

The legislature has several other issues pending, any of which could lengthen this week's session, originally scheduled for three days. One such issue is a bill to require full financial disclosure by lobbyists.

A House committee weakened several key provisions in the bill after it was approved by the Senate, and sponsors in the upper chamber said it appears headed for a conference committee. The bill currently is in the House Rules Committee awaiting assignment to a floor vote.

Other measures near passage but stalled by Senate-House differences include those that would establish new tenure provisions for public school teachers and revise laws under which homeowners can face double jeopardy financial situations when they enter into contractors' agreements for home construction or repairs.

Rhodes has vetoed some measures since the legislature began its recess April 29, and some of those may be brought up for a possible attempt to override. One such bill would require individual pricing of items for retail sale even if a store has converted to a computer system that calls for electronic scanners to read coded markings at check out counters.

Melvin tops field in annual 4-H tractor rodeo contest

Fred Melvin topped 11 contestants to win the 1976 4-H tractor rodeo held Sunday at the Fayette County Fairgrounds.

Melvin, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Melvin, 6982 West Road, near Bloomingburg, scored 605 penalty points.

Runner-up honors went to Randy Beekman, 1877 Lampe Road, Washington C.H., with a score of 885 points. Third and fourth places went to Mark Holloway, 4485 Lewis Road, Bloomingburg, and Jon Long, Rt. 1, Jeffersonville, with scores of 960 and 1,060. The best 1975 score was 820 points.

The rodeo tested the skills of 4-H Tractor Club members in tractor operation, safety and maintenance, according to Jack Sommers, Fayette County 4-H extension agent.

The rodeo was scored in four parts on a penalty point basis. First, each contestant took a written exam testing his knowledge of tractor safety and mechanics. Second, the contestants tested their skills in moving a two-wheel trailer through an obstacle course, and third, the boys tackled the four-wheel trailer backing event. Fourth, each contestant performed a trouble shooting exercises for maintenance problems.

The two-wheel and four-wheel events were scored on time to complete the test, skill in safe operation, and ability to stay within the bounds of the course. A maximum time of six minutes was allowed for each event.

Other 4-H'ers participating in the tractor rodeo were Ed Geesling, Mark Grove, John Melvin, Duane Mathews, John Shepherd, David Barton and Doug Bonham. 4-H Tractor Club advisors Joe Geesling, Frank Dill, Lowell Woods, John Hiser, Jim Garland were on hand to score the event and set up the course.

Tractors and equipment were provided by Greenline, Case Power and Equipment.

Awards for the winners were provided by Case Power and Equipment Co., Krieger Equipment and Lowell Woods.

Push Chile to release prisoners

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Chile's military government was under new pressure from the United States and some other American countries today to free the 4,000 political prisoners it is estimated to be holding or at least to respect their human rights.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger warned the ruling junta that U.S.-Chilean relations will remain cool unless it improves its performance on human rights. Venezuela and Jamaica called for a largescale release of prisoners.

A Chilean representative said the demands for release of the prisoners

Fashion on a grand scale

A large serving of fashion nets compliments for Sizes 38 to 52

By JEAN O'SULLIVAN

REMEMBER when the woman who wore a size 38 or larger didn't have a fashion friend in the world? Those days are gone. One of the firms responsible for the change is Stout Sportswear, which has two lines for large sizes, Patrician and Young Stuff.

"We don't try to hide the large-size woman," said John Miller, who with his brother, Ken, heads the firm. "Rather," he told me, "we've liberated her by giving her exciting clothes to wear. We've made her fashionable, and she loves it."

The brothers have also revolutionized the industry with ads that tell it like it is.

For-Real Models

"No size 8 models for us," Ken said. "The models we use are women who wear our clothes."

When their for-real ad campaign began a few years ago, the fashion world held its breath. But the brothers knew what they were about. Proof of this is in the enthusiastic mail they receive:

"At least someone has had the consummate good sense to use a model who is not a ridiculous sizes 5 or 7, in an ad for clothing for heavier women" . . . "Somehow the fashions made for stout women never look the same on a size 8" . . . "I will frame your ad and show all my stout sisters that we are finally being recognized."

Smart styling pleases large women even more than models they can identify with.

"When our grandfather started the firm 65 years ago," John said, "large sizes automatically meant dull styling in brown, black and navy. Sure, we still do some dark colors but the bulk of our fashions are colorful and trendy."

A look at the line proves the point. One of the hottest fashions of the moment, the T-shirt, is done in solids, stripes, and bright colors for sizes 38 to 52. Jeans with such touches as patches, decorative zippers, and braided belts, come in large sizes too: "We were the first to make jeans with a 46-inch waist," Ken pointed out.

The firm's success secret is simple. They've taken a young look and expanded it to fit large-size women. It's not just fashion but good fit that makes the concept work.

The lines include slacks, shorts, culottes, skirts, and evening outfits in every conceivable fabric, including denim, corduroy, velvet, and simulated leather. As for colors, the large woman can choose her favorite from shades that range from pastels through brights to a few darks. On a practical note, 95 per cent of the Patrician and Young Stuff fashions are machine-washable.

"I think you could call what we've done 'Stout Liberation,'" Ken said. "Our message is simple: Big is beautiful. No matter what she weighs, a woman should be able to get excited about clothes. That's what fashion is all about."

The African Methodist Episcopal Church was founded in 1816. It is the largest of the African Methodist denomination with a membership of 1.2 million.

Mrs. Dellinger entertains class

Mrs. Dorothy Dellinger was hostess in her home for the Marguerite Class meeting. Mrs. Dellinger opened meeting with a reading, "Strangers Are Friends We Haven't Met."

Mrs. Fred Rost read the foreword and excerpts from the book "Faith, Hope and Hilarity," a children's book by Dick VanDyke who at one time was a Sunday School teacher and from the interesting and unrehearsed quips from children produced his book. She also read a poem or prayer which was a favorite of Thomas E. Dewey. Devotions were closed by prayer.

Mrs. Frank Dellinger read the minutes of the April meeting and also correspondence to the class. Mrs. Cortine Taylor gave the treasurer's report and also reported on the May banquet.

Wedding set for October

MISS REBECCA J. MOSSBARGER

Mr. and Mrs. Lee A. Mossbarger of New Holland, are pleased to announce the engagement of their daughter, Rebecca Jane Mossbarger to Anthony D. Greco, son of Dr. and Mrs. Daniel J. Greco of Amsterdam, N.Y.

Miss Mossbarger is a graduate of Miami Trace High School, Washington C.H. and a 1974 graduate of the Ohio State University, Columbus. Currently she is employed as a commercial artist in the Jack Eckerd Corporation, Clearwater, Fla.

Mr. Greco is a graduate of the Wilbur H. Lynch Sr. High School and a 1973 graduate of the University of Notre Dame in South Bend, Ind. He is currently employed as a corporate auditor for General Telephone and Electronics located in Stamford, Conn.

An October wedding is being planned.

Miss Knedler feted at noon luncheon

Miss Karmel Knedler, bride-elect of Charles Thomas Payton, was complimented at a noon luncheon and bridal shower recently in the home of Miss Gretchen Krieger. Following the opening of many lovely gifts, a dessert course was served.

Invited guests were Mrs. Ircel Knedler and daughters, Kindra and Kim, mother and sisters of the honor guest, Mrs. Harley Payton, mother of the prospective bridegroom, and the Misses Elaine Puckett, Diane Burke, Diana Patton, Diane Blessing, Danita Adams, Julie Grubbs, Brenda Garringer, Rajean Kiser, Linda Varney, Sharon Smith, Mary Beth Deer, all of this area, and Jill Silvers and Cheryl Wilson, both of London. Mrs. Karl Krieger assisted her daughter in the hospitalities.

Miss Knedler and Mr. Payton will be married Saturday in First Presbyterian Church.

Phi Beta Psi plans picnic for Aug. 2

The home of Mrs. Max Schlichter was the setting for the June meeting of Phi Beta Psi Sorority. Newly installed president, Mrs. Birch Rice conducted the business meeting. Mrs. Rice announced standing committees for the coming year and Mrs. Warren Craig was welcomed back as an active member.

Additional Bicentennial cookbooks are now available and may be purchased at $3.00 each from any active member.

The six member who attended the Ohio State Convention, Columbus, May 16 reported a very informative and enjoyable day.

Plans are being made for the annual sorority picnic to be held Monday, August 2, at the home of Mrs. Marvin Rozmann, 1235 Dayton Ave. for all active, inactive and associate members.

Following the meeting refreshments were served by Mrs. Mark Schaeper and Mrs. Don Kirk.

Pending trial in Common Pleas Court

Murder suspect completes exams

A Fayette County woman, charged in March with the murder of her husband in a Washington C.H. home, recently completed a number of psychiatric examinations.

Alice Maye Reed, 36, of 7048 Stafford Rd., has been incarcerated in the Franklin County Jail for security reasons, pending a trial in Fayette County Common Pleas Court. At different times in May and June, she had been examined by three psychiatrists in Columbus and Cincinnati.

Mrs. Reed was arrested March 15 by Washington C.H. police officers, the day after her husband, Raymond C. Reed, 42, was found dead in his brother Francis' home at 642 High St. Reed had suffered two gunshot wounds in the stomach and abdomen, and had sustained a fractured skull from a blunt object, police officers reported.

During her arraignment before Fayette County Common Pleas Court Judge Evelyn W. Coffman, Mrs. Reed entered pleas of "not guilty" and "not guilty by reason of insanity." She is being represented by John D. Bryan, a Washington C.H. attorney.

On May 13, on a motion by assistant Fayette County prosecuting attorney John H. Roszmann, Mrs. Reed was taken from the Fayette County jail to the Southwest Mental Health Clinic in Columbus. She underwent psychiatric examination at that time.

She was taken to Cincinnati on May 25 and June 2 for further psychiatric observation ordered after a motion by the prosecution. In both instances she was examined by a single psychiatrist.

Reed had been living with his brother when the homicide occurred during the evening hours of March 14. He was a life-long resident of Fayette County, and had been a veteran of 20 years service in the U.S. Navy. Until his death, he had been employed as a credit manager with the Barnhart Firestone Store, 304 E. Market St.

Liquor permit received

Buckeye Hills, Inc., Limes Road, near New Martinsburg, has been issued a private club liquor permit by the Ohio Department of Liquor Control.

Situated in historically "dry" Perry Township, the country club had not been able to sell alcoholic beverage.

Although club members could purchase tokens to obtain drinks, the open sale of intoxicating beverage was prohibited.

With the awarding of the permit, the club will be able to sell liquor without tokens by-the-glass until 1 a.m. daily.

Tuesday is the first day the club will be permitted free sale, and liquor may be purchased after the election polls close at 7:30 p.m.

Initiative petitions had sought to allow liquor sales in Perry Township for the past several years, but each time, the issue was defeated by local voters.

The issue finally passed last November by Perry Township voters, and Buckeye Hills sought a permit a short time later.

This 'n that

The Three C Corvette Club will hold its monthly meeting Thursday at the Three C Camper Sales near Sabina.

On the club's agenda is the acceptance of membership application by the National Corvette Club.

Plans for Sunday's trip to Cedar Point to join in Corvette Day activities will be finalized at the meeting. Any corvette owner wishing to make the trip should contact Carl Anders (513-584-2871) after 9 p.m.

New drug abuse attack detailed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The newest methods for drug abuse prevention will be detailed at the upcoming Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation drug studies institute.

Dr. Jim Shulman, of the department's bureau of drug abuse said speakers from around the nation, including Ohio specialists, will present the latest material on drug abuse.

Woman hurt in two-car accident

A Washington C.H. woman was injured following a two-car collision Wednesday, and three other accidents occurring in the county were investigated by law enforcement officers.

A car driven by Marcia A. Clark, 20, of 914 John St., was westbound on Willard Street when she collided with another car after having entered the Elm Street intersection. She told police officers she saw a car driven by David Munyon, 26, of Greenfield, proceeding north on Elm Street, but she was unable to stop.

Ms. Clark was taken to Fayette County Memorial Hospital, treated for contusions of the chest, and later released. The 12:36 a.m. Wednesday accident resulted in moderate damage to both cars.

Beth A. Kimmet, 17, of 526 Rawlings St., had been northbound on Forest Street, when she reportedly failed to notice a car approaching from Temple Street, and a collision resulted at the intersection. The second car was driven by Carol J. Meyers, 29, of 5134 Washington-Waterloo Road, and it was moderately damaged. The Kimmet car was slightly damaged in the 9:57 a.m. Tuesday accident.

In the process of backing from a parking space in front of the courthouse on Central Place, a car driven by Rebecca J. Thompson, 43, Washington-Waterloo Road, struck a car parked alongside of her. The parked car belonged to Richard Keiser, 2023 Snow Hill Road, and it was slightly damaged in the 10:33 p.m. Tuesday accident.

The Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported that a hitskip vehicle struck a gasoline pump belonging to Richard Beechler, 1659 U.S. 22-E. The accident occurred at the Central Sales Service Island, Union Township, just east of Washington C.H. A gasoline line was broken, and the hitskip damage is believed to have occurred sometime between 10 p.m. Monday and 7 a.m. Tuesday, sheriff's deputies reported.

Theft report checked

An alleged petty theft, a malicious destruction of property report, and an ill person incident were investigated by Washington C.H. police officers.

A $120 citizens band radio belonging to James Wright, 505 N. North St., was reportedly stolen from his pickup truck as it was parked in front of his residence, sometime between June 3 and Tuesday. Forced entry was made through the driver's door of the vehicle, he said.

Michael Trenner, 303 Second St., told police officers that upon returning home at 11 p.m. Tuesday, he discovered that one half of a showe enclosure door had been broken from its former position. Trenner said the incident was one of malicious destruction, and that $50 in damage was sustained.

Wilbur Ryan, 1006 John St., was taken by his wife to Fayette County Memorial Hospital following an undetermined seizure at 1:50 a.m. Tuesday. He was later transferred to the Veterans' Administration Hospital in Dayton.

After topping three Republican foes

Miss Palmer gets treasurer's nod

The first step in the political arena was a rewarding one for Jean L. Palmer.

After resigning her position with the city to campaign for the Fayette County treasurer's post, Miss Palmer outdistanced three other opponents to win the Republican nomination in Tuesday's primary election.

She will face Democrat Letha Cruea in the November general election. Mrs. Cruea was unopposed for her party's nomination.

Fayette County treasurer Harold A. Hise announced his retirement in March, and four Republicans scrambled for the party nod.

Miss Palmer won the preliminary contest convincingly by building a 150-vote margin in the four-way race. Robert E. McFadden finished second. He had 734 votes to the winner's 878.

Robert N. Highfield finished just 12 votes behind McFadden, and Ella M. Belt was fourth.

Employed at Mac Tools, Inc., for 20 years, Miss Palmer had served as administrator of the city's Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) program for the past two years.

Since she could not retain her position with CETA (which is funded by the federal government) while seeking public office, Miss Palmer resigned at the end of April.

She said she had enjoyed working with the public in the CETA program and had become experienced in billing while with Mac Tools. The treasurer's office offered an opportunity to combine the two, Miss Palmer said.

Possible reduction or elimination of CETA funding put her job as administrator in a precarious position, and Miss Palmer sought the "safety" of a more permanent position.

While many would contest the thought of safety in the political arena, her success Tuesday in a solid step toward four years in the Courthouse.

The final test will come in November. SEVERAL candidates face their only challenge in the general election.

JEAN L. PALMER

Democrats, including Cruea, advanced to the November ballot uncontested. Incumbent county commissioners J.

Herbert Perrill and Ray D. Warner were unopposed on the Republican slate. They will face Democrats Laurence A. (Bucky) Dumford and Morrison Gilbert, who were also unopposed, in the fall.

Fayette County Sheriff Donald L. Thompson, who had no opposition, will meet the only Democratic candidate Jerry Miko when he seeks to retain his post.

Republican Anna L. Marvin will square off against Democrat Elizabeth Fletcher in the general election. Both became the unopposed candidates of their respective parties for the position of clerk of Common Pleas Court. Catherine Hyer, who served two terms as clerk, has announced her retirement.

Republicans will assume three posts without opposition, even in November. James A. Kiger will continue to serve as prosecuting attorney, Lorie Armbrust will remain county recorder and Dr. Ralph Gebhart will continue as coroner.

All three were unopposed in the primary, and there are no Democrats vying for the offices.

McGough in trouble with votes

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — Kent McGough, incumbent Republican committeeman in the 4th Congressional District, was trailing challenger Robert Huffman Tuesday in a race that could cost McGough his post as state Republican chairman.

With 3 of 9 counties in the district completing the vote count in the GOP primary, Huffman was leading by 2,250 votes.

A Republican state committee rule forbids the state chairman from holding the chairmanship unless he is a member of the state committee. But that rule could be changed under pressure from Gov. James A. Rhodes who is a strong McGough supporter. Huffman is a member of the Reagan camp, while the governor and McGough endorsed Ford nearly a year ago.

McGough also is chairman of the Republican National Convention rules committee, but the outcome of the 4th District election will not affect that post.

Observers of the race say it was an unusual one because McGough campaigned, a rare practice for the Republican committee position.

Stationary high pressure in the mid Mississippi Valley continued to influence Ohio's weather today and is expected to do so for a few more days. Daytime will be sunny and warm and nights partly cloudy and mild.

Temperatures this afternoon were to be in the 80s, with readings Thursday expected to be in the upper 80s and the low 90s, readings more normal for mid summer.

Fair Friday with a chance of showers Saturday or Sunday.

Hays heads back for Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — Armed with a vote of confidence from Democrats in his Ohio district, Wayne Hays returns to Washington to face demands that he step aside as chairman of the House Administration Committee pending investigation of the payroll sex scandal.

Hays said last weekend that he is considering such a move, but sources close to the committee said Tuesday that he had sent back no word of his final decision.

Hays won nomination for reelection Tuesday, but his traditional opponent, Nick Karnick doubled his previous best against Hays with about 40 per cent of the total vote.

On the basis of early returns, Hays said: "According to the circumstances and the pressure I have been under, it is gratifying."

Hays announced last week he will step out as chairman of a House Democratic campaign committee pending investigation of the charges by Elizabeth Ray that she was paid $14,000 a year as a committee secretary primarily to be his mistress.

Hays told reporters Sunday that some members of the administration committee think a temporary surrender of that chairmanship "is a gesture I ought to make and (that) I'll come back."

His spokeswoman, Carol Clawson, has said the committee will meet this week, but members were told that a meeting scheduled for today was likely to be postponed.

The full House Democratic Caucus is scheduled to meet next Wednesday on a resolution to force Hays to step aside as Administration chairman.

The two-week joint exercise off the North Carolina and Georgia coasts involves 36 ships and more than 50,000 men and women from all branches of the Armed Forces.

The exercise will include air, surface and submarine operations and an amphibious assault. It is designed to test command and control plans and to provide training in the procedures for emergency evacuation of non-combatants from a simulated battle zone.

A former student of McClain High School, he joined the Navy in December 1973.

Navy Airman Apprentice Kenneth E. Underwood, 22, son of Mr. Roy C. Underwood and Mrs. Mary L. Underwood of 429 Fifth St., has reported for duty aboard the aircraft carrier USS Independence, Homeported in Norfolk, Va.

A 1973 graduate of Washington Senior High School, he joined the Navy in November 1975.

U.S. fears Syria caught in Lebanon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is increasingly apprehensive over the disintegrating military outlook in Lebanon and is worried that Syria will not be able to control the situation resulting from its invasion of the war-torn nation.

Syria has sent 3,000 new troops into Lebanon since the weekend, increasing its total force there to just under 10,000. U.S. officials attribute the jump to the failure of the original contingent to restore order between warring Lebanese Christian and Moslem factions.

However, a ranking State Department official says Syrian troops have had their noses bloodied by the Moslem leftists in the fighting over the past day or two in spite of the reinforcements and the use of tanks and air power.

This means that Syria now faces a serious loss of face unless it overcomes the opposition. The U.S. sources say Syrian President Hafiz Assad is therefore more likely to get drawn deeper into the situation.

The officials add that Syria did not inform the United States in advance of its troop increase and has not told Washington of its final intentions in Lebanon.

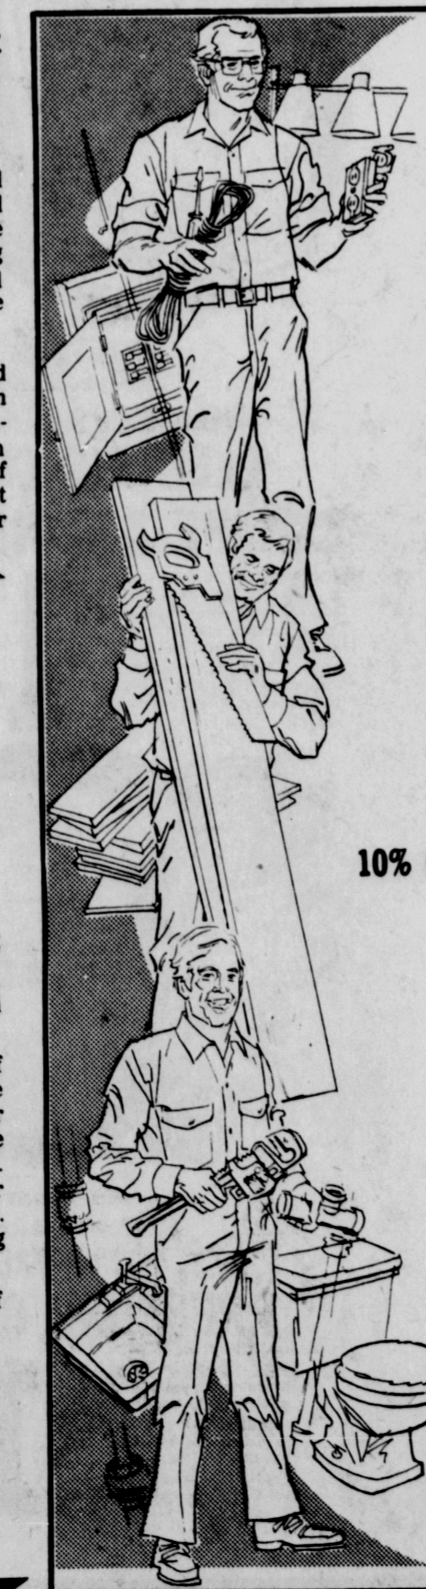

They say they have no clear idea of what Syria is doing with its large-scale intervention, although one policy maker said he tends to believe that Assad means it when he asserts his troops will withdraw once a cease-fire is operational and political stability is achieved.

Other sources believe Assad has intervened in order to install a government in Beirut that will be friendly to him and offset radical Arab forces that he cannot control.

The very fact that there are so many opinions by American experts exemplifies the uncertainty in Washington and underlines the lack of solid information available to policy makers.

It is this confusion that has created apprehension in U.S. circles and has caused officials to back away from their cautious optimism of a week ago.

They deny that the United States ever approved Syria's intervention, either directly or tacitly.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) —Three "ins" were tossed out in Tuesday's primary elections for the General Assembly.

The heaviest casualty was Sen. Donald L. Woodland, D-16 Columbus, chairman of the Senate Commerce and Labor Committee.

Defeated in House primaries were Rep. William A. Kopp, D-29 Columbus, seeking a third term, and freshman Rep. John P. Brandenburg, R-20 Cincinnati.

Twenty-two other incumbents survived primary battles.

A turnover of at least 9 of the 99 House seats and 3 of 16 Senate spots to be filled is assured for the 1977-78 legislative session. Seven House members and two senators did not run for re-election.

Democrats, now holding a 59-40 House edge, have a head start toward another majority with no Republican opposition in 10 districts.

Four incumbent Democrats topping primary foes have no general election contests and four others had no primary contest or general election competition—Cleveland Democrats Thomas H. Bell, Ike Thompson and John D. Thompson Jr. and Casey C. Jones of Toledo.

Reps. Patrick Sweeney, D-6 Cleveland, and C.J. McLin, D-36 Dayton, face only independent candidates in the fall.

Democrats currently have the Senate strength, 21-12, to override vetoes by GOP Gov. James A. Rhodes and need only to add a vote to their 59-40 House advantage to make the lower chamber veto-proof.

Democratic House Speaker Vernal G. Riffe Jr. of New Boston said his forces will concentrate this fall on beating three incumbent Republicans—Paul Wingard of Stow, Richard F. Maier of Massillon and Scribner L. Fauver of Elyria—and picking up seats vacated by GOP Reps. Joseph Tulley of Mentor and John Scott of Fairborn.

Republicans won those seats with 110 to 1,697 votes in 1974.

Riffe said major Democratic efforts also will go into helping two House freshmen retain the seats they gained by slim margins two years ago—Rep. William J. Healy, D-50 Canton, and Rep. Ronald James, D-92 Proctorville. Woodland, looking for his second, four-year Senate term, lost unofficially by 935 votes to Columbus lawyer Michael Schwarzwald.

Schwarzwald, 32, accused Woodland of a conflict of interest between his lawmaking and his job as area development representative for Columbia Gas Co.

Schwarzwald will face Republican Milford S. Ferguson of Columbus.

Kopp was beaten by 2,540 votes by Les Brown, 31, a recruiter for the Communications Workers of America and former radio personality in Central Ohio. Brandenburg, a freshman whose attendance record had slipped below 50 per cent in the 1976 legislative session, was trounced by former Rep. Thomas Pottenger, a Cincinnati lawyer.

The Hamilton County Republican party had endorsed Pottenger over Brandenburg.

In a Senate primary battle between two former U.S. representatives, incumbent Sen. Donald E. (Buz) Lukens, R-4 Middletown, defeated Walter E. Powell.

The two men had switched jobs six years ago, with Powell leaving the Ohio

Senate for a seat in Congress vacated by Lukens when Lukens ran unsuccessfully for governor. Lukens then was appointed to the Senate vacancy left by Powell and won a four-year term in 1972. Powell, meanwhile, did not try for re-election to the U.S. House in 1974.

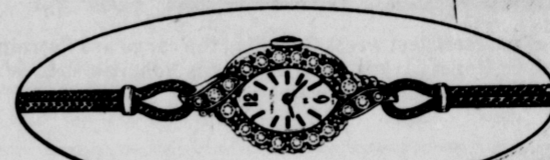

Two state senators midway through their terms won Democratic nominations for the U.S. House—Donald J. Pease of Oberlin and William F. Bowen of Cincinnati. Another midterm senator, Anthony J. Celebrezze Jr. of Cleveland, lost a bid for the U.S. House seat vacated by James V. Stanton to make the U.S. Senate race.

Two veteran Democrats from the House—Marcus Roberto of Ravenna and Kenneth Cox of Barberton—won nominations for the state Senate.

Atom jobs not enough

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio (AP) — President Ford's campaign endorsement of a bill promising a multibillion dollar nuclear industry for this Ohio River community wasn't enough to win him the county's vote in Tuesday's primary.

While Ford easily carried Ohio, he lost Scioto County to Ronald Reagan. The complete unofficial vote was 4,510 for Reagan to 3,182 for Ford.

During a major campaign trip to Ohio on May 26 the president announced support of the Nuclear Fuel Assurance Act which passed the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy.

If approved by Congress and signed by Ford, the government would guarantee up to $8 billion of private investment in private plants providing uranium enrichment. The federal government currently owns the nation's only three such plants.

Ford said as soon as Congress passed the bill he would ask for a $177 million appropriation for construction planning and design to enlarge a uranium enrichment facility 18 miles north of here in neighboring Pike County. That county supported Ford, 923 to 733 for Reagan.

FIRST DELIVERY — Gerald J. Patronite (kneeling), executive director of the Ohio Lottery, inspects the first load of tickets, worth $1 million for the lottery's new "Instant Game" which was delivered to lottery headquarters last week. Guarding the cargo are Patrolman Robert Rogers (right) and Sgt. Louis Adoryan (left) of the University Circle Police Department.

Prizes range from $2 to $10,000

Instant lottery game set June 15

Gerald J. Patronite, executive director of the Ohio Lottery, today announced that sales for Ohio's first instant lottery game will begin on Tuesday, June 15.

For the first time Ohioans will have the opportunity to win instantly prizes ranging from $2 to $10,000 with the chance to win a million dollar grand prize in the jackpot drawing.

Players of the instant lottery must rub the gold foil from the circle, squares and prize box on the ticket. If any of the numbers in the three squares matches the number in the circle they are winners of the amount shown in the prize box: $2, $5, $500, $1000, or $10,000.

If all three numbers in the squares match the number in the circle players win at least $15,000 and qualify as a finalist in the jackpot drawing for prizes of $250,000, $500,000 and the grand prize of $1,000,000. To participate in the jackpot drawing finalists must file a valid claim by a deadline to be announced. Finalists claiming after the deadline receive the minimum prize of $15,000.

Two dollar and five dollar instant winners may collect immediately from any licensed Ohio Lottery sales agent. $200, $500, $1000 and $10,000 winners and jackpot finalist must file a claim at any of the regional lottery offices located throughout the state.

Most labor pacts not inflationary

WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor contracts in the construction industry are being negotiated without the strikes and inflationary wage settlements that former Labor Secretary John Dunlop warned of six months ago.

Federal officials say the moderation is mainly due to high unemployment and competition from non-union labor.

With two-thirds of the 2,800 construction union contracts up for negotiation this year already settled, industry strike activity is at its lowest level in five years. Officials say the wage trend in contracts has been toward moderation.

Federal labor officials say the moderation is due to the high unemployment rate in the industry, which has yet to recover from the recession, and a realization among union leaders that non-union contractors are taking a larger share of the business.

"It has resulted in a bit more realistic and rational approach to bargaining," chief federal mediator

James F. Searce said Tuesday.

"There seems to be an air of accommodation at the bargaining table," he commented in an interview. "The number of strikes is way down, about half what they were last year up to this point, and indications are that the settlements are more moderate."

First-year wage settlements are averaging about 7 per cent, less than the 8.1 per cent average for 1975.

It was feared that construction unions, angered over President Ford's veto of a bill expanding picketing rights, would push for inflationary settlements that would influence bargaining in other industries.

Major contracts covering 4.5 million workers, including 500,000 in construction, expire this year. Administration economists feared that a wage explosion would endanger the economic recovery.

Dunlop, who supported the "common situs" picketing bill, predicted "unmitigated hell" in construction bargaining because of the President's veto of the picketing bill.

But with 14.1 per cent of the industry's workforce off the job, the pressure on the industry by union bargainiers is lessened. Union leaders have urged that workers vent their frustration with Ford at the polls, not the bargaining table.

Skies clear in Midwest

By The Associated Press
Skies were clear over much of the East and Midwest today.

But scattered showers and thunderstorms were reported over the Rockies, the high Plains, in eastern Washington, northern Minnesota, the upper Great Lakes, New England, and Florida.

There has been considerable cloudiness in those areas and in the Pacific coastal states and some showers in the mountains of northern California.

Near the center of the high pressure area, winds have been light and there has been little mixing of the air. As a result, haze and smoke has reduced visibility somewhat from Arkansas into southern Illinois, western Kentucky and western Tennessee. In spite of the high, a few thundershowers have persisted in the southern Appalachians.

Most of the thunderstorms have been rather mild. In central Montana, Coffee Creek, 34 miles northwest of Livingston, reported three mobile homes destroyed by an evening tornado. Some locally heavy rain was reported.

Early morning temperatures ranged from 46 at Redmond, Ore., to 83 at Phoenix, Ariz.

For summer Little League program

LL fish fry nets $2,602.10

The 20th annual Little League fish fry, sponsored by the Washington C.H. Rotary Club, netted a total of $2,602.10 this year.

Don Kirk, president of the Washington C.H. Little League Association, said the $2,600 figure was a $300 increase over a year ago.

Kirk's report on the fish fry, held May 7 in the Mahan Building on the Fayette County Fairgrounds, was issued at the regular weekly luncheon meeting of the Washington C.H. Rotary Club Tuesday in the Country Club.

All proceeds from the fish fry will be used exclusively for the operation of the summer Little League baseball program in Washington C.H. and Union Township.

The fish fry has averaged between $1,900 and $2,000 annually.

Expenses include game equipment such as balls, bats, helmets and catchers gear, plus the employment of a program coordinator, umpires and scorekeepers.

There are more than 300 boys participating in the Little League program this season. There are eight major and 13 minor league teams in the local baseball program. The teams launched their summer seasons in early May.

Dale Willis was general chairman of this year's fund-raising event and Dr. James McCracken was assistant chairman. Some 90 members of the Rotary Club were engaged in the preparation and serving of food.

DURING the Rotary Club's program Tuesday, Philip H. Moseley presented a color slide travelog of trips he and his family have taken through Canada and the Eastern United States.

The travelog presented by Moseley, a Rotary Club member, included expert photography and some clever commentary.

The first portion of the program was devoted to Canada and most of the photographs were taken by Moseley as he travelled west along the Trans Canada highway.

The presentation included slides of glacier-fed Lake Louise, in Canada, which is one of the most photographed spots in the world.

Also depicted were Moseley's ride on a snowmobile on a glacier, and the many buffalo, moose, mountain goats, elk and deer which inhabit the area.

The travelog continued through Montana to Yellowstone National Park, the oldest and largest national park in the U.S.

There are 10,000 geysers in the park and each has its own individual "plumbing" system, Moseley said. The most famous is "Old Faithful" which erupts every 65 minutes.

Also included in Moseley's presentation were slides of the Grand Canyon, the Grand Teton mountains in Wyoming and the Black Hills of South Dakota. The program was concluded with pictures of the Mount Rushmore monument.

The meeting was conducted by club president William E. Williams, who also introduced the guest speaker.

Doug Wheeler, of Elmira, Canada, was a guest with Sam Marting and visiting Rotarians were Charles Pitts and Jerry Ardrey, of London, L.E. Bingham and Darrell French, of Wilmington, and Clark Miller, of Mount Sterling.

Business booming at bell foundry

LONDON (AP) — The American Bicentennial is booming business at the 550-year-old Whitechapel Bell Foundry which cast the Liberty Bell in 1752.

"You couldn't say we're swamped," says Douglas Hughes, one of the partners in the foundry, "but orders have suddenly pepped up because of the Bicentennial. It will keep us going for part of this year anyway."

Besides the six-ton Bicentennial Bell delivered in Philadelphia last week as a gift from Britain, the foundry is turning out two dozen replicas of the Liberty

Bell and thousands of scale models in various sizes.

It has completed 14 full-size, one-ton replicas and has 10 more on order for states, cities and organizations. Each takes two weeks to cast, finish and tune to the E above middle C, Hughes said.

Made of copper and tin with the original mould-making gauge, they are exact duplicates of the Liberty Bell "as it left here in 1752," Hughes said.

He stresses "as it left here" because, he says, the 18th century Yanks rather fouled up the original bell.

"People do not realize how brittle bell metal is," he said. "You can break a piece of it with a hammer in your hand because your hand prevents it from vibrating."

"There is no record of precisely what happened, but probably it was hung wrong because it cracked when it was struck."

It was recast, but "they didn't do a very good job. The two people who recast it were not bell founders; they were brass founders. They put too much brass into the new bell and it was too soft. It wouldn't ring."

TV Viewing

NEW YORK (AP) — The British Broadcasting Corp. from time to time sells its prestige shows to American public TV. So what happens when it gets the chance to buy "The Adams Chronicles" and return the fiscal favor?

It has said no dice — at least, not now — according to Robert Kotlowitz, a program executive at New York's WNET, which produced the 13-part biennial drama series with a whopping $6.7 million budget.

Variety magazine, the showbiz bible, last week said the BBC had a "long-running option" to buy the series about the historic Adams family of Massachusetts, "but dropped out after viewing the product."

"The BBC rebuff was a blow to WNET production prestige," it added. "T'aint so, insists Kotlowitz. He says the BBC had no option to buy the series and "they haven't bought it for a number of reasons, none of them having to deal with the program itself."

"They have a very complicated set of problems over there," he explained, citing a severe budget crisis currently afflicting the BBC as one of three reasons the Adams series rang up a no-sale there.

"Number two is that there are severe problems in terms of English performing unions in terms of importing American-made production," he said. He meant that the unions gripe to the BBC and the government that American-made, American-acted shows on British TV take away English jobs, a gripe American unions make about English shows on public TV here.

The third reason the BBC cited for a no-sale, he said, "is a quota system that allows the BBC to import only a very limited amount of American production" for showing on its airwaves.

The BBC here had no immediate estimate of what percentage of American programming is allowed on TV in Britain.

"The Adams Chronicles" originally was budgeted at $5.2 million. The money came from the Andrew Mellon Foundation, the Atlantic Richfield Co. and the National Endowment for the Humanities. But it went $1.5 million over budget, WNET says, because of a seven-week delay caused by a writers' strike and by script revisions made to insure historical accuracy.

Kotlowitz said he didn't know exactly how much the BBC was asked to pay for the series, but insisted "there was not an enormous amount of money involved."

"We pay in America — not only WNET but the entire public television system — about $20,000 to $30,000 an episode for BBC product we show here."

"And they (the BBC) generally pay a bit less because the size of their audience is less. And we certainly were operating within those parameters."

WNET says the series has been bought for showing in Mexico, Ireland, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Finland, Greece, Belgium and Germany so far, and that it currently is being offered to commercial TV in Britain.

Witch hunts not unknown in Ohio

By The Associated Press

Witch hunts were not unknown among the superstitious settlers on Ohio's early frontier, but one case recorded by the Ohio Historical Society ended happily, at least for the accused, Nancy Evans of Bethel in Clermont County.

The town had been founded in 1797 by Obed Denham, a native of Virginia, and when he moved to Clermont County from Kentucky he offered liberal inducements to other Kentucky families to settle there. Historians said most of the new residents were "fine, intelligent people," but also in the village were a few families who unfortunately believed in the presence of evil spirits and witches.

"The Hildebrand family was among this number; apparently it imagined itself especially under the influence of witches as the older daughters gave unmistakable evidence that they were possessed by some evil spirits," the historians said. When night approached they would scream and at times become frantic with fright. They tried numerous methods to drive away the evil spirits but all failed, and finally they accused a neighbor, Nancy Evans, of being the cause of their troubles.

At last a Justice of the Peace called on Nancy to stop troubling the afflicted family. Statutes of the Northwest Territory had made no provision for such a case and it had to be disposed of in another way. Tradition prevailed that if a witch were weighed against the Holy Bible, so great would be the overpowering influence of the Bible that a witch could never tip the beam. Accordingly, a pair of scales was constructed and all interested watched as Nancy was placed on one end of the scales and the Bible on the other.

Price stability: asset or debit?

NEW YORK (AP) — At a private luncheon in the small executive dining room of a very large corporation last week the president was bemoaning the "lack of discipline" in a basic industry. The competition, he said, was cutting prices.

"But isn't that the way it should be?" he was asked.

"You can't cut your prices," he replied calmly and with certainty. "Your competition will just cut theirs. And if you cut, you won't make sufficient income to recover your investment."

Therefore, in his view, you must seek to maintain pricing discipline. You must keep order in the industry, for the common good of all those in the industry.

Most of us were brought up on the notion that prices tend to fall when demand weakens, even though we've become suspicious in recent months that the theory isn't the practice.

But, as was demonstrated in that conversation, not everyone believes the market should or can work that way, and some of them are in very powerful positions, such as the chairmanship and presidency of large companies.

"Isn't such pricing unfair to the public?" the president was asked.

They benefit too, he said. "If we cut our prices and cannot obtain a fair return on our investment, then when demand rises again we won't be in a position to meet demand and our prices will rise sharply."

Minnows helping control mosquitoes

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — If you have a pool around the yard, put some minnows in it. They probably will eat any mosquito larvae, and you will be playing a part on controlling the dangerous disease encephalitis.

Mosquito time is here, and with it comes the threat of sleeping sickness. A rather severe outbreak was recorded in Indiana last summer.

Purdue University extension entomologist Dave Matthew says, "At this time, the only effective method of controlling encephalitis is through mosquito control."

witchcraft, and diabolical practices," was the charge. Nancy won. She was heavier than the Book and from then on was relieved of all suspicions of being more than the kindly old woman who had submitted to the test to bring peace of mind to her neighbors, whom she pitied.

Elderly man organized baseball program

Diamond in the rough

By CINDI PEARCE
Record-Herald Staff Writer

Tom C. Clark, a person concerned with juvenile delinquency, once said that he was convinced that every boy, in his heart, would rather steal second base than an automobile.

A 68-year-old man, who was born and raised in Chillicothe, and is now residing in the Margaret Clark Oakfield Convalescent Center in Washington C.H., has these same exact sentiments.

Clayton Raney spent 17 years of his life devoting his time to children, particularly boys, who wanted to play ball. Raney, who said that he's never played an organized game of sports in his life, was dissatisfied with the baseball program in Chillicothe when he returned to his hometown after a stint in Columbus. "The kids were playing ball in the streets and on small vacant lots. There was alot of fussing and fighting because there was no organization. They needed a system of sorts," Raney said.

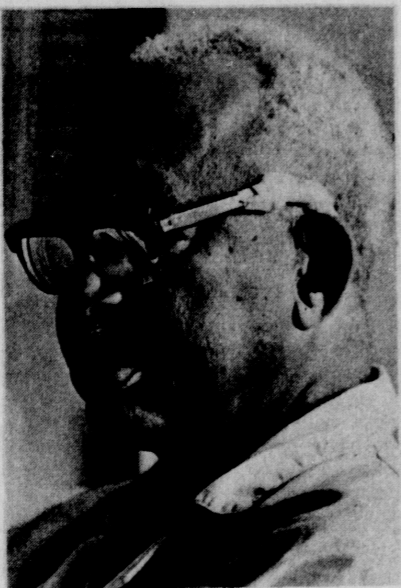

So he decided to do something about it. It was 1954, and he had just been declared disabled. "I became involved in the ball program because if the kids wanted to play ball then they should have a place to do so. Also, I needed something with which to occupy my time." On that day 22 years ago, Raney took a scrap of paper and a pencil, which he still has, and went out to the street where the boys were attempting to play baseball and told them to pick sides. This was just the beginning. Raney, along with several interested persons, some of them whom didn't even have children of their own, organized a league which they called the Little League, unaware that the selection of this particular name was going to create problems later. "At first we played in a three cornered, pie shaped lot. The problem here was that there were surrounding yards, and when the boys would knock a ball into one of the yards, they didn't care about anything, not the hedges, not anything. They just wanted to get that ball."

Finally a woman donated four acres of ground upon Raney's request. The only conditions set were that the weeds were to be cut regularly. "In 17 years, she only came to the ballpark once," Raney said in reference to the donor.

The weeds were trimmed regularly and the children of Chillicothe attended the park with regularity. It was unofficially named the Pine Street Ball Park.

Raney's park was not your every day ball park. Not that it differed in appearance, it was what occurred there that made it unique. Raney's park wasn't used for organized ball games. "The boys would come to the Pine Street Ball Park and practice. They didn't clown or horse around and they didn't quit. We didn't have a formal team at our park, but when someone wanted to start an organized team, they would come to the park and look my boys over and then pick the one they wanted. Some would look for speed, others would look for a good arm," Raney stated.

Raney said that there were a lot of boys who were considered too young or too small to participate in the games, but he put an end to that notion. "There was one boy named Stevie and the other boys wouldn't let him play because he was too small. Well, I asked him if he wanted to play. He'd just gotten a new bike and wouldn't get off of it. That particular day, we had nine players and we needed one more so that we could have even sides. I finally convinced Stevie that he wasn't too small to play if he wanted to play. Finally, he got off of his bike and joined," Raney recalled.

The boys were often considered too young to play if they were physically small or inexperienced. "If there were four younger boys at the park, then when we picked teams, I would put two of the small boys on one team and two on the other team and then I would give orders that the ball was to be hit to them so that they could make the play," Raney said.

The fact that Raney allowed boys of varying ages to play, or practice, on the same team, and the fact that they played seven innings instead of the standard six, as is done in Little League, created a hassle. "I got this letter from a law firm in New York that said I couldn't call my league the Little League because of our rules, so we simply changed the name to the Youth League rather than compromise our rules."

When Raney first started his program, there weren't too many boys active in the sport because of the poor facilities provided by the city. "At that time, Washington C.H. had a much more advanced baseball program than did Chillicothe, but after a few years, I was able to get every imaginable piece of equipment for my field," Raney stated proudly.

The Pine Street Ball Park was operated strictly by Raney. He wouldn't tolerate disruptions. "If a boy came to the park and said 'Raney, I have to go home in 15 minutes', then I would make him declare himself before the game started. This way, everyone knew ahead of time that this boy would be leaving. If I hadn't had this rule of declaring one's self, then boys would

Raney, who said that his continuing participation in the Pine Street Ball Park until the time of his stroke in 1971, was because he just kept wanting to make ballplayers, feels that any organized activity is good for a child. "It teaches them how to get along with others and the importance of being on time. My boys learned to listen when given instructions" Raney said. He added, "I always kept in contact with the parents and cooperated with them."

Many of the boys who played at Raney's park are now "professionals" in their respective fields. Raney has several scrapbooks filled with pictures of those he supervised and he has a passle of letters from these boys and their parents who still write to him.

When asked what he thought about girls playing ball, Raney answered emphatically, "If I'd had my way, the girls would have been involved in sports a long time ago. Some girls did play at my park and they were pretty good. The boys didn't want them to participate and they would come to me and say that they were going to quit if I allowed the girls to play. Well, I told them that they'd just have to quit then. The boys would get embarrassed when the girls would catch the ball, make the play, and get them out. You see, they were taught that girls just weren't supposed to do things like that." He added that the bigger the boys got, the sooner they noticed girls and automobiles and they would be gone from the park forever.

Raney is a Cincinnati Reds fan, but said what he'd really like to see is the Reds win the National League and the Cleveland Indians win the American League. "I just like to see a man make a good play. I don't care which team he's on."

Saying that he taught his boys not to get mad and throw fits, Raney said that he never once refused to let anyone play ball at his park. "If someone didn't have a glove, then I'd get one for him."

Raney's advice to young ballplayers is, "Get an education first, baseball second because any play in sports could be your last. At least get a high school education and then you'll always have something to fall back on."

When it became essential that the ball park have a telephone, Raney was the person sent out to round one up. He knew of a man, who could get that phone for him, and he also knew that this man was especially fond of antiques. "I went to see this man and I talked antiques. Ten minutes later we had our phone."

Noticing that kids now, more than ever, are becoming involved in diverse activities, Raney said that he thinks it's important for a child to do something constructive rather than just run wild.

Raney is presently learning how to play checkers and he reads some. He likes to play cards, but he has curtailed one of his other favorite past times: letter writing. "When the stamps went

Committee races decided

There were only two races for seats for county central committee posts (both on the Democratic ticket) at Tuesday's primary election.

All other central committee candidates, both Democratic and Republican, were elected without opposition in 42 precincts.

In the tightest race, Mrs. Emmett (Aileen) Campbell, 783 McLean St., defeated veteran committeeman Donald P. Foster, 954 Old Chillicothe Road, by a 28-24 margin in precinct C of the city's fourth ward.

Foster had served on the county central committee for the past 14 years.

In the only other race, Mrs. Hubert (Jane) Ferneau, 3558 Bush Road, topped Elmer Hager, 2680 U.S. 22-E, by a margin of 10 votes (25-15) in the West Precinct of Union Township.

Mrs. Ferneau is presently serving as the committeewoman

Water seepage dam failure cause

WASHINGTON (AP) — Water seeping past concrete barriers that lined Idaho's Teton dam may have caused the dam's disastrous collapse last Saturday, a government spokesman says.

The collapse, as the earthen dam's reservoir was being filled for the first time, sent a flood racing down the Teton River, killing at least nine persons and destroying homes and farms.

With the disaster under investigation in Congress and by government scientists, a spokesman for the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation said attention was centering on signs that water seepage first began eating a hole into the base of the downstream, "dry" side of the 307-foot-high dam, rather than the upstream side where its new 17-mile reservoir was half full and still rising.

But the spokesman said investigators did not know how the water might have reached that area on the face of the dam. The $55-million structure was completed last December after being authorized in 1964 for flood control and irrigation.

The spokesman said bureau experts speculated that once the seepage washed a channel through to the reservoir side, the high-pressure reservoir water began pouring through, rapidly enlarging the break until the dam burst.

The pressure of water at the base of a dam can be enormous; a water depth of 100 feet exerts a pressure of some 6,240 pounds — more than three tons — per square foot.

Explaining the current theory of the dam's collapse, the bureau spokesman said engineers knew they could not build a successful earthen dam without protecting it against direct water seepage through its foundation and its anchor points in the canyon walls.

To prevent such seepage, he said, they dug trenches into the riverbed and into the canyon walls and lined them with concrete.

Water which might have flowed through natural channels across those areas then was blocked and forced to detour underground around the ends of those barricades, called "grouts." These grouts extended beyond each end of the dam to divert underground water away from the dam.

Metzenbaum challenges Taft

CLEVELAND (AP) — Democrat Howard Metzenbaum claimed his party's nomination for the U.S. Senate here early today and immediately hurled the gauntlet at incumbent Sen. Robert Taft, R-Ohio.

"In 1970 I ran against Bob Taft, who was trading on his father's record, which was a good one," Metzenbaum said. "In 1976, Bob Taft has got to run on his own record, which is not a good one."

Metzenbaum told his cheering campaign workers that the Democrats have two objectives in 1976: "send Gerald Ford back to Grand Rapids and to send Bob Taft back to Cincinnati."

He claimed victory in Tuesday's Democratic primary at the stroke of midnight. Rep. James Stanton of Cleveland, his nearest challenger, called moments later and offered his congratulations to Metzenbaum, a wealthy Cleveland attorney who was appointed to the Senate in 1973 to fill the seat vacated by William Saxbe. He was defeated by Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, in the May 1974 Democratic primary in his bid for a full six-year term.

Metzenbaum appeared with his wife and family at his headquarters in a downtown hotel. He told his supporters they had helped him win "a tremendous victory from all appearances." He then called for the Democrats to unite statewide and help him defeat Taft in November.

"I think we're going to make it," he said as the band struck up "Happy Days are here again."

Past winners exemplify Christman Award tradition

In the spring of 1969, The Record-Herald instituted an award with the help of the Washington C.H. Kiwanis Club which was to single out Fayette County's most outstanding senior in terms of athletic ability, scholastic aptitude and leadership qualities.

The award, which was for two years known as the Record-Herald Award before being changed to the Clarence A. Christman Jr. Award in honor of the late city manager, went to Donald Bennett.

Seven "athlete-scholar-leader" awards have been handed out since Bennett was honored with the first. He was not only the first recipient, but he was a classic representative of what the award stands for. In fact, he still is.

Donald Bennett will graduate from Ohio State University Friday with a Juris Doctorate—law degree for the unenlightened.

It concludes nearly 20 years of schooling by the former Bloomingburg resident, who earned respect as an athlete, scholar and leader at Miami Trace High School.

While at Miami Trace, Bennett participated in basketball, winning honorable mention all-Ohio honors his senior year while playing for the late Delbert Mowery.

Mowery had nothing but praise for his candidate at the first awards' ceremony. He also forshadowed the heights Bennett's ability and desire would be able to reach

"Donald is truly an athlete, scholar, leader and sportsman in every sense. He brings great credit to himself, his family, school and community. Don's future is bright for his ability is endless and his desire and determination are untiring," Mowery said.

After graduating from Miami Trace, Bennett attended Defiance College. He played basketball for two years, but most of his time was devoted to his studies.

In 1973, he graduated from Defiance with a Bachelor of Science degree in political science cum laude (with honors). He was also presented the college's highest award, the Pilgrim Medal. The award commemorates "the Pilgrim qualities of relinace in self, pride in work, courage in conscience, strength in education and faith in god." Such notables as Pearl Buck, President Dwight Eisenhower and Jackie Robinson have also been presented with the award.

Members of the committee which selected Bennett for the Pilgrim Medal explained that he showed the ability to apply his education to all aspects of his life and that he has the potential to continue this in the future.

After Bennett receives his law degree and gets his bar exam results back, he will become a member of the United States Navy Judge Adjutant General Legal Corps. It's a three-year hitch, and to Bennett, the son of Mrs. Lester Sanders of Bloomingburg, it's another challenge.

Bennett is not the only Christman Award winner furthering his career in the spirit of the annual honor.

Tom Gifford and his brother Glenn have both won the award. Tom is now teaching at Edgewood Middle School in Sevinmough, Ohio. He teaches health and physical education while coaching football, basketball and track. Glenn is a senior at Ohio Northern University majoring in engineering.

Jeff Blake, the 1971 Christman winner, is now living in Dayton and he works for the Connecticut Mutual Insurance Co. He has been married for one and a half years and graduated from Wittenberg University where he started at tight end his senior and junior years.

Bill Junk, graduated from Ohio Wesleyan College with honors this spring. He furthered his golf career at the college and plans to enter graduate school in the fall.

Chuck Wilson is working at Fayette Memorial Hospital and plans to resume his college studies at Southern State College in Wilmington after a stint at the U.S. Naval Academy.

Jeff Smithson, who attends Morehead State University, was on hand to present this year's award winner, David Thompson, with the ebony plaque at the eighth Clarence A. Christman Awards banquet.

Bucs understand 'MVP' title

Morgan shows his wares

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The "MVP" in Joe Morgan's credits not only stands for "Most Valuable Player" — but "Most Versatile Player" as well.

The Cincinnati second baseman likes to brag that he can beat you any number of ways — and Tuesday night, he did it the easy way with two home run swings and a sacrifice fly.

"I don't think there are many things out there I can't do," said Morgan after his three RBI led the Reds to a 10-5 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates, "and there are a heck of a lot of things you can do."

Morgan, who won the MVP Award last year while leading the Reds to a World Series victory, is hitting the ball with more authority this season. His two shots Tuesday night gave him four in two nights and 11 for the season, tying him with George Foster for the lead on the Reds.

Tri-county league

Good Hope blasted Jackson, 26-3, in Tri-County little league action Tuesday.

Bill Dennis took the win pitching three innings and giving up one hit while striking out eight.

Bobby Redman and Mike Souther each doubled for Good Hope.

In other National League action, the Atlanta Braves beat the Chicago Cubs 7-3; the Houston Astros blanked the St. Louis Cardinals 2-0; the San Diego Padres defeated the New York Mets 3-0; the Philadelphia Phillies routed the Los Angeles Dodgers 14-2 and the Montreal Expos ripped the San Francisco Giants 9-4.

Cincinnati rookie Santo Alcala, 6-1, had a shutout until giving up three runs in the seventh inning and bowing to relief help from Fred Norman.

The Reds jumped on Pittsburgh starter Jim Rooker for four runs in the first inning with the aid of leadoff doubles by Pete Rose and Griffey, three walks and a two-run single by Dave Concepcion.

Braves 7, Cubs 3
Jerry Royster hammered a two-run

homer and Rod Gilbreath had four hits including a triple and a double to lead Atlanta over Chicago. The triumph was the fifth straight for the rejuvenated Braves while the Cubs lost their fifth in a row.

Phil Niekro, 4-4, scattered eight hits, including a solo homer by Bill Madlock, before being replaced by Adrian Devine with two outs in the ninth.

Astros 2, Cardinals 0

Veteran Larry Dierker fired a five-hitter for his 100th career complete game and scored two runs in leading Houston over St. Louis. Dierker, 6-5, outdueled St. Louis right-hander Bob Forsch in going the distance for only the first time this season. Forsch, 1-2, allowed merely four hits over six innings.

Padres 3, Mets 0

hurled his third shutout in four starts since being called up from the minor leagues last month to spark San Diego over New York.

Phillies 14, Dodgers 2
Bob Boone knocked in two runs in a six-run fifth inning to help Philadelphia rout Los Angeles. The victory, the Phillies' 17th in 21 games on the road, lifted them 7½ games over Pittsburgh in the National League East.

Expos 9, Giants 4
Larry Parrish scored three runs and knocked in a pair with a double and two singles as Montreal capitalized on five San Francisco errors to beat the Giants. Veteran left-hander Woody Fryman, 7-3, scattered 12 hits before getting ninth-inning relief help and the Expos chased rookie Rob Dressler, 1-3, with four runs in the fourth for a 6-1 lead.

Peterson loses in Ohio, but wins in new jersey

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer

Fritz Peterson couldn't win in Ohio but new jersey was just the ticket. Actually it wasn't a new jersey. It belonged to Nelson Briles.

Peterson wasn't in any primaries running for president. If anything, he was running for his life after going winless in the first two months of the baseball season in Cleveland.

The Indians dealt him to Texas and Tuesday night he made his first start for the Rangers. He made it in disguise, wearing Briles' jersey because his own had been lost en route from Texas to Baltimore.

Peterson got relief help from Steve Foucault in the eighth inning and beat the slumping Orioles 6-3 for his first victory in four decisions. And afterwards, the Rangers ignored him and congratulated Briles on the victory.

"I felt strong. I could have gone all night," said Briles. "I didn't feel like I pitched."

Elsewhere in the American League, Detroit downed Kansas City 3-1, the New York Yankees beat California 4-2, Oakland edged Boston 6-5, Milwaukee blanked Chicago 2-0 and Minnesota clipped Cleveland 3-1.

Gene Clines drove in two runs for Texas and Jim Sundberg and Jeff Burroughs doubled home one each as the Rangers closed to within 1½ games of front-running Kansas City in the AL East.

Doyle Alexander, 3-3, took the loss, the eighth defeat in the last 10 games for the Bad News Birds.

And there was more bad news for Baltimore. Slugger Reggie Jackson has a possible cracked bone in his right wrist and could be lost to the club for an extended period.

Tigers 3, Royals 1

Lefty Dave Roberts tossed a seven-hitter to up his record to 5-4 for Detroit. Jason Thompson clubbed a two-run homer and Rusty Staub had an RBI single for the Tigers. Hal McRae, who singled in the lone Kansas City run, had three hits to raise his league-leading average to .356.

Yankees 4, Angels 2
Dock Ellis, 5-4, broke a personal four-game winning streak with a five-hitter for New York. Chris Chambliss drove in two runs with a first-inning triple off Gary Ross, 3-7, and then scored on Craig Nettles' single. Nettles added a solo homer in the seventh.

A's 6, Red Sox 5

Gene Tenace smacked a pair of home runs and drove in three runs for Oakland. Pinch-hitter Ken McMullen singled and pinch-runner Larry Lintz stole second, took third on an error and scored on Bill North's single to put the A's on top for good in the eighth.

Softball league

F.O.E. defeated Duff's Chevrolet 6-3. Smith was the losing pitcher and Hatfield was the winning pitcher.

In the second game, the Cobras defeated Halliday's Elites 13-3. Haley was the winning pitcher for the Cobras while Tate took the loss.

In the B division, Thompson transfer set back Clark Cardinals 23-15. For Thompson, two home runs apiece were scored by Brenda Cupp and Michelle Logan. Crystal Bell, Connie Summers, Regina Chobert, and Dinah Dean also homered.

Danny Reece signs

CINCINNATI (AP) — Third-round draft choice Danny Reece, a safety and kick return specialist from Southern California, has signed a contract with the Cincinnati Bengals of the National Football League.

The 22-year-old Reece started three years for Southern California and ranked second in punt returns in the National Collegiate Athletic Association last season with 26 for 409 yards.

Twins trim Tribe, 3-1

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Indians played the same old refrain and the Minnesota Twins kept right on humming along.

The Twins, propelled by the five-hit shutout pitching of Pete Redfern and Bill Campbell and Rod Carew's hitting and baserunning, trimmed the struggling Indians 3-1 Tuesday night.

It was the fourth straight loss for Cleveland and the fifth victory in six games for Minnesota.

"I'm getting tired of saying it," Cleveland manager Frank Robinson moaned softly, "but we're just not driving in runs. I've been through streaks in my career when a team didn't hit, but this team hits. It just doesn't hit with men on base."

Redfern, recovering slowly from an elbow problem, was lifted with two out when Cleveland scored its lone run. Twins manager Gene Mauch said Redfern was removed because he had thrown his allotted number of pitches.

The Thoroughbred Racing Assn. reports more than $495,000 was turned over to New York State April 1. It was money from winning tickets the public failed to redeem.

CLOSE PLAY — A Helfrich infielder tosses to his shortstop Washington C.H. little league action. The game ended in an effort to force out a County Bank runner Tuesday in 22-22 tie.

Five go in first round

Ohioans among baseball draftees

By The Associated Press

Five Ohio high school stars were selected Tuesday in the first round of major league baseball's free agent draft.

Ken Smith, a left fielder who has hit a .375 clip during his career at Youngstown East, was the third player taken by the pros, grabbed by the Atlanta Braves.

Smith, an honor student, president of his class and speedster on the playing field, said he was pleased he was drafted by the Braves because he believes it is a team with which he has a chance of advancing rapidly.

Tim Glass, a catcher at Springfield South, was the 14th player to be picked in the draft. Described by his coach, John Blackwood, as a player "who can do more things than any boy I've ever had," Glass was chosen by the Cleveland Indians.

Glass, who hit .459 this season and also lettered in football, basketball and track, was elated over having been selected by the Indians.

"Imagine playing this close to home," he exclaimed. "I never thought Cleveland, of all the teams, would be drafting me — never dreamed it."

Other Ohio schoolboys drafted in the first round Tuesday were Leon Durham, an infielder-pitcher at Cincinnati Woodward, by the St. Louis Cardinals; Pat Tabler, an outfielder at Cincinnati McNicholas, by the New York Yankees, and Jeffrey Kraus, an infielder for Cincinnati Colerain, by the Philadelphia Phillies.

Other Ohioans selected in the draft included:

Thomas Hawk, pitcher from Kettering, by San Francisco in the second round.

Leonard Matuszek, outfielder at University of Toledo, by Philadelphia in the fifth round.

Jerome Ahlert of Cincinnati, an infielder, by San Francisco in the 12th round.

Don Davisson, an outfielder at Kitts Hill in Lawrence County, by Pittsburgh in the 12th round.

Michael Sullivan of Cincinnati, a pitcher, by Montreal in the 14th round.

Reds concentrate on hurlers

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds have looked to the future development of their pitching staff during this year's baseball free agent draft.

The world champions Tuesday picked seven pitchers in the first 15 rounds, including their first choice, Mark King, from Owensboro, Ky.

"This has to be the greatest day of my life," said King after learning he had been selected by the Reds.

The 18-year-old star from Owensboro High School had a record of 183 strikeouts in 91 innings and an earned run average of 0.86 going into the state high school championship last week.

"I hope I calm down enough to make it and do a good job," said the young right-hander.

The teenager said he'd been told the Reds would contact him shortly about signing with them and "I'm ready to accept any reasonable offer."

The Reds announced they had signed their No. 2 selection, outfielder Paul Householder, from North Haven Conn. Reds officials described him as an "aggressive outfielder with fine speed and a great arm. At North Haven High School this spring, Householder hit .385 with 29 stolen bases in 19 games.

Householder rejected 32 college football scholarship offers and 22 college baseball scholarships to sign with the Reds.

Cincinnati signed three other outfielders: Steven Renfro, from Lilburn, Ga., their sixth choice; Alfred Welch, from Seminole, Fla., 11th; and Paul Herring, from Hallettsville, Tenn., 15th.

Other Reds selections included Mark Bingham, a first and third baseman from Hastings, N.Y.; Michael Kopsky, a third baseman from St. Louis; and two catchers, Peter Rowe, from Corvallis, Ore., and Thomas Norko, from Shelton, Conn.

Jeff youth league

The Jeff Royal Blues got nine runs in the fifth inning and breezed to a, 12-3, win over Al's Shell Tuesday in Jeffersonville little league action.

Tracy Tyree was the winning pitcher and Tom Roberts took the loss.

In the other league contest Tuesday, Jeff Fire Department topped Fayette County Bank, 12-3. Dwight Gordon took the win and David Perrill was tagged with the loss.

Lowell Miller led the winners in hitting two doubles and a single while Perrill paced the losers with a double and a single.

Lucas top choice in draft

NEW YORK (AP) — Can John Lucas find happiness on both the basketball and tennis courts?

He's going to try.

Lucas, a college All-American in both tennis and basketball, was the No. 1 pick in Tuesday's National Basketball Association draft, by the Houston Rockets.

After quickly signing a five-year, nocut contract for a reported $850,000 with the Rockets, the 6-foot-4 Lucas said he also was negotiating with a franchise in World Team Tennis and probably would sign with a WTT member — which he did not identify — next week.

"Eye-hand coordination is the most important factor in both sports," said Lucas, who reached the third round of the recent NCAA tennis tournament at Corpus Christi, Tex. "The footwork in tennis also helps me as a guard in basketball."

"But right now, my primary concern is playing basketball," added Lucas, who averaged 18.3 points a game in four years as a starter at Maryland.

The Rockets, operating under new Coach Tom Nissalke, acquired the No. 1 draft on Monday by trading center Joe Meriweather, guard Gus Bailey and their first-round pick to Atlanta for center Dwight Jones and the Hawks' top choice.

The Rockets and the other teams, meanwhile, chose 175 other players in the 10-round draft which lasted 2 hours, 5 minutes.

Four of them were from Indiana's national champions. All-American forward Scott May, the College Player of the Year, was the No. 2 pick, by the Chicago Bulls. Two others, guards Quinn Buckner and Bobby Wilkerson, also were drafted on the first round. Buckner, like May a member of the U.S. Olympic team, was selected by the Milwaukee Bucks, and Wilkerson went to the Seattle SuperSonics.

Indiana forward Tom Abernethy was chosen on the third round, by the Los Angeles Lakers.

The only starting member of Indiana's NCAA winners to avoid the draft was All-American center Kent Benson, a junior.

The other 1976 Associated Press All-Americans, forwards Adrian Dantley of Notre Dame and Phil Sellers of Rutgers, were high picks in the draft.

Girton tops Willis in BRL

Girton's pounded out 16 hits to push 12 runs across the plate and to give Wendell Cauley his second win of the season in Tuesday's Babe Ruth League action.

The Medics were on the losing end of the 16-hit barrage which was capped off by three home runs.

The two teams exchanged three runs in the first frame with the Medics scoring on four consecutive singles and a Girton's error in the top of the frame. Girton's came back with three runs on Devik Hargo's double and singles by Bill Hanners and Shawn Riley.

After the three run first, Cauley settled down and scattered five hits the rest of the way. One however, was a solo homer by Joe Smith in the top of the third.

Shawn Riley opened the Girton third with a solo shot over the leftfield wall. His homer was followed by four singles as Girtons took a 7-4 lead.

In the fourth, Larry Bricksles came off the bench and blasted a two-run, pinch-hit homer to increase the Girton lead.

Shane Riley's solo homer over the centerfield wall capped a three-run Girton sixth.

Steve Pritchett took the loss for the Medics who were led offensively by Dave Creamer with three hits and Joe Smith with two safeties.

Shane Riley went four for five from the plate while Shawn Riley drove in four runs for Girtons.

Gourmet Corner — A Former Chef For DeGaulle Displays Skill

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The late Paul Poirat was widely known as the French King of Fashion in his heyday before World War II. But it took a former chef for Charles de Gaulle to show me that Poirat was also a cook of formidable talent.

I made the discovery at a luncheon given as a curtain raiser for a Homage to Poirat fashion show. Featuring some 80 gowns designed by Poirat, the show was scheduled at New York's Fashion Institute of Technology (FIT). Climax of the affair was to be a banquet for 800 persons featuring Poirat's culinary creations adapted by French-born Jacques Pepin.

The preview luncheon was cooked by Pepin, who did ample justice to the dishes taken from Poirat's cookbook entitled "107 Recettes ou Curiosites Culinaires." This should not have surprised me, considering the fact that Pepin had presided over the kitchens of two French government chiefs and finally a chief of state; the late De Gaulle. As president of France, "Le Grand Charles" may have intimidated his cabinet ministers and aides, but Pepin found him a man of simple tastes, punctual habits and easy to please.

"For dinner, the president was content with a dish of soup, some poached fish and a piece of fruit," said Pepin. "But he did insist that others be as prompt as he was. If he scheduled a formal luncheon at 12:30 p.m. and the guest of honor failed to show up on time, De Gaulle would go on and eat without him."

Pepin's preview luncheon led off with a chilled cream of eggplant soup spiced with curry powder and herbs and garnished with strips of eggplant and carrots. It could best be described as a vichyssoise with a kicker.

This was followed by chicken in a cream sauce whose unique taste I learned was due in part to the addition of a dollop of Scotch whisky.

The meal was accompanied by a Cotes-du-Rhone wine that was velvet-soft and had a most pleasant taste.

Finally we were served a frozen brandy-orange soufflé that left everyone in a euphoric state. Here is the recipe, which involves little cooking.

5 ounces granulated sugar

1½ ounces water

Grated rind of 1 medium orange

1 pint heavy cream, whipped

10 ladyfingers splashed with cognac

1 ounce cognac

Beat egg yolks and set aside.

Boil sugar, water and orange rind for 3 minutes and set aside. Whip cream till it peaks slightly. Start beating egg yolks, adding syrup and cognac slowly. When eggs are frothy and take on a lemony color, fold in cream. Pour 1-3rd of mix into glass soufflé dish.

Place ½ ladyfingers on top and add another third of mixture. Add remaining ladyfingers and refrigerate till slightly set.

Place wax paper collar on soufflé dish and secure with string. Add remaining mixture and place in freezer compartment till firm. To serve remove collar and, if desired, add crumbled macaroons dusted with cocoa. Serves 10.

Dear Mr. Becker: I suffer from nightmares — bridge nightmares, that is. I have this recurring dream where I hold the West hand and find myself on lead against seven diamonds.

I always lead a trump and South draws four rounds of trumps. I discard a club on the third trump lead, and so does dummy, but on the next lead I run into a serious problem.

Sometimes I discard the eight of hearts. When I do, South plays a heart to the ace and ruffs a heart, establishing the J-10 as tricks. He then plays the K-A of spades and cashes dummy's two high hearts, whereupon I get squeezed and declarer makes the rest of the tricks — to the tune of 2,440 points.

Sometimes I discard a spade at trick four. When I do, South cashes the K-A of spades and ruffs a spade, establishing two spade tricks in dummy. He then plays a heart to dummy's ace and cashes the 6-5 of spades. I discard a heart on the fourth round of spades, but on the fifth spade I'm again hopelessly squeezed. Whether I discard my king of hearts or a club from the K-Q, South makes the rest of the tricks.

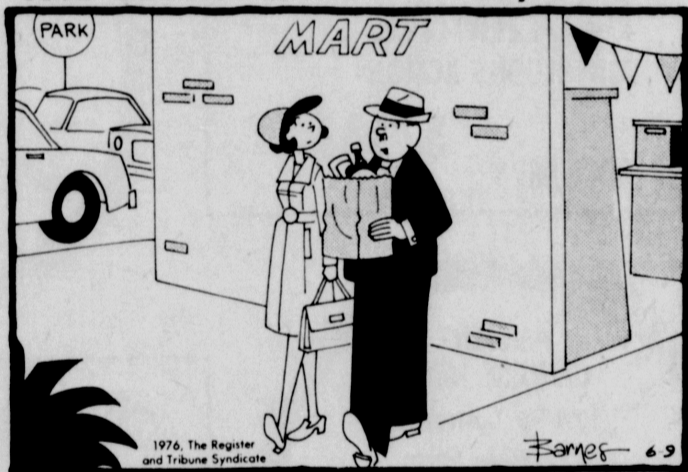

Sometimes I discard the queen of clubs at trick four, hoping declarer won't realize I've ungarded the king. But South is a real smart cookie and invariably sees through my scheme. He nails the king and I wind up shelling out the same 2,440 points.

Now the fact is I can't afford to lose that many points on one deal — even though the stakes are nominal and the whole thing's only a dream — but I was wondering whether you can suggest any way for me to escape from this awful dilemma. I would appreciate it very much. Cordially yours, Constant Reader.

Dear C.R.: Happy to oblige. The next time this terrible situation arises, I suggest that you ask for a new deal. You have only 12 cards! Cordially yours, BJB.

Workers running magnesium plant

ADDY, Wash. (AP) — "I don't think I'll ever get to the point of hating to come to work in the morning," says Chuck Taylor, who works in a magnesium plant — one where there are no bosses breathing down workers' necks.

Taylor, who taught junior high school for 12 years, is one of 280 employees involved in an Aluminum Company of America experiment in worker self-government. The new Northwest Alloys, Inc., plant here has no foremen, no unions, and is run by worker "teams" who decide what has to be done and do it.

"My father-in-law worked at Kaiser. It was the same thing every day. Here, if you have any ability at all you can use it," Taylor said.

Social conscience was not necessarily what prompted the experiment, which is also being tried in a Pennsylvania coal mine, a Tennessee auto-parts plant and by West German companies.

"It's for the primary purpose of improving production," Carl Hudson, the Addy plant's personnel manager, said.

In its first five months of operation, the plant's turnover rate has been low and absenteeism is running a low 1 per cent. But it's too soon to tell if the experiment is working.

"I'd say three to five years is the shakedown period," Hudson said.

The plant's managers caution that the method might not work everywhere. Workers were hand-picked from about 5,000 applicants — only those willing to rotate assignments, doing both skilled and menial work, were hired.

"We were looking for people who would feel comfortable in an unstructured situation, in small groups," said Hudson. "We turned down highly skilled electricians, with 30 years' experience, who weren't interested in learning to be mechanics."

The 7-to-12-member teams hash out work assignments and deal with personality problems, right down to hiring and firing, all on company time.

Darla Ferry, whose seven male teammates elected her team coordinator, has been trained in group problem-solving.

"If there is a problem, you get it straightened out before it gets serious. So it's really relaxing," she said.

Perhaps the system is hardest on the bosses.

Bill Kelly, supervisor of mining and crushing operations, said it has taken him months to realize that worker teams make some decisions better than he would, some worse, but "on the balance the result is about the same."

Metzenbaum gets nod

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Howard M. Metzenbaum, capitalizing on consumer-oriented issues and his opponent's relative obscurity, scored a lopsided victory over Rep. James V. Stanton on Tuesday to gain the Democratic Senate nomination.

With the Ohio primary vote count 66 per cent complete, Metzenbaum had 52 per cent of the vote. He led by 342,379 to Stanton's 248,898. James D. Nolan had 39,404 votes and Richard B. Kay polled 22,612.

"We talked about jobs, the rising cost of labor, the need for health care and the vacuum of leadership," Metzenbaum, 59, said in an early victory statement in Cleveland. "The people listened to what we said."

For the 44-year-old Stanton, the stakes were high. Preliminary figures indicate he outspent Metzenbaum, a millionaire, in an unsuccessful media effort to make himself known to voters outside his Cleveland congressional district. He also gave up a career in Congress where had served three terms representing the 20th District. "It's important for the Democratic Party to defeat Robert Taft and I'll campaign for you in November," he told Metzenbaum in conceding.

During the last two weeks, Stanton went off the offensive, attacking Metzenbaum for past tax difficulties, his labor record, and alleged failure to comply with a financial disclosure rule in the Senate.

Metzenbaum, who served 11 months in the Senate by appointment in 1974, ignored the onslaught for the most part, and clung to a low key campaign style. The confident Metzenbaum was a marked contrast to the feisty activist who fought for recognition himself in 1970 against Sen. Robert Taft Jr. and again in 1974 against former astronaut John Glenn. He lost both times.

'Ins' all winners in Congressional voting

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Rep. Wayne Hays came through bloodied but unbowed as did other incumbents who were challenged Tuesday in Ohio's congressional primary.

Republican Woodrow W. Mathna, former Lorain mayor, and Democratic State Sen. Donald J. Pease will compete in the 13th District for the seat being vacated by Republican Charles Mosher, who is retiring.

Mary Rose Oaker, former Cleveland school teacher, beat 11 other Democrats in the 20th District, where Jim Stanton dropped out to run unsuccessfully for the U. S. Senate. No Republicans ran in the metropolitan Cleveland district, but she faces two independents in the fall.

There were 26 contests for party nominations among Ohio's 23 Districts. No primary contests were necessary in the 4th, 5th and 7th districts.

Former Cincinnati Mayor Thomas A. Luken, an interim congressman two years ago in the 1st District, defeated two other Democrats in the 2nd District and will oppose veteran Rep. Donald D. Clancy in November.

Rep. Willis D. Gradison, who defeated Luken in the 1st District two years ago, won Democratic renomination but also has general election opposition.

Rep. Charles W. Whalen Jr., won Republican renomination in the 3rd District but faces opposition in the fall.

In the largely rural 6th District, early inconclusive returns showed Democrats Paul McCarthy and Ted Strickland in a tight race to run against

Rep. William Harsha, Republican. Republican Rep. Thomas N. Kindness won renomination in the 8th District and will have Democrat and independent opposition in the fall. Rep. Thomas Ashley, Democrat, won renomination in the 9th District but faces Republican and independent general election opponents. James A. Plummer of Jackson led in the 10th District Democratic race for the right to face Rep. Clarence E. Miller, Republican, in November. In the 11th District, Democrat Robert Woodman led in the Democratic race to choose an opponent for Republican incumbent J. William Stanton. Columbus City Councilwoman Fran Ryan has, for the second time, won Democratic nomination in the 12th District and will face Republican Rep. Sam Devine in the fall. Rep. John Seiberling took a comfortable early lead over two other Democrats in the 14th District but also has a November race to deal with. Veteran Rep. John M. Ashbrook won renomination in the 17th District and faces Democratic opposition in the fall.

Baseball

up to 13 cents, I thought that was outrageous! Now I don't write like I used to."

Confessing that there were alot of sports that he didn't quite understand, Raney said, "A friend of mine particularly likes tennis so I've learned about that sport and over the years, I've come to appreciate golf." Back during the Pine Street Ball Park days, Raney built a golf course of sorts and provided the kids with clubs so they could learn the game.

Pine Street Ball Park still exists, but according to Raney no one is managing it. When Raney supervised the park, he and some other people had a sign put up on one of the buildings. Although, the erection of that sign took place a good 20 years ago, it still should be there. If it isn't, that's a shame, since it epitomizes Raney and what he stands for. The sign reads: No man is so tall as when he stoops to help a boy.
